THINGS WELL SAID.

"Courageous, intelligent persistent advertising means the largest possible success in any particular line."

"He who in the world would rise, must either fail or advertise."

"Your advertisement is your representative."

"Non-advertising means the limitation of business to personal influence."

"Circulars hit only once, if at all, and are then consigned to the waste basket."

"Don't advertise spasmodically—keep at it. Your particular line of goods may not be wanted to-day; they will be sought to-morrow, or the day after."

"Advertising is an eloquent and effective 'salesman'—distinguished from the verbal salesman in this, that while the latter talks to one customer the advertising salesman is talking to tens, possibly hundreds, of thousands."

AUXILIATOR FOR THE HAIR.

The difficulty which has been found heretofore in the manufacture of an auxiliator for the hair, on account of the impossibility of procuring through ordinary processes of manufacture a product that would remain perfectly fresh and unirritable and free from products of decomposition, has induced Mr. Westphal to cause investigations to be made in some of the foremost laboratories, with the purpose in view of procuring a pure article of this kind. He has succeeded, and his preparation has become very popular.

For the preservation and promotion of the beauty and growth and securing the restoration of the hair, keeping the head cool, clear and free from irritating scales and scurf, and giving to it a rich gloss to the hair, it has no equal. It will free the head from all dandruff immediately and is a perfect hair dressing for ladies and gentlemen. It is highly perfumed and free from oil. If your druggist or dealer does not keep Westphal's Auxiliator, write to him for it. Prices are 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured only by Paul Westphal, 329 West Thirty-eighth street, New York.

NEXT ATTRACTION.

The Minstrel Monarchs

PRIMROSE & WEST'S MINSTRELS.

Commencing next Monday evening and during the entire week, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, the ever-popular and world-famous Minstrel Monarchs, Messrs. Primrose & West and their talented company appear and present an entirely new performance in every detail.

It is safe to say that no theatre in Baltimore was ever besieged by a greater crowd than that one clamoring and fighting for admission to Ford's Opera House last night. If it were not for the compliment conceded to Mr. Ford and Primrose and West's Minstrel Show one would say that this crowd was highly objectionable, but everybody took the pushing and pulling good naturedly and seemed glad that Mr. Ford and the show he had secured were so thoroughly appreciated.

The minstrel show was undeniably the best ever given in Baltimore. The singing was better, the costumes and scenery were handsomer, and the various acts better than in any minstrel performance ever seen here. In the first part the stage was beautifully decorated with flowers. J. M. Janson, Joe Natus, Larry Doo'ey, Billie Thompson, Tom Lewis, Frank Cushman, F. W Oaklank, and George H. Primrose all sang.

Frank Cushman, an old Baltimore boy, was especially well received, and George Primrose, as the swell, was applauded to the echo. Tom Lewis' idea of the long-distance telephone was funny, and the pen onality displayed by the four stars, Cushman, Primrose, Dooley, and Janson, in the sketch entitled "Log Cabin Neighbors," was as delicious a piece of pure plantation humor as was ever seen.

Drummond and Stahley, the musical and dancing blackfaces, were excellent. The march of the Red Hussars, with their mysterious electric lights, was magnificent.

The Bernac brothers did the finest contortin.n act ever put on the stage. They are absolutely unapproachable and are as wonderful as they are original. The performance concluded with a most laughable sketch called "Trouble in Blackville."—Baltimore Daily News September 1.

A fisherman of Moosehead lake hooked a big togue at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and succeeded in landing him at 9 in the evening.

The number of eggs in a six pound eel in November is fully 4,000,000. Under the microscope they measure eighty to the linear inch.

There are spiders no bigger than a grain of sand which spin thread so fine that it takes 4,000 of them to equal in magnitude a single hair.

A young woman in Lewiston, Me., drowned a kitten and then buried it behind the barn. Three days the old cat sweat and dug it up, and, taking it into the kitchen, brought it to life again.

A mallee cat that was born and has lived most of its life in a chicken coop in an Illinois town has developed a strange habit of sleeping on a perch just as the chickens do, standing on one leg with his head folded under one of his forlegs.

Vincent Griest, of Lower Oxford, Pa., witnessed a combat between an owl and a smaller bird, and when the little one seemed to be getting the worst of the battle he went to its assistance. The owl thereupon attacked him and hit him in the arm and face.

The Easiest Way.

His test of love
Full well he told,
For what might e'er resist her?
The stars above
Thus she less cold,
She said she'd be his sister.

No more he spake,
Yet to his breast
Let tenderly he pressed her,
As loath to wake—
All fond as ever—
You see he'd simply kissed her.

The queen of Portugal recently paid $7,000 for a dress.

The heelbones of the Princess of Wales have increased to such an extent as to make conversation with her almost impossible.

The queen of Saxony maintains three physicians whose sole duty is to attend the ailments of the suffering poor. The queen pays the physicians out of her own private purse.

The empress of Germany is loyal to the fatherland to the extent of having all her dresses made in Berlin and Vienna. She buys her hats in Berlin and only her gloves come from Paris.

Nasr-ed-Deen, shah-en-shar (king of kings), has been a ruler for nearly forty-five years. Of his eighteen children five are sons, and of these not the eldest, but the second son, Muzaffer-ed-Deen Mirza, now nearly forty years old, would succeed to the throne in the event of the shah's death.

AUXILIATOR FOR THE HAIR.

The difficulty which has been found heretofore in the manufacture of an auxiliator for the hair, on account of the impossibility of procuring through ordinary processes of manufacture a product that would remain perfectly fresh and unaltered in odor and free from precipitation, has induced Mr. Paul Westphal, after investigations to be made in some of the foremost laboratories with whom he proposes of introducing a pure article of this kind, to say that the result of his preparation has become very popular.

For the preservation and promotion of the beauty and growth and securing the restoration of the hair, keeping the head cool, allaying the itching and fever of the scalp and giving a rich gloss to the hair, it has no equal. It will free the head from all dandruff immediately and in a perfect, safe dressing for ladies and gentlemen. It is highly perfumed and free from oil. If your druggist or dealer does not keep Westphal's Auxiliator, write to him for it. Prices are 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Manufactured only by Paul Westphal, 373 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

FADS OF FASHION.

Satin effects in evening brocades reign paramount.

Bengaline small figures will be sought for by the exclusives.

Mauve effects are subsiding under the tendency toward green.

The newest navy blues are clear in tint and without any purplish cast.

The Venetian silk crepe is a success for drapery purposes and fancy work.

Salambo and gloria sell very well, also a new flower pink, cicale and plyert green.

Clear brown seems nearly unknown, as the shades either run toward red or yellow.

The advices from Paris continue to be full of the fact that velvet for dress and millinery purposes is a "go."

In London soie royale is selling with an ornamental selvedge, which plays an important part in the trimming.

Satin ribbon for millinery and trimmings sees the tide of the fashionable world turning toward its direction.

New shades of green are pivetti, a yellowish shade, and prairie, a bright tint not quite as vivid as the older grass green.—Dry Goods Economist.

Governor Bulkeley, of Connecticut, is a tall, handsome, elderly gentleman. He is an aristocrat from the crown of his head to the soles of his patent leather gaiters.

Governor Buchanan, of Tennessee, was a farmer's boy, and is a robust, energetic man, self made and self educated. He is a poor man, but a most popular one among the people of the rural districts. He was president of the state Granger society when elected governor.

Colonel John Hay, one of the joint authors of the famous Lincoln biography, has a trim figure, closely cropped gray whiskers and a mustache and an elegant way of handling his glasses which bespeaks the man of leisure. Colonel Hay married a large fortune.

Young Mr. Harrison, the Irish M. P. who came over with the Parnell delegates, is the mildest mannered of men. He has made hosts of friends in America by his suavity, his intelligence and his modesty. The American girls pronounce him the handsomest Irishman who has come across

If he hadn't been too fond of good living, they say
He might have to his sickness tarried,
But he wanted a wife prepared dinner each day,

If for a good cook one was looking;
She declares that she didn't get married to cook,
But to have some one else do the cooking.

"The most peculiarly pleasing effect is obtained in the medley at the close of the overture. In vain do you try to follow the ever fleeting harmony of old favorites—"Home Sweet Home," "Swanee River," "I'm Coming," "Marching Through Georgia," etc, till each singer and musician is singing or playing a distinctly different air yet never clashing, so cleverly are they harmonized, till they all blend in the sweet cords of "Home Sweet Home," and our bewildered senses take refuge in the old, familiar song "—Ex.

An automatic life saving belt that can be shaped into a ball, fired from a gun or thrown by hand has recently been tried on the Thames. It rights itself upon contact with the water.

Watch crystals are made by blowing a sphere of glass about one yard in diameter, after which the disks are cut from it by means of a pair of compasses having a diamond at the extremity of one leg.

The distance of the horizon is determined by the height of the eye above the earth or the sea. On the sea, with the eye at a height of five feet, the distance would be three miles; at sixty feet in height, ten miles.

An Englishman has invented an automatic attachment for looms by means of which the machine is stopped before the shuttle is quite empty, and thus the inconvenience and delay in losing the pick are avoided.

Experiments upon the photophorescence of gems shows that it varies according to the origin of the stone. Cape diamonds show blue, Brazilians red, orange, blue or yellow, and those from Australia yellow, blue or green.

A harp in pearls with gold strings is a new form but geometrical and regular forms worked out in pearls are most used. In a double star the pearls are used on different places with a charming effect. Large single hearts of pearls are used as brooches to fasten thin stuffs.

Reptiles and insects are in high vogue. Lizards of olivine and diamonds, frogs with four feet of olivine sunk in dead gold, serpents in the waving forms of motion, beetles of amethyst and topaz, even the potato bug with its striped green and yellow back, find favor in jewelry.

Imitation barbaric jewelry of all sorts are seen. Gold is used to mark out the forms, affecting a certain rudeness of finish. The spaces are filled with opaque colored stones of all colors. AUXILIATOR FOR THE HAIR.

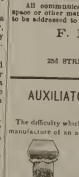
The difficulty which has been found heretofore in the manufacture of an auxiliator for the hair, on account of the impossibility of procuring thoroughly ordinary, perfumed ingredients, the manufacturer is proud that a result has been produced that is more than ordinarily fresh and delightful, and one possessing, as has already been proved on many occasions, the remarkable property of restoring to gray hair its original color. It has also been discovered that it is made in many cases to promote the growth of the hair. In view of the foregoing facts, the manufacturer is now offering a pure article at a reasonable price, and has no reason to doubt his preparations will become very popular.



For the purpose of restoring the natural color of gray hair, and also for the restoration of the hair to new life when falling, preventing the itching and fever at the roots, and leaving a rich glossy appearance, it has no equal. It will free the head from all dandruff completely and in a perfect hair dress for ladies and gentlemen. It is highly perfumed and free from all injurious drugs or dyes or coloring matter. Westphal's Auxiliator, either in this form or Powders—and

The location of tumors on the brain can now be detected by instantaneous photography. A tumor on the brain causes violent spasms by pressing on a nerve center, and while the patient is in the midst of a spasmodic attack he is photographed, the nerves affected determined by the contortions shown in the picture, and the tumor located.

For the intense actinic light required by photographers Herr Putz, of the Vienna Photographic society, uses aluminium instead of magnesium. The aluminium is mixed in powder with chlorate of potash, or is placed in thin leaves between sheets of collodion cotton, impregnated with chlorate of potash. A brilliant, smokeless light is produced.

Scientific societies in London have been shown some photographic positives that were produced from direct exposures. The most effective agent in their production is tetrathio-carbamid-ammonium bromide, and the presence of only one-hundredth of a grain per ounce of eikonogen developer causes the negative image that first appears to change into a rich colored positive.

A Scheme That Miscarried.

If he hadn't been fond of good living, they say
He might have in single-blessedness tarried.
But he wanted a well prepared dinner each day
And a cook he made love to and married.

But he made a mistake when the maiden he took,
If for a good cook he was looking;
She declares that she didn't get married to cook,
But to have some one cook for the cook.
—New York Press.

The Ideal and the Real.

She (at 11:45 p. m.)—And will you never leave me, darling?

He—Though the sky should fall, by heaven! nothing shall part us.

Just then the shuffling of a pair of heavy feet in the room overhead caused him to remark nervously, "Well, Mabel, I think I'll be going," and he went out of the front door like a shot out of a gun.—New York Herald.

THE CELEBRATED
PIANOS SOHMER PIANOS
Are at present the most popular and preferred by the leading Artists.
NOS. 149 TO 155 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK.

Jennie June has been made honorary president of Sorosis for life.

Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, the popular novelist, has been the mother of fifteen children. It is only of late years that she has discovered her ability to write stories.

John Strange Winter, the author, who in private life is Mrs. Arthur Stannard, is a very handsome young woman. She is tall and slender, with fine dark eyes, a pretty mouth and a well shaped head.

The owner and editor in chief of The Youth's Companion, is a complete recluse. His name is Daniel S. Ford, and he is very nearly seventy years old. He has probably never been 100 miles from Boston ten times in his life.

Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the editor of St. Nicholas, has a charming country place in Osterea Park, Catskill mountains, called the Yarrow Cottage, where she receives every Thursday afternoon during the summer and autumn.

Colonel A. K. McClure wears a white necktie. There's a tradition that Colonel McClure was the gentleman who specially convinced a Girard college guard that he was not to be barred out for a clergyman just because he wore a clerical tie.

Mr. Philander Johnson, whose humorous paragraphs have made the "Poet-scripts" column of the Washington Post one of the most attractive features of that paper, has accepted a position on The Evening Star, where he will make the "Shooting Stars" go off with eclat.

Mme. Leon Bertaux, the French sculptress, is one of the most ardent champions of her race in France. All of her leisure is given up to the welfare of the female art world in Paris. The Union of Women Painters and Sculptors in Paris owes its existence and prosperity to her efforts.

Henry Irving's eldest son, Henry, some time ago announced his determination to become an actor. The second son, Lawrence, will join a troupe for a tour of the English provinces. The junior Henry goes to the London Garrick to get his schooling under Jolin Hare, the celebrated manager-etc. Mr. Irving had formed other plans for his boys, but has not attempted to thwart their stage aspirations.

Gold finds increased favor on ladies' nats and dresses.

A nice baby mantle of pique has the skirt portion laid in hollow folds.

A pretty waist is made of bengaline trimmed with Chantilly lace.

Balayeuses come into use whenever dresses are, as at present, worn long.

Blouses are greatly worn. Light zephyrs and mousseline de laine are the materials.

In children's hats the Helgoland style leads, as it affords protection against the sun's rays.

Serviteurs, washable and heavily starched, of plain white or colored cretonne, are quite popular.

For winter children's capotes will be favorites. These styles are very nice with ruche borders.

In Madagascar it is regarded as an act of tremendous courage to submit to the cleansing influences of water.

Referring to the unpublished address of Horace Greeley at a recent Century Magazine, Lloyd's Weekly London Newspaper says, "The Arctic explorer's portrait figures as frontispiece." Fact!

Not far from Portland, Me., a barn was set on fire by lightning. The same bolt that fired the building shattered a pipe that connected with a water main, and the flow of water extinguished the flames.

The number of English words which have no rhyme in the language is very large. Among them are month, silver, liquid, spirit, chimney, warmth, gulf, sylph, music, breadth, width, depth, honor, iron, echo.

The existence of a cholera demon is still firmly credited in certain districts of India. Some of the liars of that country claim to have put the demon to flight by firing off guns and beating the tomtom. They describe the demon as having a head like an earthen pot.

The British debt is so large that if it were divided into one-pound notes they would completely cover the state of Ohio three times over. If paid in penny pieces, and each penny piled one above the other, it would make seven columns of copper reaching to the moon.

The New York Herald of Tuesday, August 25th, says, concerning the "Fire Patrol," which will be produced at this theatre week of September 14th: "One of the best of the spectacular realistic productions that has ever been put on the stage in this city had its first performance at the Windsor Theatre last night. Of course, as its name implies, an actual fire patrol wagon figures largely in the play at interesting crisis, and saves the hero and heroine just when they need to be saved. Another feature that convulsed the audience, which was unusually large and demonstrative, was the introduction in the second act of a gold stamp mill and ore crusher in full operation. The hero stops the ponderous machinery just in the nick of time, of course, to rescue hero No. 2.

Of those in the cast, W. W. Bittner, Jack Dallas, Geo. Scott, Lieutenant Ames, and George Rose as Staggeract, Clara Davenport as Nellie Latimer, and Idella Macdonnell as Kitty Dallas, did particularly well. There was also a little tot, Olga Vanhaltzfeldt, who, as Toodles, a street waif, made an exceptionally good impression.

The great seal of the United States is affixed to nothing but treaties, proclamations, commissions, pardons and passports. The government has had but two seals in the hundred years since its foundation.

Gold coin is shipped abroad in five gallon iron bound oaken kegs. Each keg holds ten bags and each bag contains $5,000, so that the value of a keg is $50,000. Gold from the other side usually comes in boxes.

The catacombs of Rome contain the remains of about 6,000,000 human beings, and those of Paris about 3,000,000. The latter were formerly stone quarries. Many of the victims of the revolution of 1793-4 are buried there.

Mr. Louis Robie, late Manager for Mr. Miner's theatres is shortly to present at Tony Pastor's the Reilly & Woods Specialty Comedy in a new farcical Comedy, entitled "Hades and the 400." The connection between these, apparently, diverse elements is satirically depicted in a humorous idea.

George Schweich, of Richmond, Mo., owns the table upon which the "Book of Mormon" was written. He values it at $5,000.

Hannibal Hamlin's grandfather had seventeen sons, the eldest of whom were named respectively Europe, Asia, Africa and America.

POWDER AND BALL.

The French army has 131,000 horses, 18,000 of which are substitutes. The appropriation for them this year is $400,000 more than it was last year.

The British are using illuminated sight sights on many of the guns of their warships. The sights are so constructed that they can be put on or removed in a short time.

The celebrated military balloon works in Paris has produced an aerial "torpedo boat," of which one has been bought by the Russian government. The trials will be secret.

Canet rapid fire guns are subjected to a tensile strain of 85,338 pounds to the square inch. Hotchkiss rapid fire guns must stand a tensile strain of 90,000 pounds to the square inch.

A prominent ordnance officer in the British navy puts the life of the 67-ton gun at fifty rounds. He does not think that a 67-ton gun has been made which will be safe after twenty rounds of rapid firing.

A new steel cuirass, impenetrable to the bullets of a rifle and covering the breast only, will be introduced in the Austrian army and perhaps throughout the armies of the triple alliance. It can be folded up and packed in an ordinary knapsack.

The Turkish army is reported to be in excellent condition. Nearly 600,000 repeating rifles are in the hands of the infantry. The artillery is furnished mainly by Krupp, and forty-nine regiments of cavalry, mostly raised in Asia, have been recently added.

The 4-inch rapid fire guns for the main batteries of the Cincinnati and Raleigh will be built at the Washington gun foundry. They will be fitted with Driggs-Schroeder breech mechanism. The government pays fifty dollars per gun for the right of using the patent.

Observation stepladders are the latest innovation in the Belgian field artillery. They are intended to enable the commander of a concealed battery to better direct the fire of the gunners. Every ladder is about 7¼ feet high, of iron, and weighs about sixty-five pounds. All ammunition wagons will carry the ladders.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Lighting by arc lamps is not yet popular in London, there being but few in use in that city.

A new set of French inventors has patented an electrical device for the use of dentists in exploring the mouth.

The new electric fan revolves slowly in a horizontal plane in addition to the rapid revolutions in the usual upright position.

There are several successful storage battery manufacturing concerns in Europe, while not one can be pointed out in this country.

Gutta percha has become so scarce that there is not enough for the insulation of submarine cables, and either fresh sources of supply or a substitute for it must be discovered.

The Marquis of Salisbury not only uses the water power on his estate for lighting by electricity, but also grinds his corn, cuts his horse fodder, pumps his water and does a variety of other work by means of electric motors thus driven.

Among the numerous electrical applications introduced of late into steamboats is a winch designed for light, variable cargoes, the being to attain great rapidity of lift with simplicity. So effective is this machine that it will work while immersed in sea water. The motor is inclosed in a stout casing and has steel cased coils.

If the statements of the London electrical engineers are correct the new Australian telephone, known as the Collier Audible telephone, marks a distinct step in advance in the science of telephony. It is asserted that, compared with the efficiency of an ordinary Bell receiver, the sound from the Collier is as a person shouting to a whisper.

SNAP SHOTS.

Count Luigi Primolo, the son of Princess Bonaparte and a chieftain among the Italian Bonapartists, is acquiring celebrity as an amateur photographer. His most famous achievement was in securing a picture of the pope during a recent ceremony in the Vatican.

Blaine—This name is from the Town of Blain, in France. It has also a claim to Welsh origin, and in that case it signifies the summit or top.

Parnell—The deposed Irish leader has not an Irish name. It comes from Italy, and is derived from Petronilla, a pretty stone, and also an immodest girl.

Vanderbilt is Dutch, from byl, a hatchet or bill. The ship carpenters in Amsterdam were nicknamed die bylties, the hatchet or bill men. Van, the Dutch for the word of. Hence Van der Bilt—of the bill men.

Pattison—This is an Irish name and means the son of Patrick. The name Patterson is the same. Patrick is derived from the Latin Patricious, meaning noble, a senator. The name was bestowed upon the eldest sons of the Roman senators.—American Notes and Queries.

"Yes, Algie," she murmured; "yes, a thousand times yes, if your lot is in——"

The London Daily News says the average speed of American locomotives is forty-two miles—the fastest on record. England comes next, it says, France third, Germany fourth, Russia fifth, America and Hungary sixth and Italy seventh.

Dissatisfied patrons of a railroad running along the New Jersey coast have often asked that more trains be added to its schedule. This request has been persistently refused and now the citizens say that they will build a parallel railroad of their own.

The bureau of the American republics at Washington has information that Dr. Antonio Quijarro, representing a syndicate of English and German capitalists, has submitted to the government of Bolivia a plan for a railway system for that republic. The Quijarro plan proposes three lines of road.

A curious incident has come to light in a California railroad bridge accident. Eggs are usually looked upon as very fragile freight, and yet in this instance, where lives were lost and many injured, a case of eggs was carried down from the bridge in the falling car to the boggy ground beneath, a distance of twenty feet, and not a single egg was broken. In the cases there were no less than 864 dozen eggs, packed in the usual manner.

Several railroads in the General Traffic association territory have been heavy losers financially on account of carrying theatrical and opera troupes on a guarantee of payment for transportation when the troupe reached a certain place and played a performance. The general passenger agents of all the roads have now issued positive instructions to all agents to carry no opera or theatrical troupes unless the cash is forthcoming before the actors board the train.

Internally, turpentine has enjoyed for a century the reputation of being a specific for sciatica. Its mode of operation is unknown, but that it cures stands as proof of its virtue. Ten drops three times a day in sweetened water is the dose.

A bath in a half pint of turpentine and two pounds of sal soda in an ordinary bath tub, three-quarters full of water, at 100 degs. Fahrenheit, will cure the itch when other remedies fail. Three or four baths, one daily, are usually sufficient.

For burns turpentine is invaluable, applied either with a rag or in a salve. The pain vanishes, and healthy granulation soon begins. Its use is at first attended with considerable smarting, but the permanent good more than compensates for it.

In the early stages of croup or almost any throat or chest trouble turpentine is well nigh a specific. Rub the chest and throat until the skin is red, then tie a piece of flannel or cotton batting over the chest moistened with a few drops of the oil, and inhale the vapor.

As an inhalation, turpentine has proved of great service in bronchitis, pneumonia, pleurisy and other throat and lung affections. If you have a cough, sprinkle a little on a handkerchief and hold it to your mouth and nose for a few minutes, breathing the vapor, and note the relief.

Turpentine, in which is dissolved as much camphor as it will take up, is preeminently the dressing for lacerations, bruises and cuts. Its antiseptic action is equal to that of carbolic acid; it speedily stops the bleeding. Few, if any ulcers, long resist its continued application.

A lovely French silk has a serpentine foundation in black and white, with a flower design of pink shadowed with pearl gray.

Colored brocades, especially those having black grounds, are handsome for dinner coat basques worn with odd black skirts.

Frederic Ives, the former young Napoleon of finance, is living quietly in New York and devoting his attention to the acquiring of another fortune. He is the same well dressed, suave and self confident character that he was before his fall.

Senator Berry, of Arkansas, who is serving his second term, was a poor boy. In young manhood he made an earnest effort to rub off the rough corners by hard study, and through pluck and enterprise laid the foundation of future prosperity.

J. A. Tennant, of Norfolk, Va., has lately been offered $1,500 for a watch which has been in his family 173 years. The offer was declined. On the dial is engraved: "William Tennant, 1718." The watch was made in London, and still keeps good time.

Liszt's watch is now owned by a musician named Grosso, who bought it of Solomon Isaacs, who bought it of Mr. Friedheim, who received it as a present from Liszt, who received it as a present from the duke of Saxe-Weimar forty years ago. It is extremely small.

Professor William James, of Harvard, who is becoming almost as famous out of college as in because of his interest in psychology and in societies for psychological research, is a brother of Henry James, Jr., the novelist. The father of these two famous sons is a preacher.

Justin McCarthy is a gray haired, bushy bearded, mild mannered little gentleman of 59 and wears spectacles. He is gifted with much energy, which finds vent in various ways, being at once a politician, editorial writer, novelist and historian. He is profoundly courteous.

The New Science.

Mrs. Sweetly—I have been reading an article that says that they can tell character by the teeth.

Mr. Sweetly—Ah, well, that accounts for it.

Mrs. Sweetly—Accounts for what?

Mr. Sweetly—Why, this morning a tramp came up to the house, saw yours lying on the window sill, and then turned and ran.—Boston Courier.

Internally, turpentine has enjoyed for a century the reputation of being a specific for sciatica. Its mode of operation is unknown, but that it cures stands as proof of its virtue. Ten drops three times a day in sweetened water is the dose.

A bath in a half pint of turpentine and two pounds of sal soda in an ordinary bath tub, three-quarters full of water, at 100 degs. Fahrenheit, will cure the itch when other remedies fail. Three or four baths, one daily, are usually sufficient.

For burns turpentine is invaluable, applied either with a rag or in a salve. The pain vanishes, and healthy granulation soon begins. Its use is at first attended with considerable smarting, but the permanent good more than compensates for it.

In the early stages of croup or almost any throat or chest trouble turpentine is well nigh a specific. Rub the chest and throat until the skin is red, then tie a piece of flannel or cotton batting over the chest moistened with a few drops of the oil, and inhale the vapor.

As an inhalation, turpentine has proved of great service in bronchitis, pneumonia, pleurisy and other throat and lung affections. If you have a cough, sprinkle a little on a handkerchief and hold it to your mouth and nose for a few minutes, breathing the vapor, and note the relief.

Turpentine, in which is dissolved as much camphor as it will take up, is pre-eminently the dressing for lacerations, bruises and cuts. Its antiseptic action is equal to that of carbolic acid; it speedily stops the bleeding. Few, if any ulcers, long resist its continued application.

Joaquin Miller has already set out more than 20,000 trees in the vicinity of his home, "The Heights," near Oakland, Cal. Not until he has satisfied his taste for tree planting does he intend to return to literary work.

Lord Lytton (better known to the world of letters as Owen Meredith) is the present British ambassador in Paris. His Sunday morning breakfasts, at which he brings together the greatest literary and diplomatic lights, are the talk of the town.

Jerome K. Jerome, the humorist, is only 30 years old. He is good looking, has brown hair that is rumpled over his high forehead, a thick, drooping mustache, good straight nose and a large head. He lives in Chelsea Gardens and his house overlook London.

Parnell—The deposed Irish leader has not an Irish name. It comes from Italy and is derived from Petronilla, a pretty stone, and also as an immodest girl.

Vanderbilt is Dutch, from van, a hatchet or bill. The ship carpenters in Amsterdam were nicknamed the hyitje, the hatchet or bill men. Van, the Dutch for bill, a word of. Hence Van die bill, or of the bill men.

Pattison—This is an Irish name and means the son of Patrick. The name Patterson is the same. Patrick is derived from the Latin Patricious, meaning noble, a senator. The name was bestowed upon the eldest sons of the Roman senators.—American Notes and Queries.

Heard on the Street.

While walking along the street one night,
Along the busy street so bright,
There was something struck me as very queer,
And that was the amount of slang you hear.

The rich, the poor, the young, the old,
The dude, the beggar and the policeman bold—
All shout "Come off," "You are crazy,"
"What are you giving us?" "She's a daisy,"
"Give us a rest," and "Break away."
"Just hear all that samples of wind they say.

The bureau of the American republics at Washington has information that Dr. Antonio Quijarro, representing a syndicate of Bolivian and European capitalists, has submitted to the government of Bolivia a plan for a railway system for that republic. The Quijarro plan embraces three lines of road.

A curious incident has come to light in a California railroad bridge accident. Eggs are usually looked upon as very fragile freight, and yet in this instance, where the train jumped and many injured, a case of eggs was carried down from the bridge by the falling car to the boggy ground beneath, a distance of twenty feet, and not a single egg was broken. In the case there were less than thirty-six dozen eggs, packed in the usual manner.

Several railroads in the Central Traffic association territory have been heavy losers financially on account of carrying theatrical and opera troupes on a guarantee basis, the rate for transportation when the troupe reached a certain place and played a performance. The general passenger agents of all the roads have now issued positive instructions to all agents to carry no opera or theatrical troupes unless the cash is forthcoming before the actors loosed the train.

GRAND ENGLISH OPERA at POPULAR PRICES

The season of English Opera under the direction of Jas. W. Morrissey at this theatre, commencing May 25th, will continues for six weeks. Already the subscription list is quite large among them being a number of our noted opera-goers and as the opera to be given will have the advantage of remarkably good caste of singers, appropriate scenery, new costumes and a large chorus and orchestra, they will no doubt be well attended by the general public, which is always ready to hear such melodious works at popular prices. Verdi's masterwork, "Il Trovatore," will be the first opera, which will be given for one week, after which "Carmen," "Martha," "Faust," "Bohemian Girl" and "Zaola" (the Birde of Lammermoor), will each have one week's run. Among the singers who will appear are: Miss Camille Maori, Miss Louise Nodali, Miss Bella Tomlins, Miss Fanny Meyers, Miss Stella Beaumont and Mme. Pauline l'Allemande. Mr. Charles Bassett, Mr. Frank Baxter, Mr. A. Montigriffo, Mr. William Ferguson, Signor G. Tadiquiletta, Mr. W. H. Clark and Mr. William Ludwig, the world's greatest bass. There will be a chorus of thirty, and a grand orchestra, comprising, with soloists, chorus, ballet and orchestra, 125 people, it being thoroughly demonstrated by the success of former seasons at the Grand Opera House that English Opera has become requisite, and that the masterworks of the most eminent composers of the Italian, French and German schools, produced in our own language, is a delight to our music-loving public. The management will excel in magnitude and excellence all previous efforts in the giving of English Grand Opera in this city.

DON'T FORGET IT

The Grand Annual Benefit of the Attaches of this Theatre will take place on Monday night, May 25th, being the first night of the Opera Season "Il Trovatore." Seats now on sale for this Benefit Performance at Box Office, or can be had of any of the Attaches.

Eggs are usually looked upon as very fragile freight, but in this instance, where lives were lost and many injured, a case of eggs was carried down from the bridge in the falling car to the boggy ground below, a distance of twenty feet, and not a single egg was broken. In the case there were no less than thirty-six dozen eggs, packed in the usual manner.

Among the singers who will appear are: Miss Camilla Maori, Miss Lonise Natali, Miss Bella Tomline, Miss Fanny Moyers, Miss Stella Beanmont and Miss Emilia D'Allemande. Mr. Charles Bassett, Mr. Frank Batter, Mr. A. Montigriffo, Mr. William Ferguson, Signor G. Taglapietra, Mr. W. H. Oark and Mr William Ludwig, the world's greatest bass. There will be a chorus of thirty, and a grand orchestra, comprising, with soloists, chorus, ballet and orchestra, 135 people, it being thoroughly demonstrated by the success of former seasons at the Grand Opera House that English Opera has become requisite, and that the masterworks of the most eminent composers of the Italian, French and German schools, produced in our own language, is a delight to our music-loving public. The management will excel in magnitude and excellence all previous efforts in the giving of English Grand Opera in this city.

DON'T FORGET IT.

The Grand Annual Benefit of the Attaches of this Theatre will take place on Monday night, May 25th, being the first night of the Opera Season "Il Trovatore." Seats now on sale for this Benefit Performance at Box Office, or can be had of any of the Attaches.

The Great Music Festival.

HELD IN NEW YORK, MAY, 1882

NEW YORK, MAY, 1882.

INTRODUCTION.

The first musical festival given on a large scale was probably "The Handel Commemoration," held in Westminster Abbey, London, Eng., on May 26, 1784, and four following days. Dr. Burney states that the idea originated with Lord Fitzwilliam, Sir W. W. Wynn and Joah Bates, who felt that the one hundredth anniversary of Handel's death afforded a fit and proper opportunity for exhibiting the united strength and talent of the eminent musicians then resident in the British metropolis, and at the same time paying a tribute to the memory of the great composer. An orchestra was erected in the Abbey capable of accommodating 500 performers, and the success of the performances may be inferred from the fact that the profits realized after the payment of all expenses amounted to £27,000 ($135,000), which were devoted to charitable purposes. The positions assigned in the orchestra to the vocal and instrumental performers, being somewhat peculiar, the plan, extracted from a pamphlet published at the time, and which appears in the next page, will doubtless be found interesting.

The Triennial Handel Celebrations now held at the Crystal Palace on so gigantic a scale are, in fact, simply a revival of the performances thus inaugurated, with the aid of enormously increased resources. During the present century musical festivals, on a large scale, devoted to the performance of important works by various composers, have been established both in Germany and England, and it is gratifying to find that in each succeeding year they are becoming more frequent.

The present New York Festival is the greatest musical event of which this country can boast, not only on account of the colossal scale on which it is planned, but for the comprehensive nature of the performances. The skilfully constructed programs containing specimens of almost every school of composition of varied nationality, selected with rare discrimination.

It may, therefore, be fairly pronounced that these notable concerts will outrival in interest and artistic value any similar series ever given either in America or Europe. The educational importance of this Festival, too, cannot be overestimated, more especially as many works included in the general scheme are of such exceptional magnitude that their worthy interpretation demands accessories altogether beyond ordinary resources, and consequently the opportunity of adequately realizing the composer's intentions as its integrity is rarely afforded.

The great choral works will be heard at the four evening performances, as well as vocal and instrumental compositions of exclusively classical character. The three afternoon concerts, on the other hand, are devoted to works of varied style, although nothing is excluded that can detract from the dignity of the entire scheme. One interesting and valuable feature is the chronological Italian program, which contains specimens of compositions produced by various composers, from Gorelli to Bazzini. The Wagner Recital is also specially noteworthy, as the magnificent corps of instrumentalists under Mr. Theodore' command will enable him to render the modern master's magnificent orchestration in a befitting manner. The engagement of Frau Materna, Wagner's chief prima donna, also serves to render this concert remarkable, her interpretation of "Brünnhilde's Immolation" bringing us almost into direct contact with the composer himself.

The engagement of the best soloists available also affords proof, if such were needed, of the earnest desire of the promoters of the Festival to adopt every means within their power to insure a successful result.

The New York Chorus is augmented by the Brooklyn Philharmonic Chorus, the Handel and Haydn Society of Boston, the Worcester County Music Association, the Cecilian Society of Philadelphia, the Baltimore Oratorio Society and the Handel Choral Society, representing a magnificent total of 3,300 thoroughly trained singers.

The Orchestra numbers three hundred picked players, and with so energetic and capable a chief as Mr. Theodore Thomas, a great artistic success is a foregone conclusion.

The construction of the monster platform for the accommodation of this musical army has been undertaken by Mr. Wm. Wood, who has exhausted every expedient in order to overcome acoustic difficulties.

It gradually rises in steps, each of which has a double floor, so that the singers are placed on a series of resonating boxes. The whole structure is built up to the wall of the building, instead of leaving an unoccupied depth of thirty feet as on a former occasion, and a velarium is erected above. An organ built especially for the occasion by Mr. Hilborne L. Roosevelt is placed beneath the orchestra, the keyboard being assigned a place immediately in front of the conductor's desk, and the necessary connection with the instrument effected by means of the electric system.

The following is the complete list of principal vocalists:

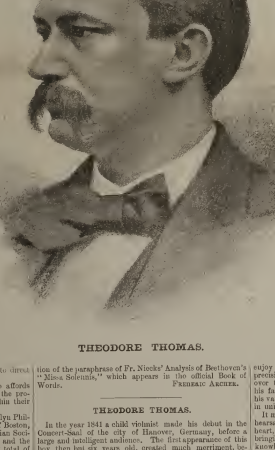
FREDERIC ARCHER.



THEODORE THOMAS.

In the year 1841 a child violinist made his debut in the Concert-Saal of the city of Hanover, Germany, before a large and intelligent audience. The first appearance of this boy, then but six years old, created much merriment, because the violin he held in his little fingers was scarcely smaller than its owner. The humor of the audience, however, soon changed to astonishment, as his playing revealed a wonderful technique. His face exhibited an earnest expression, as well as unusual self-possession, both of which indicated a determination to devote himself with ardor to the divine art. It may be said here that this boy was no other than Theodore Thomas.

His father was a violinist of some reputation, and naturally had given him a certain amount of elementary instruction; but the Thomas family being in somewhat limited circumstances, the father could not devote to this promising son that attention so desirable and necessary. Notwithstanding the boy's tender age he studied by himself, not only hours but entire days, and thus made as rapid progress as was possible under the circumstances.

In 1845 the family emigrated to the United States. A few months afterward Theodore Thomas appeared in a number of concerts in New York; these concerts covering a space of two years. He achieved a great success as a soloist, by which means his name first began to be known to the musical public of the country. From New York he went South, traveling until 1851. On his return to the metropolis he obtained equal success as formerly. During the La Grange Opera season he was selected leader of the orchestra, under the conductorship of Arditi, at the Academy of Music.

From this time up to 1861 he filled the positions of leader and conductor in various German and Italian troupes, among whom were such celebrities as Jenny Lind, Sontag, Grisi, Mario, etc. In 1861 he severed his connection with the theatre. As early as 1855 Mr. Thomas, in conjunction with Wm. Mason, Jos. Mosenthal, Geo. Matzka and Carl Bergmann, had begun his memorable chamber music concerts, which were followed by Prof. Berge and Fry (replacing the place of Bergmann in 1861). These unique concerts did much toward promoting the taste for really art-works in this country and all the more deserved commendation from the fact that financial success was a secondary and never-attained aim. During the Winter of 1862-3 the Brooklyn Philharmonic Society elected Mr. Thomas as conductor, a position he has held almost uninterruptedly up to the present time. In 1864-5 he gave his first series of Symphony concerts, and though at first they were but moderately successful in a pecuniary sense, they were greatly enjoyed, and continued up to 1869. For three years they were abandoned to be resuscitated, however, in 1872, and this by request of numerous influential citizens, and were only discontinued in 1878, when Mr. Thomas left New York to become director of the Cincinnati College of Music.

We must not forget to state that in 1866, in order to secure that perfection of execution which an orchestra can only attain by constantly practicing together, Mr. Thomas inaugurated his nightly Summer concerts, given sometimes in one locality, sometimes in another, chiefly, however, at the old Central Park Garden. In 1869 the first tour was made through the Eastern and Western States, with an orchestra of only forty musicians, a year or so afterwards increased to sixty performers.

After Theodore Thomas had been at Cincinnati for the period of one year, he was unanimously re-elected conductor of the New York Philharmonic Society, which position he had filled during the season of 1877-78, and which he has since held with the most remarkable success. Five great Musical Festivals have already been given under his direction at Cincinnati, to which are soon to be added the three immense May Festivals of the present year, the first one in New York, the second in Cincinnati, and the third in Chicago.

Those only who have seen Theodore Thomas in his studio, or who have attended his private orchestral rehearsals, can fully appreciate his rare qualities as a conductor. First and foremost may be mentioned his great gift for defining every bodies of voices or instruments. He has that personal magnetism which commands attention, and which secures the admiration of every one who performs under his direction. Those who attend and practice are always astonished at the wonderful precision attained, and the complete command he exhibits over the performers. He waves his baton gracefully, while his face, unseen by the public, is full of animation, and his varying expressions show that his whole soul is entirely in unison with the work in hand.

It may be here remarked that even before the first rehearsal of a new work, Mr. Thomas knows the score by heart, and can devote his undivided attention to bringing out its poetic meaning. Because of this knowledge, and his profound, intuitive, artistic self-control such player who comprehends and instinctively realizes the conceptions of his chief. Furthermore, his rare musical organization is displayed in his innate sense of tone color and effect.

It will readily be understood that the trials of Mr. Thomas have been of no ordinary kind. He has worked and toiled for the cause of music as an old and prominent member of the New York Philharmonic Society. His programs have invariably displayed his broad, cosmopolitan taste, always including interesting novelties. That his endeavor has always been to educate and elevate the musical taste of the public goes without saying, and because of his tenacious perseverance in this direction it may truly be asserted that he has done more than any other single person for the pre-enjoy his concerts are always astonished at the wonderful precision attained, and the complete command he exhibits over the performers. He waves his baton gracefully, while his face, unseen by the public, is full of animation, and his varying expressions show that his whole soul is entirely in unison with the work in hand.

FRAU AMALIA FRIEDRICH-MATERNA.

Amalia Materna was born in 1847, in St. George, a small market town in Styria; her father was a schoolmaster, pecuniarily devoted to music. Also, or perhaps was, customary in the remote German provinces, a player upon all instruments, some of them with virtuosity.

Naturally, his children were more conversant with things musical. The little Amalia, in her ninth year, rang in the musical masses in the little church of St. George, and soon became known and welcomed as a soloist in the neighborhood.

Her father died while her talent was only in the first stage of its development. She had no means for the pursuit of her further culture. An attempt to obtain instruction from the Vienna professor, Gentilhomo, failed, because he demanded such a fee as the poor widowed mother of Amalia could not afford to pay. She was thus compelled to prosecute her studies by herself. She found a friend and helper in a brother, who was a schoolmaster in St. Peter's, in Upper Styria. There, while keeping house for her brother, she took part in the services of the church, and her singing won for her the affections of the townsfolk. She relates a touching trait of this affection. When her eldest brother, who was settled in Gratz, invited his widowed mother and his sister to come to him, the people of St. Peter's subscribed the sum of 120 gulden to retain her with them. The sum seems trifling, but it must be judged by the humble circumstances of those who offered it. She preferred, however, to proceed to Gratz. Here the pupil of nature came into contact with circles artistically cultivated, and inspired, professional judges there thought that Amalia had a genuine soprano voice, while she herself preferred to appear as a soprano in churches, concerts and private soirées. The present writer pass of her voice shows sufficiently how correctly she judged herself. The verve she displayed in these performances induced Oberstein, the director of the Theater an der Wien, to engage her for operetta at his house, at a salary which, the past few years she has occupied the position of the leading oratorio soprano in England, taking a prominent part in nearly all important performances of the kind. She is also in great request as a ballad-singer. It is her intention to prolong the present visit to her native country for twelve months, in compliance with the wishes of her many friends. But she will be heartily welcomed on her return to the "old country" nevertheless.

MR. GEORG HENSCHEL.

This admirable artist was born in Breslau, on the 18th of February, 1850. He studied the pianoforte in Leipzig, under Moscheles, and singing with Götze, in the same city, and afterwards with Schulze in Berlin. He made his first public appearance as a pianist, in the Saxon capital city, when but twelve years of age, and his precocious ability attracted great attention. He was engaged in frequent auditions at the Conigas Festival, in 1874, given under the direction of Herr ed Ferdinand Hiller. His success was so marked that his services were afterwards secured by the directors of the Berlin and Vienna festivals, where he gained fresh laurels. In England he is also highly esteemed as a vocalist. In addition to his other acquirements, he is a composer of considerable merit, and has lately made his début as conductor of orchestral conductor, by undertaking the direction of the Boston Symphony Concerts. He is a most finished pianoforte singer, and vocalizes with remarkable fluency and ease.

MISS EMILY WINANT.

This young and rising contralto is the fortunate possessor of a contralto voice of great beauty, and thanks to the successful training she received from the late Mme. Rudersdorff, her method in all that could be wished for. She holds a position in the choir of St. Thomas' Church, in this city, where her services are highly valued. She first exerted public opinion as one of Hennyey's concerts, in November, 1878, and has since been frequently heard at the concerts of the Philharmonic and Symphony concerts and elsewhere, with tolerable frequency. Her engagement for the Festival Orchestra was a graceful compliment to the young artist, and will doubtless be esteemed by her as an important event in her artistic career.

MISS HATTIE SCHELL.

La Crosse, Wisconsin, is Miss Schell's birthplace, but she has passed much of her time in Europe. During her sojourn in Vienna she entered the Conservatorium as a student and was successful in gaining a first prize for singing. Her artistic qualifications entitle her to favorable mention. She possesses a soprano voice of remarkably bright quality of tone, which she uses with discretion and intelligence.

Her contemplated appearance in Italy was upon under the name of Signora Brambilla, was for some unexplained reason not consulted, but she has sung in opera at intervals during her stay abroad, and considerable curiosity was manifested by New York amateurs when it was announced that Mlle. Mapleson was announced. They were, however, destined to be disappointed.

MR. FRANZ REMMERTZ.

Mr. Remmertz is a native of Düsseldorf, and devoted his earlier years to the study of architecture. Later in life he gave music indeed him to abandon his legitimate occupation and cultivate his musical gifts, for which purpose he removed to Munich. His first public essay in his new vocation was in opera, but this he speedily abandoned in favor of the concert room. He came to New York when the Franz Act came to this country she took part in several concerts given under his direction, and proved herself to be a charming interpreter of German lieder. She now enjoys a fair reputation as an oratorio and concert singer.

MR. THEODORE J. TOEDT

Mr. Toedt was born in New York, and as a boy assisted in the choir at Trinity Church. He is indebted to his sister as a solo violinist, for his musical education, who performed her self-imposed duty with conscientious care. His voice is of pleasant quality, and of limited power. He has already appeared frequently as an oratorio and concert singer in the principal cities of the Union, with a fair amount of success. He is also a member of the choir at St. Bartholomew's Church.

MR. OSCAR STEINS.

Mr. Steins is a prominent member of the Liederkranz, and can boast of a voice of considerable power. He first appeared in New York, but settled in St. Louis in 1868. His sang at the Inaugural Concert, in the Coliseum, Music Hall, Chicago, and also in Max Bruch's "Odysus," on the occasion of the performance of that work in St. Louis.

MR. DUDLEY BUCK

The duties of organist on an occasion like the present do not afford an artist any opportunity of individually distinguishing himself, but they nevertheless test his musicality qualities to a greater extent than the general public realizes. Mr. Buck's reputation as one of the most prominent American organists and composers is too well known to need comment. His engagement is a worthy recognition of his nationality and artistic standing. He received his musical education at the Leipzig Conservatoire, where he was a fellow-student with Arthur Sullivan.

FIRST EVENING CONCERT.

TUESDAY, MAY 30.

PART I.

CANTATA. "A Stronghold Sure" ..... BACH
Miss ANNIE LOUISE CARY. MR. WILLIAM CANDIDUS.
MR. S. W. WHITNEY.
CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, ORGAN.

The vocal works of John Sebastian Bach have hitherto been most unworthily neglected, especially in England and America. It is only within the past few years that the fact has been recognized, and his glorious Mass, in B minor, one of the most erudite, and at the same time lofty conceived works ever penned, as well as the Matthew Passion-Music, have been unearthed, and accorded a place in the repertoire of a leading musical society in America. The Cantata now which he bequeathed to posterity upwards of 200, are strangely unknown, even to the majority of educated musicians, and although many of them, written in haste and probably never intended for publication, contain some of the churches for which they were destined, are somewhat uninteresting, the majority contain some of the finest examples of the great composer's skill.

One of the duties of his position as Cantor of the Thomas-schule, Leipzig, was the composition of musical portion of the ecclesiastical services not only at the old Thomas-kirche, but elsewhere, and to this circumstance these Cantatas owe their existence.

It was the custom for the pastors of the various churches to supply the words for a sufficient number to cover an entire year, the respective organists to set the selected poetry to the music.

In examining these works of the old master, movements so complex and difficult are so constantly met with, that it seems scarcely possible they could have been rendered by an ordinary choir and orchestra.

Polyphonic complexity was, however, Bach's natural means of expression, and this he found the constant freedom with which the parts move and the evident absence of effort in the general construction of his works. He wrote in ten or twelve real parts, with far greater facility than the average student writes in four or five ordinary four-part composition; and at times, confident in the exuberance of his strength, he apparently propounds musical problems of the most astounding character, only to prove how easily he can solve them. One interesting example of this kind of thing is worth quoting. It is only necessary to explain that Bach's part writing is of such a kind that it seems scarcely impossible to add to or take anything from it, it is so perfectly complete as it stands. The "Gloria" in his Mass in A, which is taken from one of his Cantatas (Halt an Gerechtesten Gen Christ) here appears with the addition of a four-part chorus of instruments, added to what was originally an orchestral interlude or vocal solo, to say nothing of the circumstance that he has in many places supplied entirely different accompaniments, changing a note of the orchestration. Such a feat as this seems absolutely incredible, did not the fact stand in evident accomplishment. His orchestration is also interesting, differing from that of his contemporaries in the use of the various mechanical aspects of wind instruments. The Saxon composer seldom employed any excepting oboes, and "trumpets" the strings as a general rule. In the works of Bach, however, the wind is an equally important feature as the stringed band; he also appears constantly to be trying the effect of new combinations, and in the Cantata selected as the opening number of the Festival, there are many points of interest, that is to be met with in any of Handel's oratorios.

Lovers of his music must also satisfy gather from this desire to produce contrasted effect some idea of the manner in which he would have approved of the treatment of many modern instruments, in spite of conservative tradition, which in our own day too often hinders the healthy development of musical art and invention.

The orchestral instruments employed in his time have, many of them, fallen into disuse, or reappeared under a changed nomenclature. On this point the writer of the official analytical program has fallen into much confusion, and therefore a few words on the subject appear to be necessary. The trumpet of which Bach and Handel write, has not been superseded by the cornet, which is an instrument of totally different construction, compass, tone and general character, and which has no right to a place in the list of any classical orches ra. The legitimate trumpet has, however, been improved by the invention of the valves, and difficulties the player has to encounter.

The ancient instruments which were often written up to C and D (real sounds), are really practicable on the modern instrument, if a suitable mouthpiece were employed, but the player is compelled very frequently to to met with would decrye the command of "tip" necessary for the performance of many written in the present day. If Mr. Thomas, instead of transposing the trumpet parts in the Cantata, had employed the high cadenzas in B flat, or soprano saxhorns in E flat, which any of the cornet players in the orchestra could have executed without difficulty, it would have afforded a far better opportunity of obtaining the nearest possible reproduction of the effect intended by Bach. The viol d'amour is not always obsolete, seeing that Meyerbeer employs it obligato in the first tenor air of the first act in "Les Huguenots," and Wagner has often heard (the original instrument being used) charmingly played by Mr. Schirmer, of the Conservatory of Music of Boston, in London.

The "taille" has not "fallen into utter desuetude," seeing that it is a French technical term, signifying tenor voice, tenor part, or VIOLA.

The oboe d'amour was of more subdued tone than the ordinary instrument of that name. It stood in A, a minor third lower than the oboe, as is evident from the manner in which it is written for, as a transposing instrument, so that the part can be performed by a clarinet in A without alteration of the copy.

The oboe da caccia, or "Hunting Oboe," was of a more than usually powerful quality of tone, probably resembling in this respect a C clarinet.

Allusion is made to those instruments, as the absence of nearly all of them from the modern orchestra has rendered it necessary for Mr. Thomas to supply their place by the substitution of others readily available. It would, of course, be unfair to estimate the effect of these additions and alterations until public performance renders it possible to form a conclusive opinion. One fact, however, is evident. The work has been done conscientiously, and with due reverence for the great composer's intention, so far as we can judge from the confused statements of the official annotator, before alluded to, whose knowledge of the subject whereon he writes is somewhat limited, or he would not, amongst other blunders, describe a contra fagotto as "in unison with organ pedal," which is simply meaningless. Had he said, 16 feet organ pitch, his statement would have been intelligible.

The Cantata itself consists in its entirety of eight movements, but numbers two and four will be omitted on the occasion, as they are all adapted for performance in so large a building as the armory. The most important portion of the work is the first chorus, which is fugal in character, the Lutheran chorale "A safe stronghold" (also used by Meyerbeer in "Les Huguenots") appearing as a canto ferme in the orchestra at intervals. The first noticeable feature in the Fugue is the ingenious use of the first phrase of the chorale as a "counter-subject," in varied guise. The first division of the chorus is then given alone on a florid theme, and another subject is immediately announced by the basses, which, after the manner of a regular fugue, is followed by another, given out by the alto. This is as specially displayed in favor of another favorite device of Bach, in notes of long phrases of the chorus in augmented form. Yet another "theme" appears, after which the material first used is wrought into a coda of grand and impressive character.

The official book states truthfully enough that this is a "vast fugue, built out of a variation of the chorale melody." This is an assertion that musicians will find it difficult to understand.

The bass recitative is of dignified character, the successions of accompanying chords being characterized by some noble "progressions." It ultimately assumes a rhythmic and melodic form, which increases the appearance of the verbal text in the most marvelous manner.

The entire air is then given out by the combined chorus in unison, with a contrapuntal background in 6-8 assigned to the orchestra. A recitative unaccompanied to the former one succeeds, and a harmonized version of the chorale in its complete form, given out by the combined force of chorus, band and organ, brings the work to a worthy termination.

The exact date of its composition is not known, but it is generally supposed to have been written for the "Reformation Festival," in the year 1730.

N. B.—As this is an American Festival, it has been deemed advisable to adapt the original language to a version of words of most sonorous when translation is necessary in all cases, rather than adopt a polyglot system, the latter being found to be perfect in many instances by the use of the particular language adopted by the singer.

JUPITER SYMPHONY (No. 41 in C.) ..... MOZART. 1756-1791
Allegro Vivace—Andante Cantabile—Menuetto. Allegretto—Trio—
Finale, Molto Allegro.

This is the last of the extended series of symphonic works produced by Mozart. It was begun in fifteen days and entered by the author under date August 10, 1788, in the record of all his compositions, which he regularly kept. The companion symphonies in G minor and E flat were also the product of the forty-third year, an addition to many other compositions, both vocal and instrumental.

Many are the stories of rapid compositions that dazzle us in the history of musical art, but this, perhaps, of all, is the most amazing, since the immediate succession of one masterpiece to another would seem to show that the composer's mind had no intervals of rest—it shows equally that he had no need for reflection or for the moment for arranging the ideas which sprang, seemingly, fully mature into existence.

The high number assigned to this, the last of Mozart's symphonies—as it is undoubtedly the last—may be surprising to those who know the work as one of a particular number of symphonies. It is the custom of the entire series set given in D. L. Ritter von Köchel's, thematic catalogue, which places the musical period in dispute.

The name of "Jupiter," by which it is known in England only, is said to have been conferred on it by J. B. Cramer, who sought thereby to adequately express his unbounded admiration for its manifold beauties.

The first movement, contrary to orthodox rule, is unheralded by any introductory matter. The initial phrases express a twofold idea, that, once started on its adventures, appears and reappears throughout the coming tale so often, under such variety of aspect, and in such unexpected relationship to other themes, as to constitute it the chief subject in importance, even as it is the first in order. The counter stream that is presently built upon the subject often reappears with it, is involved in its complications, and has an obvious influence on its career. Not even Bach himself indulged in canonic imitations to a greater extent than did Mozart, whose lightest and most graceful thoughts must have occurred to him in the form of subject and answer. Observe the response of the basses in the second theme of this movement, and escape from the pleasantry, if you can, that is set forth in its mock gravity. Our ever promised first subject is busy here, and has obvious concern in what issues from this new source of interest. A stirring incident is the fore of all the orchestra upon a chromatic chord, that follows a silence; and this is strengthened in effect when it recurs, in the second part, by the continuance of the chromatic character in the succeeding bars. Regard the whole piece as a narrative—the analogy may be extended—and then the theme of the tenor, the part in the plot; and this sequel to, or offshoot from the second subject, must be taken largely into account, for it is the main figure in the entanglement of the second part.

The Andante derives peculiar tone, and peculiar character consequently, from the muting of the violins, which gives a mysterious sound to these instruments that is full of suggestion. The chief subject is at first given simply; on its repetition the principal third is changed to the basses, when the incidental resting-places are filled up with a passage of semiquavers in the upper part, and, when this theme reappears, these extreme parts are inverted. The second subject brings sweet repose with its continuous melody, and the enchantment of dominant chords that follows has an effect as new now and as delicious as if it had never been imitated, which is but almost equivalent to saying it never will be. Another still than the chain of seventhsin its sequent phrase within its delightful dispersion into the key of E, and upon which the close the First Part, and is duly repeated at the end of the movement, ruling the separate voices by the progression.

The next movement is considerably lighter in style than the rest, but the charm of its melody holds the attention so as to make it impossible to observe the absence of elaboration. Perfectly magical is the effect of the very simple course of modulation which introduces the minority of the Trio, winding its way into the very centre of our contentment, and settling at the present tense.

Where shall we look for a more wonderfully elaborate composition than the Finale, or where find a more fine mixture that supersedes search, a pace whose beauty more thoroughly marks the labor by which it was produced? The Fugue, built on four distinct subjects, is remarkable for being cast, as is the case with other of Mozart's fugues, in the form of a symphonic first movement, the development occurring in transition from the first to the second subject. The superb coda is begun with the announcement of the theme (the substitution of descending for ascending intervals), and a new series of complications and combinations all seem as trifling which has gone before. So densely is the music here welded, that the most unaccompanied passage cannot detect a moment which is not filled up by the principal or by counter themes. Genius and scholarship struggle for mastery throughout this noble movement, and seem but to stimulate the other to the utmost, and both are triumphant in the result. The composition is the most perfect climax to all the great works of its class its author has left us.

RECITATIVE AND ARIA, "Abscheuliche!" ("Perfido"). BEETHOVEN. Born at Bonn, in 1770. Died at Vienna, 1827.

RECIT.—To what new and unheard-of woe Will thy vengeance now induce thee? Oh, monster! can no touch of pity Or truth bend your heart of flint? But vain shall be your machinations: Heav'n's pressentiment of that is aware for, For his infamies, the Almighty A thing reserves with more than The end standing. Ah! I feel within me new hopes arise; An inward sense of coming happiness Bids me forget my woes.

Sweet, all-surpassing hope! Thou consolest the grief-worn soul In misery. Thou, thou, my 'soul Thou! Let it be, love the end can see! Let end me thither. Thou, thou, my 'soul Thou, thou, my 'soul Thou! Let me fall at your feet Still on my dark way diffuse its Still not yet quite Thy far the goal, true love Thy far the goal, true love The end standing. Soon will thy true wife thy end! Thou, thou, my 'soul Thou!

ARIA.—O hope, dear solace of the desolate!

This magnificent Scena is admirably adapted to reveal the grand and massive style of Frau Materna.

The opening Recitative contains a wealth of dramatic force that has rarely been equalled. The succeeding Andante is replete with suppressed emotion, and the interesting nature of its accompaniment adds greatly to the effect in no slight degree. The impulsive and impassioned Allegro, in which the unfortunate Fidelio gives full expression of renewed confidence in the success of her plans to effect the deliverance of her husband, is brilliant throughout in noble effort. It is but rarely that an artist can effectually overcome the difficulties here encountered, which so severely test ordinary resources, that Frau Materna's appearance of so trying an Aria will undoubtedly arouse unusual enthusiasm.

INTERMISSION.

"UTRECHT JUBILATE".....HANDEL.

Soon after Handel's sojourn in London he was commissioned to compose a grand Te Deum and Jubilate to celebrate the peace of Utrecht, which was concluded in March, 1713, and ceremony on July 7th, 1713, and he was afterwards allotted a pension of £200 a year by Queen Anne's command, in recognition of the manner in which he fulfilled his task.

The original edition was issued by the Sacred Harmonic, and an incorrect version was afterwards published by Breitkopf & Härtel in Leipzig.

Robert Franz has made some unimportant alterations in the original score and has added, with injudicious liberality, a plentiful supply of the brazen clarinet, which accompanies the solo and sonorous character of the choral effects.

The work needs but little detailed remark, its general plan and intention being so clearly expressed as to be readily intelligible. It opens with a short overture, and afterwards in a harmonized form intoned as a chorus, rolling on the dominant by way of preparation for a fugal setting of the second half of the first verse of the Psalm, which, commencing in four parts, concludes with a Coda in five parts. It is quite in the Handelian style, and remarkable for the breadth of the choral writing. The solo numbers are somewhat trivial and uninteresting, but ample amends is made in the massive fugue on the words "O go your way," which is one of the finest choruses Handel ever wrote. The first half of the Gloria Patria is given out in sustained chords with 8 part harmony by the chorus, accompanied by orchestral phrases that the composer has used in other works with tolerable frequency. The remainder of the verse is treated fugally in five parts, to which the stately utterances of the Coda in slower tempo, form a worthy climax.

The entire composition is admirably adapted for its purpose, and serves to exhibit the tonal strength of the choral and instrumental forces engaged in its performance.

I. SOLO AND CHOIR. CHOIR. Andante. Be joyful in the Lord, all ye lands.

II. CHORUS. Serve the Lord with gladness, and come before His presence with a song.

III. DUET (Miss Cary and Mr. Brocher.) Be ye sure that the Lord He is God. It is He that hath made us and not we ourselves. We are His people and the sheep of His pasture.

IV. CHORUS. Oh, go your ways His gates into with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise. Be thankful unto him and speak good of His name.

V. TRIO (Miss Cary, Mr. Tivoli and Mr. Brocher.) For the Lord is gracious, His mercy is everlasting, and His Truth endureth from generation to generation.

VI. CHORUS. Glory be to the Father, Glory be to the Son, and to the Holy Ghost, as it was in the beginning, is now, and ever shall be, world without end. Amen.

FIRST AFTERNOON CONCERT.

WEDNES AY, MAY 31.

"IPHIGENIA IN AULIS".....GLUCK. Born 1714. Died 1787.

Overture.

SCENE I.—Diana Impiorgnida.....Signor Galassi

In presenting this work we endeavored to carry out in his operas, Gluck says:

"I wished to confine the art of music to its real object—that of aiding the effect of poetry by giving greater expression to the words and scenes; but without detriment to the action of the plot, and to avoid cutting a cold figure, even by useless ornamentation; and I was of opinion that this ought to be adhered to in the same manner as brilliancy of color and judicious contrast of light and shade heighten the effect of correct and well-placed drawing, and give life and expression to the figures without effacing the outline."

Allusion is made to these principles to prove that the Wagnerian theory dates back to the time of this old composer. The latter is, perhaps, more impressionable in his day, and when Herder said "Some one must before long perfect this theory," he spoke truly, for the great "prophet of the future" has done all that was possible in that of Gluck.

The "Iphigenia in Aulis," the last of his operas, was produced in Paris in 1774, and in it he is remarkable for the absence of the formality and angularity of outline that prevailed in the old Italian compositions. Its dramatic power, immensely enhanced by a wealth of orchestration far in advance of the period, is also a conspicuous feature in the work.

The overture is a model of construction, and the opening Recitative and Aria are full of expressiveness, in which he refuses to place his candidate in the power of Cocksbus, as commanded by Diana, and, instead, offers a victim for help, afforded an admirable example of Gluck's dramatic power.

Diana unforgiven, in vain does thou require so tremendous an offering. Let the blood of Iphigenia not flow, I will be appeased by the tears that it sheds. Let it suffice that I see her bowed down by sorrow and that never for the wrong it has borne thee be avenged on it. Let it remember the flame with which it would have brought, if it were my life shall cost me. Never shall Calchas approach my best beloved daughter. Diana unforgiven, in vain does thou require.

Then God, Thou art of light the author, Canst Thou are a darkness to the suffering required! God full of grace, O here Thou my petition, By my daughter's tears, By all it, love the evil can see! Let end me thither. Diana then, Diana, my 'soul Diana, my 'soul Diana, my 'soul able for clearness and accurate characterization under the breadth of treatment.

OVERTURE. "Ruy Blas." MENDELSSOHN. 1839-40.

It is a somewhat singular circumstance that although this Overture was rescored several times by the composer, he failed to satisfy himself, and was altogether discontented with the work.

It appears remarkable when compared with his other works for the extensive use of the "brass," a department of the orchestra that Mendelssohn always regarded with aversion. However, the fact remains that it undoubtedly one of the most effective concert overtures that ever emanated from his pen.

The brilliant and impulsive Allegro, partly characterized by violin passages, which alternate with the impressive phrases formed of sustained chords given out by the brass, is in all respects worthy of his genius.

The enhancing beauty, too, of the second subject, which is one of those melodies that haunt the chambers of the memory—effectively introduced by a passage for the full sustained chords with which the overture opens—no less than the brilliance of the coda in the major key, which terminates the work in such exciting fashion, are features amply sufficient to render it noteworthy.

SECOND EVENING CONCERT

WEDNESDAY, MAY 2.

SYMPHONY IN C MINOR. No. 5 (Op 67). L. VAN BEETHOVEN. 1800-1807.

1. Allegro con brio
2. Andante con moto
3. Allegro, followed by
4. Allegro assai

The autograph of this work bears no date, and therefore it is impossible to state precisely when Beethoven composed what has been described as "the most popular symphony ever written. According to the evidence of the master's sketch book, the first rudimentary ideas of the subject were down as early as the year 1780, but not until 1818 did the perfected composition come forth to the public, much to the amusement, and eventually the admiration of a world.

The Symphony in C minor was first performed in a concert given in the Theater an der Wien, December 22, 1808, when also was produced the equally famous "Pastoral"—an glorious twin sister. Eight years later the work was first heard in Paris, to England, and was given at a Philharmonic Concert April 16, 1826, exciting at the outset a great deal of controversy, and in some cases opposition among those to whom the novelty of its style was a stumbling block.

The story goes that the first movement made the orchestra laugh, so men laugh at oddities—as the same orchestra laughed when Mendelssohn introduced Schubert's great Symphony in C. But ridicule cannot kill where there is the true vitality of genius, and the opening of the "C minor" in this country has since been a triumph, till now it is the best known and the most popular of all works in orchestral composition so we believe; none exerts such a strong, unfailing attraction, and none is better understood. Was ever good fortune more richly deserved by the work which, transcending the "Eroica" in grandeur, and the "B flat" in the height of its poetic flight, may be regarded Beethoven's gigantic proportions? "The Symphony in C minor," says Hector Berlioz, "leads us to consider directly and solely from the genius of Beethoven. It is his utmost thought that he is trying to realize in it, his secret griefs, his concentrated rages, his reveries, full of such sad brariness, his nocturnal visions, his bursts of enthusiasm, will furnish his subject; and the form of the work, the harmony, rhythm, and instrumentation will show themselves as essentially individual and as much above rule as genius is above mediocrity." Berlioz is right in saying that the "C minor" was the outpouring and record of Beethoven's own feelings, a record of personal experience given to the world in the language most natural to the composer. Only by looking at it in some such light can we become intelligible to ourselves, as nothing more than the abstract evolution of certain intellectual forces, it is impossible. "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin," and it was the personal character of Beethoven's great symphony which commended it to his fellow-poet, Goethe. Mendelssohn himself has told us how, when visiting the author of "Faust" in 1821, he played to him the first movement, notwithstanding the little regard for Beethoven which Goethe was known to entertain. The old man sat in a corner, "like a Jupiter Tonans, with his old eyes flashing fire," listened for a while and exclaimed: "That causes me emotion; it is quite astounding and grandiose." But Mendelssohn played on, till at length, after much muttering to himself, Goethe said: "The is very grand, quite wild, enough to make the house shake to the ears". In spite of his prejudice, the word poet recognized the utterances of the tone poet as those of a mind akin to, merely of a brain.

Nothing can describe the first movement better than the eloquent words of Hector Berlioz: "The first movement is dedicated to the painting of the disordered feelings which overthrow a great soul when a prey to violent grief, deep, concentated, calm despair which borrows the appearance of resignation, but shall murmur from time to time the heartrending of the death of Juliet, but rather the terrible fury of Othello receiving from the midst of his own passions calumnies which permeate him of the crime of Desdemona. It is now a frantic delirium, which breaks forth in frightful cries; now an excessive depression, which lets escape sighs of regret, and bewails itself. Listen to those hiccups of the orchestra, those dialogues between wind and stringed instruments, which come and go, always growing weaker, like the painful reproaches of love, which at last give place to a phrase full of violence, in which the orchestra seems to rally, animated by a flash of fury, see that shudderings pass hesitate for a moment, and then precipitate itself entire, divided into ten burning unisons, like two streams of lava, and say if it is possible to paint with more and above all that had been produced before in instrumental music."

Heard in sympathy with these remarks, what significance there is in the impassioned yet mysterious opening—mysterious because exciting expectation while doing absolutely nothing to guide it. When questioned as to the meaning of the unison phrase of four notes, Beethoven answered, "Thus Fate knocks at the door;" and truly "astonishing and grandiose," to use the words of Goethe, in the way in which the sumgmess is here musically interpreted. But across the stormy current of emotion a light soon flashes suggestive of rest and safety, in the form of the delicious subject interpreted by the violins, after having been ushered in, by a significant phrase from the Horns, who tenaciously adhere to the "hand of Fate" motive—to use a Wagnerian expression.

Having exhibited his two themes, he closes the first part of this movement almost abruptly. At the opening of the second part he again strikes like a hammer, subsequently making extensive use, in various forms, of the 4-note phrase, which is the keystone of the whole. An interruption of the second subject is speedily banished, the passage leading to one of exceeding mystery and interest formed by the extended use of the second and third bars of the horn phrase which prepared the way for the entry of the second subject in the first division of the movement. These two notes, with the addition of accompanying harmonies, are subjected to antiphonal treatment by the wood wind and strings, continuing thus for many bars, until the orchestra suddenly announces the return of the first subject in its retention tones. The pp. chords are once more heard, ist at length the instruments burst on the ear with tremendous power. The further progress of this extraordinary movement must be left to speak for itself. The Andante, which is in the form of a modified passion and tenderness which have characterized it thus far, is sustained to the final bar.

The principal melody of the Andante is announced, without preamble, by violas and 'cellos in unison, accompanied by the contra-bass pizzicato. Its exceeding tenderness and pensive charm need no word of eulogy; such music is eloquent on its own behalf. At length the wood wind responds, in graceful accents, the musical sentence thus commenced being concluded by the violins. The final bars frequently recur, with impressive persistency, without change of key or form, during which there is an alternation in the form of the subject to which it answers. The second section of the Andante is in the principal theme key, after which in a mysterious passage of sustained chords, in widely extended harmony, modulates back to the original tone. Next come the charmed, hushed tones with which the whole ends with an extremely interesting Coda, which, indeed, contains the gem of the entire movement, the entire movement.

A weird phrase for the brass-stringed instruments leads off the lively Scherzo, which is answered in gentle strains by the other instruments. After repetition in a slightly varied form, the opening phrase is given to them proper, first heard from the semi. An air of profound mystery pervades the musical atmosphere, till the Trio in the major key is reached, which is carried out a remarkable passage, which is taken up in turn by the other string departments, and finally, terminates in a unison of the first movement. Spohr was wont to say that these passages for the basses were "the finest and most original" for his time, and there can be no doubt that, when, first attempted, they puzzled the players even more than the audience. Now, however, they are accepts as a matter of course in the working out of a legitimate effect. At the close of the Trio, the first phrase is repeated, and the Scherzo concludes in Beethoven's power of invention. But the grand stroke occurs when an unexpected "flat" is struck by the violins, accompanied by the chord of A flat major. The tympani, however, take up the strain, and unusually sound it, as though they would call the strings to them.

The strings remain obstinate for some time, but the stresses of the C at length compel them to submit to circumstances, and the harmony slowly approaches the tone. Finally, as the tympani are heard in the distance, the Cmajor and louder, the violins at last adopt the rhythm they continuously maintain, until in the chord of the dominant seventh on G is sounded by the entire orchestra, and without any break, the Allegro finale is reached, the Trombones and Contra Fagotto here before for the first time increasing the sonority of the martial strains which carry the music from the region of mingled passion and grief to that of triumphant exultation, which is not even clouded, but rather intensified by a passage reference to the first subject, the second subject in almost play ful in its exuberant gladness, and affords the happiest contrast. The second subject immediately follows the interpolated passage from the Scherzo already referred to, and thereforward Beethoven uses his materials with a sustained grandeur of style in every way remarkable.

MISSA SOLEMNIS. In D major (Op. 123). . . . L. VAN BEETHOVEN

The historical points about Beethoven's Mass in D are to be remembered in order to understand its time or place. The external suggestion to its composition came from the appointment of the composer's friend, the Archduke Rudolph, of Austria, to be Bishop of Olmütz. The fact that this appointment was to be celebrated by a Mass placed the middle of the year 1818. Beethoven planned the mass for the ceremony of installation, and began working on it before the close of the year 1819. But the ceremony took place, however, in March, 1820, the sketches were not even finished, and the mass was not completed in time to be used after the ceremony for which it was originally designed. In this fact one discovers what is the key to the character of the work—rings of his mind during this long period, and especially the spirit and magnitude of his own work, there is a resounding testimony to the devotion of the creative artist to his work, and his complete subservientation of all things to the inspiration that moved him. Beethoven's love for the subject was one which took possession of his mind, Beethoven could not write an "occasional," in the ordinary acceptation of the term.

In 1823 the Mass was offered for subscription to the courts of Europe, the price for a MS. copy of the score being placed at fifty ducats. Austria, having treated Beethoven with neglect, was the first to subscribe, the King of Prussia was the first subscriber. His Minister at Vienna asked Beethoven whether he would prefer a decoration to the fifty ducats; Beethoven replied, "The fifty ducats." Louis XVIII., of France, also subscribed, on receiving his copy of the work, and it is stamped with his own portrait on one side and this inscription on the other: "Donné par le Roi à Monsieur van Beethoven." Among the other composer, Seven other copper went to the courts of Russia, Saxony, Tuscany and Darmstadt. Prince Anton Radziwil, Prince Nicholas Borssowtsch, Galitzin, and the Cecilian Verein at Frankfort-on-the-Main. In 1826, Beethoven sold the MS. of publication to Schott, in Mayence, for 1,000 florins. On the original publication the title and dedication ran thus: "Missa composita et servientibus ac emolumento Domini Rudolphi Joanne Cesarea Principi et Archiduci Austrie & R. B. Tit. s. Petri in monte anree, Cardinali et Archiepiscopo Olmucensi profundissime cum veneration, devicate a Ludovico van Beethoven."

Beethoven considered the mass his "greatest and most successful work" ("mein grösstes und gelungenstes Werk") and to the King of France he declared it to be "l'œuvre s plus accompli." It reversed the first complete performance in Russia on March 26, 1824, but Beethoven was not present, and, in fact, never heard it at all. At the concert on May 7 of the same year in the Kärnthnerthor Theater, in Vienna, around which so many memorable reminiscences cluster, he heard the Kyrie, Credo, Gloria, Agnus Dei and Benedictus, which were described on the programme as "three great hymns, with solos and chorus."

The mass is a work of imposing grandeur, and is sustained from the beginning to the end on a plane of extraordinary spiritual elevation. The subjects in the mass itself is as clear and convincing as are the records in the Acts of the Apostles of the spiritual life of the early days that it remained in the composer's thoughts, what is presented its completion in the Missa Solemnis, sometimes, we have to everything that is grand and imposing in the first number of the mass, but in matter and spirit it is still within the limits and language of the ritual to which it was designed to conform. It is not excessively long; it offers no extraordinary difficulties to the chorus; it is conventional triple divisions—Kyrie, Christe, Kyrie"—which no long agos the unwritten law established as a poetic symbolism of the Trinity. In the "Kyrie" the institution of the Christe remains, and there is room for artistic effects, sonylres, and swinging censers. But thereafter there is a rapid development, which soon carries it far beyond the aspiration of the Church, both in the "Gloria in Excelsis" and especially in some of the Roman dogmas as reached. Those who pray for peace in these sentences will have no fear of drums and the clangor of trumpet alarms, are too terrified to rest content with the mediation of priests or saints. They are themselves at the foot of the throne of mercy. In this growth and in the characteristic traits of the characteristic traits of Beethoven as man and musician during the closing period of his labors. It is, in a manner, an exposition of his religious and musical creed. It is not governed by birth, but far from a Churchman in practice. He was negligent of the Church's offices, and when asking for the exterior of its ceremonials. He built up his "Credo" from communings with nature and his own soul, and in the setting of its familiar words to them, as all can read in his letters and journal entries. In the Agnus Dei, as in the Gloria of the great Mass in C there is an affecting testimony that, during many moments of deep emotion, melancholy and affliction, his thoughts often turned to Mendelssohn and prayers to the Deity, whose highest acceptances of glory and praise resound from the mass in D. In this Mass in D, Beethoven has left behind him, "Gott allein ist unser Herr," which Beethoven notes to have been "Gesungen von Herrn Schmidt, zuruck in seine Ehre Bergen." The mass was written in the midst of a period of great melancholy and suffering, both in the financial and domestic troubles, and we can learn from the memoranda which he left that through them his thoughts were of a serious nature, and caused to impress themselves deeply upon the work he had in hand. On the MS. of "Kyrie" he wrote: "It came from the heart; may it reach that heart," and in his journal he wrote about this time: "Hard is thy struggle against fate, but it will be vain, and will nothing without Him is. God, God, my refuge, my rock, Thou sent my breath, Thou dwell over ineffable One, bear me, thy unhappy, most unhappy of all mortals!"

SECOND AFTERNOON CONCERT.

THURSDAY, MAY 4TH.

WAGNER PROGRAM.

FRAGMENTS FROM "DER RING DES NIBELUNGEN."

"Der Ring des Nibelungen" consists of four selections; as Introduction, "Das Rheingold," and a Trilogy—"Die Walküre," "Siegfried," and "Gotterdammerung." So constituted, it is a complete work, bound together in all its parts by the closest ties, having a distinct beginning, an equally distinct ending, comprising within itself all that is necessary to perfect elucidation. Looking at the technical construction of "Der Ring des Nibelungen," it is easy to assume that the plan was carefully defined from the outset. Not so, however. It grew from the seed of a subject hill that wheat was once but a single drama became four. Curiously enough, it stretched back in its range of time, leading us first with results arising from hidden causes, as Wagner felt the necessity of revealing those causes, and so was led to the ancient records of all the Celtic races.

Having already drawn a succession of heroes from the regions of myth, he looked about, and found many more, for a successor to those famous personages, and alighted upon Siegfried, one of the most prominent actors in Teutonic and Scandinavian mythology. Siegfried was a tempting subject. Himself a splendid being, he formed the centre-piece of a group of figures unsurpassed in dramatic interest and poetic beauty. But as the limit of a single drama would not suffice for the story of the life of Siegfried's ally, Wagner chose three immediately preceding his death, and based upon them the poem now known to us as "Gotterdämmerung"—the fourth and last section of "Der Ring des Nabelungen"—but then called "Siegfried's Tod."

How much the connection between the first with "Siegfried's Tod" the author has not revealed. It is probable that some additions were made, but nevertheless, enough is left to show that the poem, as we have it, belongs mainly, in point of dramatic construction, to "Lohengrin" and "Tannhäuser." Like all its successors, however, it differs as to the character of verse. For reasons he has fully set forth, but which need not be discussed here, he "developed in "Siegfried's Tod" the unrhymed alliterative verse of the old Teutonic and Scandinavian poets, believing that the marked accents and positive rhythm best harmonized with the idea he had formed that the modus should be suggested by, and grow from, the "word."

Under certain circumstances, the rugged and strongly-accented lines of the poem would be washed away others, more particularly when soft and tender sentiments prevail, both ear and music—perhaps from force of habit—demand a gentler rhythm, and long for the suave effect of rhyme.

Having completed the poem of "Siegfried's Tod" (Gotterdämmerung"), Wagner, enamoured of his subject, and necessitated to show much that else had to be intellectually perceived, took up the earlier life of the hero. From this sprang a second drama, called at first "Junger Siegfried," and now as "Siegfried," forming the third section of the great work. There is reason to assume that here the whole scheme of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" dawned upon the author's mind. The force of circumstances carried him, almost despite his will, further and further back to the origin of that which had previously occupied his thoughts, and from the working of this secretary arose "Die Walküre" and "Das Rheingold," connecting ultimate effect with remotest cause.

The entire plot may be thus briefly indicated: The Rhine-Daughters guard a golden treasure in the depths of the river. The treasure gives control of the world to its possessor, but can only fall into the hands of one who forswears love. Alberich, a Nibelung, representative of the subterranean powers of evil, fulfills the condition, seizes the gold and fashions out of it a ring, the embodiment of his accursed might. At this time Wotan (Odin), chief of the upper gods, is in difficulties. He has engaged giants to build him a castle, Walhall; and, not liking to give them the reward agreed upon, descends to the Nibelung on a raid after the Rheingold and ring. By trickery he wins those, and with them pays the giants, not before Alberich has attached a curse to the ring, the first fruit of which is seen when one giant kills the other in a dispute over the spoils. The sorrower comes off the ring, and, by the power of a magic sleepe upon it, too brutish to avail himself of its power. Wotan, hoping to defend Walhall, creates a sword, called Bröda, the Earth Goddess, by whom he has nine daughters, Walkyrs, whose business it is to gather the heroes slain with the bravest knights slain in battle. Wishing also to obtain the ring, he by another device leaves up a hero, Siegmund, for whose use he destines a sword so buried in the stem of an ash that none other can pull it out. Siegmund meets with his twin sister, Sieglinde, married to Hunding, and though the relationship is discovered, carries her off as his wife. On the interposition of Wotan's wife, Fricka, a subsequent combat between Hunding and Siegmund is made fatal to the sojourner, by the intervention of Walkyrie charged by Wotan to effect this result, disobeys and protects, unwillingly, him whom she should have caused to be destroyed. Wotan himself intervenes, and the god-given sword, Nothung, which Siegmund has drawn from the ash, shivers against the god's spear. Siegmund destroys Wotan's power. Sieglinde, after the fight, seeks refuge in a forest, and Brünhilde finds her favorite arrangement ready by fire, upon a rock, till a man shall wake her and claim her as his wife. On the interposition of Wotan's wife, Sieglinde produces a son, Siegfried, who, on the death of his mother, is reared by Mime, a Nibelung, who has in hope of, through his means, winning the ring for himself. Siegfried, by-and-bye, discovers his parentage; welds together the pieces of the broken sword, Nothung, kills the dragon-guard; kills also Mime, who attempts treachery, carries off the ring and the Tarn-helm, which, when standing the language of birds, hears from them of the sleeping Brünhilde. Leaping the flame, unconsciously does not knowing fear, he reaches Brünhilde's rock, pungues through the fire and wins her. Both become enamored with her always, and sets forth in due time to see the world and seek adventure. Lighting on the court of King Gunther, he drinks a magic draught brewed by his sister Gutrune, and forgets even the existence of Brünhilde, becomes enamoured of Gutrune, Gunther's sister, and by her means is induced to win Brünhilde for the King, who has heard of the sleeping heroine, yet cannot force the fire. Siegfried fulfills his promise in the guise of Gunther, and Brünhilde is carried off as Gunther's wife. Betrayed by Gutrune, passes through the ring, which Siegfried, acting for his friend, had wrested from Brünhilde (who wore it as a love token) and forgotten and gave to Gutrune as a gift when they changed places. Full of revenge, the outraged woman reveals to Hagen whom Siegfried is vulnerable, and the latter, on a hunting excursion, the Nibelung's son kills the hero. The body is carried to the palace, where Brünhilde recovers the ring on her finger, leaps into the flames of the funeral pyre. The Rhine overflows the spot, and the Rhine Daughters recover the accursed ornament at the moment that Walhall, in flames, proclaims the downfall of the reign of force and the advent of that of love.

I.—"Das Rheingold."

This has been incorrectly termed the "Prelude or Prologue to the "Trilogy," but the whole work is in fact a Trilogy, of which this is the first part, devoted exclusively to supernatural personages. The portion selected for performance comprises the beginning and concluding scenes, and consists of the solo for Loge (the god of fire), in which he relates his attempt to effect the liberation of Freia, and the various means that will be acceptable to the giants who hold her in their keeping.

This selection contains the essence of this division of the work, and is therefore undeniably interesting.

The Orchestral Prelude is quaint, and contains 136 bars, and is built on the chord of E flat throughout its entire length, rather on a massive rumble of the double basses on the contra-bass, the fourth string being lowered a semitone in order to realize more pungent effects.

It is first heard alone; shortly afterwards the bassoons add the fifth, which is the signal for the appearance of the first leit motif, eight horns alternately taking up the strain with delivery. Each portion of the phrase thus built up, and which involves the use of "harmonic" notes, is repeated, then is repeated in closer and closer, until a background of monotonous arpeggio chords is developed.

The 'cellos and bassoons, with the subsequent co-operation of the violins, present the same idea in a modified shape, known as the Rhine motive. A repair of wind instruments is next heard, during which the remainder of the wood wind enter, followed by the entire orchestra, the full sonority of the last in the progress of events. On the rise of the curtain the intermediate chord changes to a 6-4, the contra bass still retaining the E flat for another 30 bars, a new motive suggestive of the Rhine maidens floating in the depths of the river, making its welcome appearance on the same notation.

The placed character of the scene is soon marred by the appearance of a Nibelung (gnome), who ascends from his cavernly trips to woo the nymphs, chasing them in all directions. They ridicule him to his face, which, when angry, they deny a mysterious light appears, which emanates from the mystic Rheingold, which it is the province of the watery nymphs to guard. Its existence, thus suddenly manifested, is emphasized by a new "motive," a fanfare announced by the horns.

This is followed by a charming chorus of Rhine maidens, with an exquisitely conceived running figure in the accompaniment assigned to the violin, which occupies no less than 58 bars. The scene of the mystic treasure is here related to the gnome, but at the precise moment that allusion is made to the power that will be possessed by whoever succeeds in procuring a ring shaped from the Rhine gold another phrase—the most important in the entire work, viewed in connection with Wagner's theory—is for the first time introduced. The dwarf is informed (on another striking theme) that only he who renounces love forever may make use of the gold to the above ends. Goaded by the jibes and refusals of the nymphs, he utters the vow aloud, and, seizing the gold, vanishes with it, pursued by the terrified guardians who have so imprudently opened the door to the theft. Darkness falls, and the scene changes in very elaborate fashion, while the Rhine motive, the ring, and the Ring motive melts into another of intentionally similar rhythm, being also a symbol of power—the Valhalla-motive, a march-like theme, always given out by solemn trombones, tubas and drums.

We now pass on to the entrance of Loge, whose music is composed chiefly of rising and falling chromatic passages. After some tedious utterances, we come at length to the description of the manner in which Wotan, with Loge, first the one melodious oasis in an otherwise painfully dull scene. It is certainly pregnant with beauty. In the final extract, we have the Valhalla and Love motives, and, above the mass which still obscure the stage, making the gods so haggard and pasty, also a beautiful Loge motive, his hammer till the vapors obey his call and condense to a black thunder-cloud. Lightning flashes, peals of thunder, will lightning, follows the stroke of his hammer on the rocks, the clouds disperse and a rainbow appears, across which the gods ascend in slow drill the gods from their future abode. The scoring of this, with six separate harp parts in impossible arpeggios, while the strings are heard at their highest pitch in a long continued chord of G flat, with a smooth melody in the bass, is beyond description. The "Journey to Valhalla" is glorified by the full orchestra while the gods prepare to cross the bridge. Wotan, looking his friends full in the face, suddenly struck with an idea, which future eyes to explain. He will contrive to get the ring from the dwarf.

This idea is conveyed by a striking trumpet phrase. Loki, lingering behind, expresses his contempt for the gods in energetic style. Freia's cries are heard, and those of the Rhine nymphs for their lost gold, a beautiful melody, founded on the arpeggio of the dominant 7th, which has now taken possession in the new-born splendor of the gods as a substitute for the Rheingold. The watery nymphs appear on the Rainbow-bridge, and refuse to be comforted. The gods cross the bridge, and the Valhalla motive thunders out the Rainbow and Valhalla themes, followed by the rainbow-music, and the curtain falls.

It is obvious from this brief statement that with the exception of the first scene and Loki's speech in the second, there is little opportunity for anything vocal melody in this section of the work. All is simple and almost bald recitative, with the accompaniments of the third rounds in exceedingly rich, broad and striking manner, in order that they may be heard to the best advantage. But the scenic effect utilized to relieve the tedium, and the conclusion is very imposing, but in a detached form the music loses much of its significance.

II.—"Die Walküre."

This also opens with an orchestral introduction. It depicts the raging of a storm in somewhat novel fashion—a phrase repeated monotonously by different portions of the scale against the tremolo D, which forms a pedal point no less than sixty bars in length, and is at length relaxed and accompanying in wild, thunder and lightning passages, which finally subside into the quiet with which the wretch Wagner has thrown his Prelude.

The next fragment given is the most charming of the entire series. Hunding is sweep wildly up and down, on the chord of the seventh, on G flat, and then, after a tended modulation, of all keys, into the key of E flat, the famous Spring song, with its delicate triplet accompaniment accented in two, and leaping in a manner that love scene ever penned, even by Wagner. The whole scene is one flood of impassioned melody, and for the first time in any of his alternative verse, which, even all too prosaic, rises into real poetry.

The Ride of the Walkyries" forms the introduction to Act III. This is founded on two characteristic themes—the Battle Call, and accompanying melody of the Walkyries, and is in all respects a marvellous conception admirably carried out. It is, however, so far familiar that it calls for no additional remark here.

The Finale, which includes "Wotan's Farewell," and the magic Fire Scene, has also been selected for performance on this occasion.

The motives employed have been previously heard, save the last, which reappears in the next division of the tragedy.

III.—"Siegfried."

The finale of the first act is the only fragment culled from "Siegfried." The second opens in a new sword out of the broken pieces of the one that had been thrust into the stem of the ash-tree by Wotan, and which, occupied by Hunding and Sieglinde, and from which it had been forcibly withdrawn by Siegmund and subsequently broken in the contest with Wotan. Mime is terror stricken when he realizes his intention, knowing that he who successfully reproduces the mighty weapon must be "a hero that knows not fear." In the meantime, Siegfried has placed its shattered remains in the melting pot, and apostrophizes the blade as he watches the progress of his work.

Mime, however, speedily recovers his equanimity, and mentally hatches a plot whereby the weapon can be utilized for his own benefit. The sword is at length completed, and plunged into the water to cool its heated surface, the act being symbolized by appropriate passages in the orchestra. An attempt is also made to imitate the sound of filing. The music is, however, more sensational than striking.

IV.—"Die Götterdämmerung."

Siegfried's death affords a marvellous instance of Wagner's subtle power of individualization; and yet combining in a grand and impressive whole, a number of melodious fragments expressive of various incidents or emotions. It may be described as a funeral march of most impressive character, abounding in sombre and mysterious utterances that induce a feeling of awe it is impossible to withstand.

The orchestration is throughout full of extraordinary and previously unheard effects of tone color, and is with a master hand.

The great scene of "Brunhilde's Immolation" almost defies analysis, and depends greatly on its dramatic realization for success.

Franz Materna will doubtless render it to absolute perfection, but the mere recital of the music will, it is to be feared, give but a very faint idea of its undeniable grandeur when given on the stage.

THIRD EVENING CONCERT.

FRIDAY, MAY 9.

ISRAEL IN EGYPT ..... HANDEL. 1685-1759

"Israel in Egypt," the Sacred master's choral masterpiece, was the fifth work of its class that he wrote, and was first performed at King's Theatre, Haymarket, London, on the 4th of April, 1739. It did not achieve the same measure of success as the "Messiah," "Samson," "Judas Maccabæus," and several others that he wrote subsequently, although as a work of genius it is unrivalled and reaches the grandeur, no less than of marvellous technical skill, it will ever stand as a monument of its composer's genius.

The clearness and beauty of his fugal writing, the simple means he adopts for producing effects of startling dramatic significance, the appropriateness to his choral writing, without seeking adventitious aid from the orchestra, are features never surpassed, perhaps, in this colossal work than in any other he has bequeathed to posterity.

Still, it must be admitted that he has herein made too liberal a use of his marvellous gifts, for the constant accession of eight part choruses (magnificent as they are), unrelieved by any intervening solo or duet, and consisting of choruses in a worrisome effect even in the case of the most enthusiastic admirers of the great master. As a matter of fact, he has provided enough choral material to amply suffice for three oratorios.

In its original form the second part, as we now have it, contained a number of pieces in itself, and as such is a model of all that constitutes a well proportioned work. The first part, dealing with the "plagues," and containing some of the finest writing that ever proceeded from mortal pen, is essentially dramatic in feeling, whereas the other is more or less didactic, and, from a constructive and dramatic point of view, the musical interests is in a manner inverted, thereby producing a lack of that overwhelming interest. The opening and closing choruses in the second part, which are both built on similar thematic foundations, from their impressive grandeur and massive proportions, certainly make amends to some extent, but much of the intermediate material fail to reach the high standard Handel has set up for himself in the first part.

Owing to its partial failure when first presented to the public, the composer, in order to render it more attractive, introduced a number of songs in Italian, and several new concertos on the organ, particularly a new one, to be played by Mr. Handel," as we are told. Failing to contend against the taste of the passing day, very fine music, some of the choruses were afterwards omitted, and additional songs substituted, but with very little alteration—the ultimate work proved an utter failure, and after a fourth attempt it was put on one side, and not heard again for fifteen years. In 1759, when the composer died, the score was still unedited.

In 1760 "at the request of all Handel's works had to suffer even greater ignominy than that of failure. It passed through the hands of unprincipled managers. It was performed in 1760 "at the Royal Theatre, Covent Garden, the choruses entire, and the songs from other works of the late G. F. Handel, Esq." Twelve airs and fourteen recitatives were introduced, the music of which was taken from the Italian operas of Handel and set to English sacred words. It was afterwards performed on several occasions, and sometimes under the management of men who ought to have known better, but never in its original and complete form until the Sacred Harmonic Society took it in hand in March, 1838.

The version used at the Festival is that of the German Handel Society, with G. A. Macfarren's additional accompaniments, which are incorporated the trombone parts discovered by D. Chrysander.

THIRD AFTERNOON CONCERT.

SATURDAY, May 6.

(ITALIAN PROGRAM.)

SONATA IN D. . . . . A. CORELLI 1653-1714.

Archangelo Corelli was not only the most eminent violinist of his day, but founded a school of composition that marked an era in the history of music. Handel, especially, adopted his style, and almost frequently borrowed his ideas. It was characterized by healthful vigor and breadth of outline, whereas his predecessors had disregarded these essential features in favor of mere contrapuntal skill.

He received instruction in violin playing from one Bassani and pursued his studies in composition with Matteo Simonelli, a singer at the Papal chapel in Rome. His works consist of sonatas for stringed instruments with accompaniment for cembalo, concertos, and chamber music for stringed instruments.

Herr Paul David speaks of his compositions in the following terms:

"All his works are characterized by conciseness and lucidity of thought and form, and by a dignified, almost aristocratic, bearing. The slow movements show genuine pathos as well as grace, bringing out in a striking manner the singing power of the violin. His quick movements are full, on the whole, of equal merit with the adagios—at least, in point of originality of thought and variety of character."

ARIA DI CHIESA . . . . . STRADELLA. 1645-1678.
MISS EMILY WINANT.

The career of this early Italian composer, who also achieved fame as a singer, was of a somewhat romantic character.

On the authority of Dr. Bourdelet, it is stated that a Venetian noble, having commissioned Stradella to compose an opera, on his arrival in Venice placed his affianced bride under the protection of the composer. The natural result of this proceeding can be easily surmised. They became warmly attached, and shortly afterward fled to Rome, whither the enraged Venetian dispatched two bandits with instructions to assassinate them.

The instruments of his vengeance, having ascertained that one of his Oratorios would be given on the next day in the Church of St. Giovanni de Latrano, followed them thither with the intention of stabbing the lovers as they left the church.

The effect of his music, however, softened their hearts, and, instead of fulfilling their mission, they explained to him the nature of their errand. They had come to the city, they said begged him to fly with his fiancee, in order that they might inform their employer the culprits were not to be found. They, consequently, departed secretly for Turin, and were befriended by a sympathizing lady, but they were traced, and Stradella was ultimately stabbed, though not fatally.

On his recovery, he proceeded with the companion of his choice, now his wife, to Genoa, where, the day after entering the city, they were again found murdered in their apartments. The date of the tragic event is variously given, but it was probably about the year 1678.

His music is tuneful, but of little artistic value. Many of the MSS. compositions are in the libraries of Modena, Venice, Paris, London (British Museum), and Oxford (Bodleian Library).

MENUETTO (Stringed orchestra). . . . . BOCCHERINI 1740-1805.

Boccherini, like Corelli, devoted his attention almost exclusively to instrumental compositions for stringed instruments. He was a contemporary of Haydn, whose style he adopted, although he was not by any means a copyist. Being an excellent violoncellist, he wrote extensively for his instrument of his predilection, but is best known as the author of a large collection of quartets and trios for stringed instruments.

During the later portion of his life he was the recipient of an annual pension from Charles IV., and was also granted an annuity by Frederick William II. of Prussia in consideration of a few quartets and symphonies written expressly for Berlin during each year.

The exquisitely delicate and fascinating little menuetto, referred to above, is extracted from a string quartet, but performed on the present occasion by the entire mass of stringed instruments. The quartet referred to was first introduced by M. Pasdeloup in Paris some years since, and his example has been so eagerly followed that the little trifle now occupies a place in almost every conductor's repertoire.

ARIA —"Pria che Spenti" ("Il Matrimonio Segreto"). . . . . CIMAROSA. 1749-1798
SIGNOR CARBONARI.

Domenico Cimarosa was a most prolific composer, producing during 28 years of his life not less than seventy-six operas. He was a Neapolitan by birth, and studied at the Conservatorio, in Naples, where the expenses of his education were defrayed by a musical priest, as his parents were unable to do so. He was appointed Chapel Master to Catherine of Russia, to write for the Imperial Court, and in the space of four years composed no less than fifty compositions of varied character. It was in the year 1792, and while he held the post of Chapel Master to the Vienna Conservatoire in Ballet, that his master work, "Il Matrimonio Segreto" was written, and this alone, of all his compositions, has enjoyed universal popularity. Its success was due to its spontaneous, and sequence of death was afterward passed on him, but he was fortunate in escaping the fatal poisoning that he left Naples for ever. He died at Venice, on his way to St. Petersburg, to which latter city he had gone to seek refuge.

The comic opera in question is frequently performed in Europe, and has been successfully given in English at the Crystal Palace, Alexandra Palace and elsewhere in the British metropolis.

His compositions are distinguished by their piquant conciseness and elegant melodious imagery. His operas are full of ideas, and his orchestration is carried on with extraordinary impulse and poetic feeling. The "Pria che spenti" is an excellent specimen of his best style.

Until a comparatively recent date, Cherubini was considered by many simply as a theoretical musician, whose renowned work on Counterpoint and Fugue rivalled that of Albrechtsberger, its predecessor. But it is now universally admitted that he deserved far higher and more substantial fame, his instrumental and choral works constituting genius of the highest order. Indeed, his magnificent Mass in D minor, and two Requiem Masses, especially that for male voices, amongst his church compositions, and "Medea" and "Les deux Journees," amongst his operas, may be quoted as really remarkable instances of creative ability. They will live as long as music endures.

He was a friend of Beethoven, and Mendelssohn—who was also a friend of the former—entertained a profound love of, if by his father, in order to obtain Cherubini's opinion as to his son's future career. Cherubini's opinion was unfavorable, but as a man and an artist. He commenced his studies at the tender age of 6, and seven years later, he was exalted by the liberality of the future Emperor, Leopold III., to complete his musical education under Sarti, a well-known Italian composer of the day, and at Kapellmeister Cartellieri, and subsequently accepted a similar position in Venice.

In his works he never lowered Sarti, and his art by pandering to public taste; they were always cast in classic shape and developed in artistic fashion. His opera "Les Deux Journees" founded on an incident in the life of Count Armand Gouffier, Duke of Roche Fort, and his wife Pauline, who escaped from the clutches of Cardinal Mazarin by the aid of a water-carrier and his son, is highly esteemed in Germany, where it is given in the German language. The Finale to the first act, included in the festival program, is one of its most effective numbers.

Even the unfaithful sigh they will avenge.
And hear in mind that they can read your wishes.

Grand Vestal.
Julia (aloud).
(In an undertone of the most pro found thought she kneels on the steps of the altar, whereon she lies for a moment prostrate.)
Thus a heinous crime I will here fan illess.
All powerful goddess, hear my prayer
That this thy Vestal now may share
And feel thy grace if never more!
Then quench the dreadful flame I bear
That e'er my failing spirits spread.
To my then dear last the power
To soothe the grief that clouds my dying head.

Julia.
She rises up, ascends to the altar, and with)
She sacrilegious hand of mine
Has dared pollute this sacred shrine.
I feel it chills I see
The fatal flame around me play,
They they immortal is
Its glories as by decay.
You Vesta scorns and drives me hence away.

Julia.
She pens the stage like one dis tracted.
Love, then will I obey:
But whither shall I flee?
Where shall I hide me?
And mad remorse seizes me!
What power invincible compels
To rack my heart and soul with fears!
Hold! e'er me dwells the thunder's roar!
And Jove's dark regions yawn before me.
Lightning seems to rend the air
Heaven's wrath to pour
To me him, hear him, speak to him; but terror
Has frozen up what bids me
Despair and love already seal my doom.
Oh, yet awhile remain
Your vengeance, heavenly powers.
That love may once again,
Where only scenes loom,
Awaken joy's bright flowers.
Turn tangled scath shall wreak progress was so rapid that he was invited to compose an air opera to be produced in Rome. In order to accept the tempting offer he left the establishment in open defiance of all rules of discipline. The opera was composed, produced and proved successful. Some years after he settled in Paris, but on receiving at the hands of Frederick William II. of Prussia the appointment of Court Musical Director, he removed to Berlin. Here he remained for twenty years, but was ultimately compelled to resign the active duties of his office in consequence of a quarrel with the General Intendant, although he still received his salary. He returned to Paris in 1841, but owing to an attack of deafness some six years later he was forced to relinquish the hope of hearing it, but was almost immediately seized with illness which terminated fatally. "La Vestale," the product of the year 1807, is certainly his best work. The plot is historical, and deals with the immolation of the Vestal Virgin Gergia, in accordance with a law of Numa Pompilius, for having introduced her lover within the Temple of Vesta. The denouement is, however, changed in the libretto, the unconscious maid blinding the sacred fire on the altar, which is construed into a token of forgiveness, and the vestal is ransomed from the tomb in which she is sentenced to be immured alive at the eventful moment in which she prepares to enter its gloomy depths.

"Guillaume Tell," although written in 1829, was the last of the thirty-eight operatic works Rossini bequeathed to the world. It is admittedly his best work, and not only realized the fact more earnestly than the composer, in proof of which he created every effort in his power to make it his forte pen. It was ill-naturedly suggested at the time that he was jealous of Meyerbeer, and rewarded the attention bestowed on him by the public; but it is more probable that his own statement—"one more success would not add to my fame, and a failure could only lessen it"—affords the true explanation.

An English critic aptly describes the nature of the work in the following brief sentence: "In his Paris opera, and especially in 'Guillaume Tell,' the influence of French taste makes itself strongly felt, and there is a clearness, a charm, a delicacy in small details, a sense of proportion and of unity, a breadth of style, an attention to the necessities of the stage, and a dignity which runs this epoch of his career far higher than either of the others."

DUO "Ah! Leonora." "La Favorita").	Donizetti 1797-1848
Mr. Carl and Signor Campobello.

The King—Ah! Leonora! wild sorrow thee see to bend thy brow?
Leonora—Ah, then, it is happy, because I in of thy sake?
My heart thee knows to Warm from the roof of my accursed
I was a child then, by false vows drawn d,
Finally I from it, on thy heart

The King—Ah! Leonora!
Leonora—Affliction, bring it not deeper
Doom'd on my father dishonor to bring:
Lonely and weeping, he all our misguided,
Hid in those bowers dwells the love of a king.
The King—Here, and those bowers, a paradise only page beguiling,
Joy holds her court, where blooms full many a flower
Fresh'ning the air with perfume, and ever smiling,
Why on thy brow do clouds dare darkly rest sadness?
Leonora—Here, and those bowers, a paradise my enfolding,
Cure for discomfort, for Nature vow with art;
Yet Heaven above, my mortal grief beholding,
Sees the by-gone, while future recks thy heart.
The King—Say, I wisdom me bestowing thee wise bids thee cherish?
Leonora—Ah! Leonora, fatal name, that I from Far from thy splendor, great sir only to speak.
The King—Nay, unto the world my love will I show,
Soon shall thine measure how deep the love I cherish
Leonora—To such with a monarch! No, no! My fate too well I know
Now to this heart the love, warm, glowing,
O'er all my being a spell is throwing.

Vainly glows, as hid from sight,
Burns in the truth the regnite light.
The King—Now in this heart the love, warm, glowing,
Vainly glows, as hid from sight,
The love in that heart was no more bright.
Yet all to her seems wrapp'd in night.

Donizetti is the composer of nearly sixty operas, many of which enjoyed a vast amount of popularity in their day, but are not highly esteemed by those who do not care for highly-wrought dramatic effect. He belongs to the lighter school of composers, and his operas, notably "L'Elisir d'Amore," "Lucrezia," "La Favorita," and "La Fille du Regiment," are sparkling melody, vocal brilliancy, of there kind, in every way excellent. His orchestration is, however, rather unsatisfying. He was a pupil of Zingarelli, the director of the Naples Conservatorio, and on the death of his master succeeded him in that position.

During the closing years of his life his intellect became impaired, and a species of insanity supervened, shortly after which—on April 8, 1848—he expired.

RONDO, "Ah! non giunge," ("La Sonnambula").	Bellini. 1802-1835
Ah! recall not one earthly sorrow
With the blisses of love, o'erpaid us—
An ethereal it was that bound me,
Ah! embrace me, my heart delighted
In one hope, now in the future
Bond in bond while in death we wander
We will find our home of love.

Vincenzo Bellini was essentially a melodist, and in this respect outrivalled all the composers of the pure Italian School of lyrical composers.

He was also a pupil of the Naples Conservatorio during the administration of Zingarelli, and produced his maiden opera while still under that master.

It proved a success, and henceforward his career was assured. His purely melodic style gained for him hosts of admirers, but the critics were not to be moved by demand—something of more solid construction, and Bellini's operas have lost much of their former attractiveness in consequence. "La Sonnambula" has been selected by some of the greatest artists the stage has ever known on the occasion of their respective debuts, and from the opportunities it affords of exhibiting vocal excellence, it is still one of the most popular works in the repertoire of almost every prima donna.

ROMANZA, "Ernie" ("Un Ballo in Maschera").	G. Verdi. 1813
Mr. Campobello.
And wrestled then thou have sullied a soul so pure,
In whose every thought my image
Then betray me? In whose love I so secured.

OVERTURE, "Rose Leaf" Berend. 1878

The author of this effective overture first "won his spurs" as a violin virtuoso, in which capacity he travelled extensively in Europe, with gratifying results. He afterward established himself in Florence, and founded a society for the practice of instrumental music. He next became a professor in the Conservatorium in Milan, and last year removed to Berlin, having been appointed director of the Music School founded by Rossini (and its maintenance provided for in his will), a position which the author of "Guillaume Tell" first saw the light.

FOURTH EVENING CONCERT.

SATURDAY, MAY 6.

A SYMPHONY TO DANTE'S "DIVINA COMMEDIA" . . . P. LISZT

There is an artificial pretentiousness about this work that is not relished for by the classic mind. Borgard of "form," and every recognized principle of classical art as exemplified in symphonic works are the ruling characteristics of this example of Liszt's work.

Incoherent verbosity is so unsatisfactory a feature in music as in literature, and but too often is employed to conceal the absence of inventive power.

These remarks apply with singular pertinence to this wild and eccentric composition that is presented to the world by its author as the musical embodiment of the ideas so grandly expressed in Dante's poem.

The writer of the official "notes" claims that music of this character is more expressive and emotional than that wherein melody and intelligible development of the subject matter employed are the leading features.

Music has a language of its own—and an exquisite language it is—but it is not intended directly to our inmost thoughts and feelings than any other. It requires no explanatory chart in order to prevent gross misconception of the character of the composition and the intention of the composer." Music that is so obtuse as to require such adventitious aid to comprehension is undeserving of the name. But the question cannot be argued here, and therefore a brief indication of Liszt's "intention" is perhaps all that the occasion warrants.

The extraordinary and uncouth matter contained in the opening bars are intended to prepare the mind for the contemplation and the horrors of Hades, and this preamble is followed by a fugue on the prominence, which is the musical translation of the appalling line, "Per me si va nella citta dolente," the trumpets immediately replying in a monotonous series of repeated notes, which are used to express the curse:

"Lasciate ogni speranza Voi ch'entrate."

There is a dignity and impressiveness that far that cannot be questioned, but the babel of sounds that succeed defy analysis or comprehension.

Bewildering flights of chromatic passages, combined with every conceivable device that is calculated to render "confusion worse confounded," are not the outpourings of genius, but suggest the absence of definite purpose. It might be assumed that the composer had set himself the double his canvas with patches of color at random, in work by of comparison with another who commences with a definite purpose, and produces a carefully considered work of art, that charms by its perfection of detail and its exquisite coloring.

A restitative given out by the bass clarinet introduces a dislocated melody, which, in duet form, is used for the purpose of enunciating the contending words exchanged by the unhappy lovers. This is followed by an Andante amoroso in 7-4 time, which is more and more than some semblance of musical expression.

Purgatory is represented chiefly by intervals of silence, but the material employed in the intervening portions of the movement, suggests nothing to the imaginative mind, and the oddly constructed fugue which is designed to express "resignation and suffering, earnest self-accusation and unspeakable melancholy" is a tedious and ineffective effort. A chorale like subject that has already been used, reappears by degrees, in the midst of fragmentary phrases, that seem to hover around, until "the gloom is dispersed," and the portals of Paradise are seen. The commencement of the "Magnificat" of the Romish Church, as a soprano solo, is faintly heard, amid a shower of harp arpeggio, the chorus allow words joining on its delivery, and eventually the composition closes with the expression of "serene bliss, which speaks in the magnified into the celestial ecstacy, which breaks out into Hallelujahs and Hosannas," whatever that may mean.

SCENA. "Taglieh ellen wir in Flege" (Der Damon. Act I.
Scene 2).	A. Rubinstein. 1829
Madame Etelka Gerster.

The modern romantic school has a worthy advocate in Anton Rubinstein, and one of his more important orchestral works—and we have already seen worthy of the Fatherland—is Le-zt's rhapsodical effusion. Indeed, this oversight is the one solitary exception to an otherwise perfect selection of program material.

To make matters worse, the excerpt from Rubinstein's opera is given in a garbled form, the chorus, which is an essential feature in the Scena, being eliminated.

"LA PRISE DE TROIE" (Act. II.).	Hector Berlioz 1803-1869

The opera, of which the Second Act is selected for performance on the festival was, as reality, intended by Berlioz to constitute a species of prologue to his more important work in five Acts, entitled, "Les Troyens," which was produced in Paris in 1863, with indifferent success. The one-sided prologue has never had a stage representation, but has been given in concert form on several occasions. The portion under notice deals with the introduction of the wooden horse within the gates, and the consequent revelry.

The music is in Berlioz's best vein, and exhibits his peculiar style to the best advantage.

A detailed analysis of the music will appear in the next issue of the paper.

CHORUS (Die Meistersinger, Act III.).	Wagner.
Awake, awake, the dawning day is near,
Awake, awake, the night is fled,
A happy, joyful nightingale,
her glad song rings through hill and vale.
The night has fled,
The day comes from out the east,
The night has fled,
Where thou in the midst of light.
Hail! Hail! Nuremberg's noble Sachs!
Rise! German masters!
May all good spirits reward them
Help them to work with head and heart;
They may depart
Our Roman Emperor, of right divine,
Shall bless their labors,
Hail, hail, German art.
Hail! Sachs! Brave and noble Sachs!

This brilliant and sonorous chorus forms a fitting conclusion to the musical "feast of good things." It is perhaps the most effective number in the only humorous opera its composer ever penned.

THE PIANO OF AMERICA.

The perfection of the Hardman Piano has been unanimously acknowledged not only in this country, where it has won the first rank, but also in Europe. Among its distinguished patrons in England may be mentioned:

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND,

H. R. H. THE PRINCE OF WALES,

THE DUCHESS OF FIFE,

THE DUCHESS OF MONTROSE,

THE DUKE OF RICHMOND AND GORDON.

The Hardman Piano may be heard in all the countries of the civilized world. General Antonio Ezeta, Vice President of San Salvadore, appreciating the superiority of the Hardman, has chosen a Grand for his own use among all its competitors. The wonderful improvements being constantly made in the Hardman Piano, including the Harp Stop and Metal Key support, justify the firm of Hardman, Peck & Co. in the belief that their pianos cannot be rivalled. This house also represents the "Self-playing Symphony." Upon this instrument may be played the most difficult as well as the lightest compositions, without any previous instruction. Hardman, Peck & Co. are now prepared to make special terms in the renting of their pianos, and also offer to the public the opportunity of buying their world-renowned instruments on the installment plan on easy payments.

Visiting the sales-rooms of SOHMER & Co., 149-155 East 14th Street, our attention is called to an elegant Grand—a master-work indeed; the masters of the art of building Pianos have never before succeeded in constructing such a magnificent instrument. The same has been built according to the original design furnished by the well-known Congressman Scranton, of Scranton, Pa. The white enameled wood work is ornamented with artistic hand carvings and combined with gold. The price of this "Grand" is $3,000. Perfectly in accordance with the outside, is the inside of the instrument.

The melodious tone and the wonderful expression of the softest pianissimo as well as the strongest fortissimo is delightful to everybody's ear and has received the highest testimonials of our best artists.

Der Menonit

A Drama in four Acts, by Ernst von Wildenbruch.

Action supposed to take place in a village near the city of Danzig. Time 1809, during the occupation of Danzig by the French.

Waldemar, elder of the Menonites has a daughter "Marie" and a foster-son "Rheinhold," about 20 years of age. "Mathias," the teacher of the order of the Menouites, asks the hand of Marie in marriage and is accepted by Waldemar. At first Marie objects but is overruled by her love for her father and finally pledges her word.

"Rheinhold," who is supposed to have been away from home, traveling, returns. He falls in love with Marie and asks her to marry him. His affection is returned, but Marie tells him that her hand has been promised to Mathias. Rheinhold is greatly chagrined; the lovers however pant with affection, and retain hopes for the future.

A French officer brings the information that "von Schill" (a German patriot) is issuing orders for an uprising and that any man or woman, found in possession of such an order, will be taken to Danzig and publicly shot. The officer, seeing "Marie," makes improper proposals to her; he is reprimanded by Rheinhold, whom he at once challenges to a duel. Rheinhold accepts the challenge, although it is the first order of the Menonites not to carry firearms or to spill human blood. Mathias, who has overheard the quarrel, informs the congregation that Rheinhold is false to the vows of the order. Rheinhold is at once summoned into their midst and detained until the hour for the duel has passed. A shepherd boy rushes in, calling out that Rheinhold has been declared a coward by his adversary. Rheinhold faints with rage and disappointment.

Rheinhold is heartsick over his position and in desparation he accepts from "Hennecken" (a peasant) one of Schill's order for the uprising. Shortly afterwards he confides all to Marie, who secures the order from him, promising to meet him with Hennecken herself. Mathias overhears this conversation; when Marie is alone he tells her, that if she does not marry him at once he will disclose the whole plot. Marie spurns and defies him. Mathias at once notifies the French, advices them to come and to surprise the traitors, and gives also similar instructions to the Menonites. The Menonites bring Rheinhold to Waldemar's house and lie in wait for Hennecken. Waldemar keeps watch outside of his house to prevent Rheinhold's escape. Marie appears, bringing her father's sleeping potion, which however she has had purposely made stronger than usual. Waldemar drinks of it and is soon fast asleep.

Marie secures the key of the house, leads Rheinhold into the garden and implores him to escape. He refuses to do so, until he has secured the pistol, which was taken from him. Mathias enters the garden and seeing Rheinhold, springs upon him, but is shot down by Rheinhold. At this moment the French appear to investigate the cause of the shooting.

The Menonites seeing Mathias lying in a dying condition on the ground, accuse Rheinhold of being false to the vow, a murderer, and having carried an order of "Schill."

Rheinhold admits all and when he is about to take the order from his pocket, Mathias raises himself from the ground and points to "Marie," thus indicating that she is in possession of the document. Marie produces the paper and at the moment the French soldiers are about to seize her, she falls dead at Rheinhold's feet.

Rheinhold is seized to be shot, when he recognizes the French officer who once called him a coward.

The following dialogue closes the drama:

RHEINHOLD:

— — — — — — Captain, upon this note
You wrote to me and called me a coward,
Grant me a favor now.

CAPTAIN:

Speak.

RHEINHOLD:

By morn,
When on the sands at Danzig I shall kneel,
Be there thyself to give the order: "Fire!"
And wilt thou not, then look upon my end.
Thou shalt confess to me, that thou hast erred!
That not a coward kneeleth on the sands;
There thou shalt see, how German heroes die.

Our representative, on his recent visit to their handsome Warerooms, was astonished to see so many customers, connecting for Sohmer Pianos. Mr. Chas Fahr, with Sohmer & Co., in showing him around, stated, that the demand for their Pianos is quite extraordinary and are especially sought for by the music l profession for their own private use. Their "Bijou" Grand, in particular, (French named for "Gem", and patented for them) is their great attraction, it being the smallest Grand Piano ever manufactured, (five feet). For fullness of tone, it rivals the largest sized Grand piano now in use.

In conclusion, we wish to state that, whenever a testimonial for endurance, perseverance and progress is due at all, it certainly should be awarded to the firm of Sohmer & Co.

A Very Acceptable Present.

"Lyawood," and undoubted success at the Union Square Theatre.

The scene of the play is laid in Kentucky in the time of the war. The event from which the plot is developed is a quarrel and resulting in a scuffle between a Federal captain and a Confederate colonel, in the course of which the latter is fatally stabbed by the lieutenant-colonel of his own regiment. The Union officer is suspected of the crime and indeed, fears himself that in a moment of uncontrollable frenzy he may have committed the deed. He confesses his supposed guilt to his betrothed, the sister to the murdered man, and is decoyed by her into a trap, where his life is about to be forfeited At the critical moment the truth is, of course, revealed by an unsuspected witness. Mr. Tillotson's play is not without considerable dramatic fire and with strong situations, and a drama of more than average merit. Miss Maude Granger as Lucille Carlyele was heartily and deservedly applauded.—N. Y. Herald.

Sohmer's "Bijou" Grand.

The latest success is a small Grand—5 feet 1 inch long—which has no "cost-a-penny" finish among those best able to pronounce judgment. The case model is novel in design, entirely original in scale, and excels the approval of those seeking to own a grand piano. Yet, as the name hints, fact is, that this instrument has the power of the usual grand piano; the action is the same as that of a concert grand, prompt and velvety, and is in every respect just what is desired by experienced and able players.

The touch has that elastic and pleasing quality so anxiously sought by artists and dilletanti. Taken all in all—style, design, scale, tone and touch—this piano is undoubtedly a great step in advance in the construction of pianos in recent times, and will after examination by musicians, create as it has among those who have heard it, a veritable furore.

Formerly the square piano was generally used, notwithstanding it was always cumbersome and inconvenient, as compared with the more elegant upright piano. Undoubtedly this was because the former was best as a musical instrument. Improvements in the Upright Piano have latterly given it the preference. The new recently made by the MASON & HAMLIN Company is likely to give the upright still more acceptance. By an ingenious arrangement, they fasten the strings of the piano directly to the iron plate, dispensing with any intervention of wood. The result is more perfect vibration of the strings, producing more pure, refined musical tones, and much greater durability. Including freedom from liability to get so easily out of tune.—Boston Journal.

"MONTE CRISTO"—THIS WEEK.

An excellent performance of "Monte Cristo" was given by John Stetson's Company. From Dumas' romantic novel the dramatist has made a play that is full of interest and holds the attention from beginning to end. It abounds in situations of the most exciting nature which are the result of an easy train of events. It is a series of pleasing pictures that leave a most pleasant impression, and as a specimen of careful acting and elaborate mounting it cannot but be remembered as one of the leading events of the season. Mr. James O'Neill was an excellent Edmund Dantes. From the light-hearted sailor, filled with joy at his promotion and his approaching marriage, he changes to the gloomy misanthrope, with heart and soul bent on vengeance, and he does it so well that never for an instant is the sympathy of his audience diverted from him. Mr. O'Neill has an attractive presence, a resonant voice, and complete control of himself. He resists the temptation the part offers for over-acting, and gives a smooth and well-balanced impersonation. The scenery is of the most elaborate description and several acts were literally applauded. The audience was loudly appreciative, and the principal artists were called before the curtain repeatedly.—Baltimore Day, October 14.

"LYNWOOD."

"Lynwood" is one of the best plays ever written by an American author and one of the strongest produced in this city in years. It relates an interesting and forcible story in a forcible and dramatic manner. The attention of the audience is held from beginning to end, and the play is nightly received with much enthusiasm. The acting is good from first to last, and Miss Maude Granger was greeted with much applause and frequent calls before the curtain at each performance. The scenery is new and handsome, and the entire production a creditable one. "Lynwood" is a great success and will be continued for several weeks.—News, Sept. 14.

"LYNWOOD" will be produced at NIBLO'S GARDEN with a most powerful cast, including Miss Maude Granger, on Monday, December 1st.

A rapid round of Stars and Combinations will follow the above, all at popular prices.

THE "7 RAVENS" EN TOUR."

The [illegible] spectacle of the "7 Ravens" has just started on a tour of the principal cities of the South States and Canada under the management of Mr. Chas. A. Mendum. The play will be presented in the same brilliant manner which marked its deservedly great success at Niblo's. The "7 Ravens" will be produced in Providence, R. I., during Thanks giving week.

INTERIOR DECORATION.

Home Journal, Sept. 1884.

The rapid improvement in interior decoration results largely from the system now in vogue of placing the treatment of important orders entirely in the hands of artists especially trained in this department, many of the more wealthy giving them carte blanche in the matter. Some of the most elegant and tasteful designs that have recently attracted our notice were shown at the house of CHAS. ESTEN, 60 West 14th Street, N. Y., which presents an almost endless variety of rich and beautiful UPHOLSTERY GOODS, LACE CURTAINS, PORTIERES, PAPER HANGINGS, SHADES, &c. Mr. Esten has for twelve years been especially engaged in furnishing this class of goods for "the trade," and has during that period originated and introduced several of the now prevailing styles of interior decoration. The fact that several of the leading carpet and furniture houses have been placing their orders in his hands for execution, has confirmed his reputation for good taste and skill in the department of house decoration. To those now engaged in refurnishing, we say that the establishment at 60 West 14th Street is worth visiting.

NOTICE.—On account of the recent FIRE on premises some special bargains are to be obtained.

MISS FANNY DAVENPORT will appear this season at Niblo's Garden in her powerful acting of "Fedora."

NOTE.—If you want Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Neckwear, Gloves, Jewelry, Suspenders, Underwear, Hosiery, Umbrellas, Canes, Hats, Traveling Bags, or Steamer Rugs, you can find them in great variety at KERP'S. See other page. KERP MANUFACTURING CO., Broadway and Bleecker St.

The "7 Ravens" from Niblo's Garden, is now in the hands of manager CHAS. A. Mendum, he having secured the piece from Poole & Gilmore for a term of years. Mr. Mendum, by the way, is also manager for Mrs. Langtry.

The "Patrol of the Continentals," by A. W. Hoffman, is one of the attractive Entre Acts pieces played this week. Mr. Hoffman is the composer of most of the "7 Ravens" music.

A splendid opportunity to purchase Sealskin and Otter Sacques and Dolmans, Fur and Silk-lined Wraps, direct from a reliable manufacturer, is now offered by C. C. SHAYNE, 103 Prince Street, (near Broadway) New York. Mr. SHAYNE has the reputation of manufacturing the Leading Styles in reliable and elegant Furs, and is now selling at retail at regular wholesale prices. A word to the wise, etc. Ladies are taking advantage of this splendid chance, and Mr. SHAYNE'S store is crowded with purchasers.—N. Y. Tribune.

Your pianos astonish me; I assure you that I know never yet seen any Pianos which equal yours.

When Moore was getting his portrait painted by Newton, Sydney Smith, who accompanied the poet, said to to the artist, "Couldn't you contrive to throw into his face somewhat of a stronger expression of hostility to the Church Establishment?"

That clever little artiste Miss IRENE PERRY who takes the part of Harjorie in "Nell Gwynne" has had a Song-and-Dance especially written for her, which she will introduce in the second act of "Nell Gwynne."

"Lynwood," and undoubted success at the Union Square Theatre.

The scene of the play is laid in Kentucky in the time of the war. The event from which the plot is developed is a quarrel and resulting in a scuffle between a Federal captain and a Confederate colonel, in the course of which the latter is fatally stabbed by the lieutenant-colonel of his own regiment. The Union officer is suspected of the crime and indeed, fears himself that in a moment of uncontrollable frenzy he may have committed the deed. He confesses his supposed guilt to his betrothed, the sister to the murdered man, and is decoyed by her into a trap, where his life is about to be forfeited At the critical moment the truth is, of course, revealed by an unsuspected witness. Mr. Tillotson's play is not without considerable dramatic fire and with strong situations, and a drama of more than average merit. Miss Maude Granger as Lucille Carlyle was heartily and deservedly applauded.—N. Y. Herald.

Sohmer's "Bijou" Grand.

The latest success in a small Grand—5 feet 1 inch long—which has produced a genuine furore among those best able to pronounce judgment. The instrument is novel in design, entirely original in scale, and meets the approval of those seeking to economize in room, and at the same time own a grand piano. The most remarkable fact is, that this instrument has the power of the usual grand piano; the action is the same as that of a concert grand, pliable and velvety, and is in every respect just what is desired by experienced and able players.

The touch has that elastic and pleasing quality so anxiously sought by artists and dilettanti. Taken all in all—size, design, scale, tone and touch—this piece is undoubtedly a great step in advance in the construction of pianos in recent times, and will after examination by musicians, create as it has, among those who have heard it, a veritable furore.

Formerly the square piano was generally used, notwithstanding it was always cumbersome and inconvenient, as compared with the more elegant upright piano. Undoubtedly this was because the former was best as a musical instrument. Improvements in the Upright Piano have latterly given it the preference. Pianos only made by the MASON & HAMLIN Company is likely to give the upright still more acceptance. By an ingenious arrangement, they fasten the strings of the piano directly to the iron plate, dispensing with any intervention of wood. The result is more perfect vibration of the strings, producing more pure, refined musical tones, and much greater durability, including freedom from liability to get so easily out of tune.—Boston Journal.

"MONTE CRISTO"—THIS WEEK.

An excellent performance of "Monte Cristo" was given by John Stetson's Company. From Dumas' romantic novel the dramatist has made a play that is full of interest and holds the attention from beginning to end. It abounds in situations of the most exciting nature which are the result of an easy train of events. It is a series of pleasing pictures that leave a most pleasant impression, and as a specimen of careful acting and elaborate mounting it cannot but be remembered as one of the leading events of the season. Mr. James O'Neill was an excellent Edmund Dantes. From the light-hearted sailor, filled with joy at his promotion and his approaching marriage, he changes to the gloomy misanthrope, with heart and soul bent on vengeance, and he does it so well that never for an instant is the sympathy of his audience diverted from him. Mr. O'Neill has an attractive presence, a resonant voice, and complete control of himself. His description and several acts were liberally applauded. The audience was loudly appreciative, and the principal artists were called before the curtain repeatedly.—Baltimore Day, October 14.

"LYNWOOD."

"Lynwood" is one of the best plays ever written by an American author and one of the strongest produced in this city in years. It relates an interesting and forcible story in a forcible and dramatic manner. The attention of the audience is held from beginning to end, and the play is nightly received with much enthusiasm. The acting is good from first to last, and Miss Maude Granger was greeted with much applause and frequent calls before the curtain at each performance. The scenery is new and handsome, and the entire production a creditable one. "Lynwood" is a great success and will be continued for several weeks.—News, Sept. 14.

"LYNWOOD" will be produced at NIBLO'S GARDEN with a most powerful cast, including Miss Maude Granger, on Monday, December 1st.

A rapid round of Stars and Combinations will follow the above, all at popular prices.

THE "7 RAVENS" EN TOUR."

The gorgeous spectacle of the "7 Ravens" has just started on a tour of the principal cities of the United States and Canada under the management of Mr. Chas. A. Mendum, and will be presented in the same brilliant manner which marked its deservedly great success at Niblo's. The "7 Ravens" will be produced in Providence, R. I., during Thanks giving week.

INTERIOR DECORATION.

Home Journal, Sept. 26th.

The rapid improvement in interior decoration results largely from the system now in vogue of placing the treatment of important orders entirely in the hands of artists experienced in this department, many of the more wealthy giving them carte blanche in the matter. Some of the most elegant and tasteful designs that have recently attracted our notice were shown at the house of CHARLES EATON, 46 West 14th Street, N. Y., which presents an almost endless variety of rich and beautiful UPHOLSTERY GOODS, LACE CURTAINS, PORTIERES, PAPER HANGINGS, SHADES, &c. Mr. Eaton has for twelve years been especially engaged in furnishing this class of goods for "the trade," and has during that period originated and introduced several of the now prevailing styles of interior decoration. The fact that several of the leading carpet and furniture houses have been placing their orders in his hands for executing, has confirmed his reputation for good taste and skill in the department of house decoration. To those now engaged in refurnishing, we say that the establishment at 46 West 14th Street is well worth visiting.

NOTICE.—On account of the recent FIRE on premises some special bargains are to be obtained.

MISS FANNY DAVENPORT will appear this season at Niblo's Garden in her powerful setting of "Fedora."

NOTE.—If you want Shirts, Collars, Cuffs, Neckwear, Gloves, Jewelry, Suspenders, Underwear, Hosiery, Umbrellas, Canes, Hats, Traveling Bags, or Steamer Rugs, you can find them in great variety at KNOX'S, See other page. KNOX MANUFACTURING CO., Broadway and Bleecker St.

The "7 Ravens" from Niblo's Garden, is now in the hands of manager Chas. A. Mendum, he having secured the piece from Poole & Gilmore for a term of years. Mr. Mendum, by the way, is also manager for Mrs. Langtry.

The "Patrol of the Continentals," by A. W. Hoffman, is one of the attractive Entre Acte pieces played this week. Mr. Hoffman is the composer of most of the "7 Ravens" music.

A splendid opportunity to purchase Sealskin and Otter Sacques and Dolmans. Fur and Silk-lined Wraps, direct from a reliable manufacturer, is now offered by C. C. SHAYNE, 103 Prince Street, (near Broadway), New York. Mr. SHAYNE has the reputation of manufacturing the Leading Styles in reliable and elegant Furs, and is now selling at retail at regular wholesale prices. A word to the wise, etc. Ladies are taking advantage of this splendid chance, and Mr. SHAYNE'S store is crowded with purchasers.—N. Y. Tribune.

Your pianos astonish me; I assure you that I have never yet seen any Pianos which equal yours.

When Moore was getting his portrait painted by Newton, Sydney Smith, who accompanied the poet, said to the artist, "Could you contrive to throw into his face somewhat of a stronger expression of hostility to the Church Establishment?"

That clever little artiste Miss IRENE PERRY who takes the part of Marjorie in "Nell Gwynne" has had a Song-and-Dance especially written for her, which she will introduce in the second act of "Nell Gwynne."

"Lynwood," and undoubted success at the Union Square Theatre.
The scene of the play is laid in Kentucky in the time of the war. The event from which the plot is developed is a quarrel and resulting in a scuffle between a Federal captain and a Confederate colonel, in the course of which the latter is fatally stabbed by the lieutenant-colonel of his own regiment. The Union officer is suspected of the crime and indeed, fears himself that in a moment of uncontrollable frenzy he may have committed the deed. He confesses his supposed guilt to his betrothed, the sister to the murdered man, and is decoyed by her into a trap, where his life is about to be forfeited. At the critical moment the truth is, of course, revealed by an unsuspected witness. Mr. Tilotson's play is not without considerable dramatic fire and with strong situations, and a drama of more than average merit. Miss Maude Granger as Lucille Carlyste was heartily and deservedly applauded.—N. Y. Herald.

Sohmer's "Bijou" Grand.

The latest success is a small Grand—5 feet 1 inch long—which has produced genuine furore among those best able to pronounce judgment. The instrument is novel in design, entirely original in scale, and meets the approval of those seeking to economize in room, and at the same time own a grand piano. The most remarkable fact is, that this instrument has the power of the usual grand piano; the action is the same as that of a concert grand, pliable and velvety, and is in every respect just what is desired by experienced and able players.

The touch has that elastic and pleasing quality so anxiously sought by artists and dilettanti. Taken all in all—size, design, scale, tone and touch—this piano is undoubtedly a great step in advance in the construction of pianos in recent times, and will after examination by musicians, create as it has, among those who have heard it, a veritable furore.

Formerly the square piano was generally used, notwithstanding it was always cumbersome and inconvenient, as compared with the more elegant upright piano. Undoubtedly this was because the former was best as a musical instrument. Improvements in the Upright Piano have latterly given it the preference. One recently made by the MASON & HAMLIN Company is likely to give the upright still more acceptance. By an ingenious arrangement, they fasten the strings of the piano directly to the iron plate, dispensing with any intervention of wood. The result is more perfect vibration of the strings, producing more pure, refined musical tones, and much greater durability, including freedom from liability to get so easily out of tune.—Boston Journal.

"MONTE CRISTO"—THIS WEEK.

An excellent performance of "Monte Cristo" was given by John Ellerson's Company. From Dumas' romantic novel the dramatist has made a play that is full of interest and holds the attention from beginning to end. It abounds in situations of the most exciting nature which are the result of an easy train of events. It is a series of pleasing pictures that leave a most pleasant impression, and as a specimen of careful acting and elaborate mounting it cannot but be remembered as one of the leading events of the season. Mr. James O'Neill was an excellent Edmund Dantes. From the light-hearted sailor, filled with joy at his promotion and his approaching marriage, he changes to the gloomy misanthrope, with heart and soul bent on vengeance, and he does it so well that never for an instant is the sympathy of his audience diverted from him. Mr. O'Neill has an attractive presence, a resonant voice, and complete control of himself. He resists the temptation the part offers for over-acting, and gives a smooth and well-balanced impersonation. The scenery is of the most elaborate description and several acts were liberally applauded. The audience was loudly appreciative, and the principal artists were called before the curtain repeatedly.—Baltimore Day, October 14.

"LYNWOOD."

"Lynwood" is one of the best plays ever written by an American author and one of the longest produced in this city in years. It relates an interesting and forcible story in a forcible and dramatic manner. The attention of the audience is held from beginning to end, and the play is nightly received with much enthusiasm. The acting is good from first to last, and Miss Maude Granger was greeted with much applause and frequent calls before the curtain at each performance. The scenery is new and handsome, and the entire production a creditable one. "Lynwood" is a great success and will be continued for several weeks.—News, Sept. 14.

"LYNWOOD" will be produced at NIBLO'S GARDEN with a most powerful cast, including Miss Maude Granger and Mr. Gustavus Levick, on Monday, December 1st.

A rapid round of Stars and Combinations will follow the above, all at popular prices.

THE "7 RAVENS" EN TOUR.

The gorgeous spectacle of the "7 Ravens" has just started on a tour of the principal cities of the United States and Canada under the management of Mr. Chas. A. Mendum. The play will be presented in the same brilliant manner which marked its deservedly great success at Niblo's. The "7 Ravens" will be produced in Providence, R. I., during Thanksgiving week.

MEAN PEOPLE.—One of the oddest things in the world is the fact that mean people do not know that they are mean, but cherish a sincere conviction that they are the souls of generosity. You will hear them inveighing loudly against a neighbor who does not come up to the standard of a generous man, and decrying the sin of hoarding and withholding, without being sensible in the least that they are condemning themselves. They are usually people who are not given to self-criticism, and, if they were not amusing, they would be the most aggravating class alive.

MISS FANNY DAVENPORT will appear this season at Niblo's Garden in her powerful acting of "Fedora."

Love.—At three years of age we love our mothers; at six, our fathers; at ten, holidays; at sixteen, dress; at twenty, our sweetheart; at twenty five, our wives; at forty, our children; at sixty, ourselves.

Synonyms for "Births, Marriages and Deaths," continued to be multiplied by transatlantic journals. One paper styles them "Babies, Brides and Bodies." Another adopts "The Cradle, the Dragoon and the Tomb." A third, "Buds, Orange Blossoms and Cypress." But "Hatches, Matches and Dispatches" still carry off the palm.

The "7 Ravens" from Niblo's Garden, is now in the hands of manager Chas A. Mendum, he having secured the piece from Poole & Gilmore for a term of years. Mr. Mendum, by the way, is also manager for Mrs. Langtry.

The "Patrol of the Continentals," by A. W. Hoffman, is one of the attractive Entre Acte pieces played this week. Mr. Hoffman is the composer of most of the "7 Ravens" music.

A splendid opportunity to purchase Sealskin and Otter Sacques and Dolmans Fur and Silk lined Wraps, direct from a reliable manufacturer, is now offered by C. C. SHAYNE, 103 Prince Street, (near Broadway) New York. Mr. SHAYNE has the reputation of manufacturing the Leading Styles in reliable and elegant Furs, and is now selling at retail at regular wholesale prices. A word to the wise, etc. Ladies are taking advantage of this splendid chance, and Mr. SHAYNE'S store is crowded with purchasers.—N. Y. Tribune.

BETTER THAN NEW.—A man was describing to Douglas Jerrold the story of his courtship and marriage—how his wife had been brought up in a convent, and was on the point of taking the veil, when his presence burst on her enraptured sight, and she accepted him as her husband. "YOUTH."

The re-opening of this grand and beautiful theatre during the past week was a signal success and was crowded nightly with a large and fashionable audience at every representation, to witness the great Wallack's theatre success—entitled, "Youth"—which was magnificently produced under the present management. The new drop curtain was received with applause, and the beauty and splendor of the new adornments and decorations given the interior, and the richness and artistic arrangement of the draperies attracted the attention and admiration of every one present. Never since its erection has the interior presented so handsome an appearance, and Messrs. Poole & Gilmore are to be congratulated upon having under their control such a finely appointed dramatic temple of amusement.

The drama of "Youth" will be given with the following cast: Frank Darlington, Mr. Gustavus Levick; Rev. Mr. Darlington, Mr. R. F. McClannin; Colonel Dalton, Mr. G. W. Thompson; Major Reckley, Mr. J. W. Murray; Hon. Arthur Lavender, Mr. William Morris; Captain Loverton, Mr. P. Toole; Willie Spratley, Mr. Forbes Dawson; Larry O'Phesey, Mr. Frank Lamb; Tom Gardham, Mr. George Jordan; Miss Eve Melrosie, Miss Emmie Wilmot; Mrs. Darlington, Mrs. Charles Poole; Mrs. Walsingham, Miss Fanny Addison; Alice Wenlock, Miss Sarah Lascelles; Kitty Athol, Miss Minnie Vining; Amy Athol, Miss C. Calcraft; Bessie, Miss Mollie Revel and others.

Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday at 2 o'clock, for the special accommodation of ladies and children who are unable to attend the evening performances.

Monday September 11th will be presented the Union Square Theatre triumph, the "Lights O'London."

We notice the J. & C. Fischer Pianos are coming rapidly to the front as a leading Piano. These instruments have been in use over 40 years, and, to judge by their present popularity, are apt to continue in use many years longer.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

On Monday Evening, September 11th, the Programme Journal of this theatre will appear on an enlarged and improved Edition, with a new and artistic heading on the title page, and otherwise greatly improved.

"BETWEEN THE ACTS."

"What are the wild waves saying?" was asked a Chinaman, and he answered, "Washee, washee."

"I wonder," said an impecunious tenant, "if the reason the world moves, is because it can't pay rent!"

There's a young lady who follows the fashion so closely, that she will not eat oysters unless they are scalloped.

"Doctor, examine my tongue," said a good woman, "and tell me what it needs." "It needs rest," replied the doctor.

A writer claiming that his works contained much "food for thought," a friend remarked, "That may be so; but it is wretchedly cooked."

"The time is past," said a smart boy to his father, "when you can delude me into the belief that the public procession is all there is of the circus."

"Is the howling of a dog always followed by a death?" asked a little girl of her father. "Not always, my dear; because sometimes the man that shoots misses him," was the reply.

Some men always look on the bright side. Said the gentleman who was run over by the "Black Maria," "Well, there's one consolation! The fact that I was run over by the thing shows that I wasn't inside it."

Wife—much given to talk to her husband, who is reading the newspaper aloud: "What's the cloture, John?"—Husband: "It's an invention, my dear, for preventing folk from speaking too much. I think I'll invest in one."

A quarrelsome couple were discussing the subject of epitaphs and tombstones, and the husband said: "My dear, what kind of a stone do you suppose they will give me when I die?" "Brimstone, my love," was the affectionate reply.

A young scholar, the first day at school, was asked her name by the teacher, and replied. Her father's name was the next question, and she did not know his first name. The teacher then asked her, "What does your mother call him?"—"Yon, Jackass!" said the child.

A lady engaging a page, explained to him that she liked her servants to have plenty to eat, but she didn't like anything wasted. "Lor, no ma'am," said the lad; "I've just the same feelings myself. I'd eat till I bust rather than have anything wasted!"

Among the replies to an advertisement of a music committee for "a candidate as organist, music teacher, &c.," was the following: "Gentlemen, I noticed your advertisement for an organist and music teacher, either lady or gentleman. Having been both for several years, I offer you my services."

"Smith," said Brown, "there's a fortune in that mine, I tell you." "Yes, Smith, I know there is. In fact, there are several fortunes in it, and I know the fools who put 'em in."

Said a student of one college to a friend who was attending a rival institution, "Your college never turns out gentlemen." "No," was the reply, "our college allows gentlemen to go right on and graduate."

When a man dies suddenly, "without the aid of a physician," the coroner must be called in. If a man dies regularly, after being treated by a doctor, everybody knows why he died, and the coroner's inquest is not necessary.

"How many verste is it from St. Petersburg to Moscow?" asked a gentleman of the American Minister at the Russian Court. "Really," answered the ambassador, "I don't know, I have not yet become versed in these Russian distances."

THEATRE NOTES.

The Lights O'London will be presented at Niblo's with great splendor on Monday, September 11th.

Remarkable quickness at repartee was displayed by an actor at the Belleville Theater, says Chambers' Journal, when some one threw the head of a goose on the stage. Advancing to the front, the player said: "Gentlemen, if any among you has lost his head do not be uneasy, for I will restore it at the conclusion of the performance."

The Italian opera in London begins at 8.30 o'clock. The price for the best seats, "orchestra stalls," is $6.25; for seats in the balcony, $3.75, and for seats in the highest gallery, sixty-five cents. The prices for the other seats are, according to location, $2.60, $1.75 and $1.25.

Mrs. Langtry closed her tour of the British provinces at Nottingham, July 22. She was then presented by the members of her company with a handsome album, containing all their portraits, and inscribed: "L. L. From the members of her company, on completion of her first tour. Nottingham, July 22, 1882."

"Yes," said the actor to the clergyman as they met after service "I was in front this morning. Business good, isn't it? Why, you must have had fourteen hundred people in the house; all the best seats filled, and a good many standees. I call it good business for this season, and with strong attractions against you. You've caught on in this town and no mistake."

And the actor walked away, convinced that he had said the handsome thing to the clergyman.

There were a bevy of noted actresses visiting Long Branch during the season. Among the more prominent of these were the Misses Rose Coghlan, Minnie Palmer, Minnie Cummings and Kate Forsyth. Miss Coghlan sits and looks at the ocean; Miss Palmer promenades and dances; and Miss Forsyth walks along the beach.

And so, "taking the time as it flies," they have had a jolly and refreshing Summer of it."

Mr. Bronson Howard's new society drama will be produced at the Madison Square October 9, the previous Saturday being the last of "Esmeralda." His play turns on the estrangement of a married couple through misunderstanding. They decide to be divorced, and are taking active measures to that end, when they find out their hearts by recalling the memory of a dead child. The piece promises to be effective. The title will be "Won and Re-won."

Rudolf Aronson's opera, "Captain Kydd," will be produced at the New Casino, New York, on October 6, and is intended to run two weeks. A chorus will be specially imported for it. The third of the attractions at the New Casino will be the "Queen's Lace Handkorchief," to be produced on October 16.

Mr. Frank Hardenburg, who is very useful in a limited line of work in a stock company, proposes to shine as a "star" during the coming season. We imagine he will discover in the end that a regular salary in a regular theatre is his "best hold."

JAMES J. COONAN, Prop.

In September, Miss Minnie Palmer will make her appearance at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. Of course, John Rogers—not the original martyr, but the man who booms "My Sweetheart"—will make himself heard and seen of all men.

Andrew Waldron's M'liss Combination, which is authorized by Robert Fulford, possesses all the requirements necessary to success, viz.: a fine play, new and elegant scenery, and a strong cast. Their time is nearly all filled.

Said Mrs. Langtry to an interviewer recently: "I am sure I shall like the Americans. They are so much more courteous and generous than the English. The Americans I have met seem to me to resemble the French in regard to politeness, and that is why I like them, I suppose; for, you know, I am French. We all speak French in Jersey, and I can talk easily in the Jersey patois; but at home we generally spoke English, because my mother was a Scotchwoman. I am looking forward anxiously to my first appearance in New York three months hence. Until then I do not play here, except for two weeks in London, when we shall do 'As You Like It,' and I shall make my first appearance as Rosalind.

DYING FOR DINNER.—A good old farmer fonnd himself one day with his boy at the extreme end of the row, when the dinner bell sounded. Anxious to make every step count he commenced to hoe his way back, saying to the boy as he did so, "Thomas, do you ever think about dying?" "Yes," said Tom, "I think I shall die pretty soon if I don't have some dinner."

"CASTLES IN SPAIN."

The great "Castles in Spain" that has had a run of 400 nights in Barcelona, Spain, 250 in Madrid, 90 in Havana, and 114 in the city of Mexico, will be produced at this theatre commencing Monday, May 9th.

The scenery, costumes and properties have arrived all safe, and are in the hands of capable workmen retouching what was injured in its journey from Spain to this port. We can safely say, Signor A. Bernis is not bringing a "catch-penny" show to this city, as there are only two vessels in the trade from here to Mexico that had the capacity to carry the scenery and paraphernalia.

A new and original libretto has been written by a journalist of this city.

The play is full of comical incidents and sparkling music, and a strong company and chorus has been formed under the leadership of Signor Rialph, of H. M. English Opera.

Signor Lepri, ballet-master, Amelia Lepri, premier assoluta, and several ladies of the corps de ballet have arrived, and the rest will arrive within the week. Several prominent American artists have been engaged in this city, and all rehearsals are being conducted by master hands, and we can safely predict that Signor Bernis is determined to give his spectacle on as grand a scale here, as it has been given in the cities where it has met with such success.

"Opera Puffs" Cigarettes! The Amber prepared part that is put in the mouth will not stick to the lips.

The arrangements of the Post-office Department of the American Exchange in Europe (London), must be indeed the perfection of completeness. The number of letters received for the thousands of travelers using the Exchange is simply incredible —special deliveries being made by the mail authorities in London, in consequence of the enormous bulk conveyed by each steamer for the Exchange. The management request their friends to instruct their correspondents in address them by their full names, adding the name of city they hail from, stating that: "Without this precaution it has occurred that Mr. John Smith, a young bachelor of our acquaintance, gets the intelligence that his eldest child has the measles, and Mr. John Smith, a sober business veteran, receives a letter reminding him of some previous gay and festive proceeding, and is invited to return the twenty dollars he borrowed."

"SAM'L OF POSEN."

It has long been a subject of wonderment to me why the dramatists have not pounced upon a character which seems apparently fitted for stage delineation and which offers a broad and fertile field for treatment. We mean the commercial drummer. It is certainly strange that this peculiar and unique productoin of modern civilization should not long ago have been thoroughly exploited. But for some reason or other, the dramatic writers have fought shy of this interesting subject, and it remained for Mr. George Jessop to embody him as the central figure of a play. "Sam'l of Posen" is in three acts, the interest attaching to the hero, Sam'l Plastrick, a Hebrew drummer. This role has been assumed by Mr. M. B. Curtis, and he has acquitted himself of his task ably. Mr. Curtis has introduced a new creation to the American stage, and his conception of the Hebrew drummer is essentially typical. The Jew, hitherto, has received little favor from the dramatists. From the Bard of Avon to the present time he has always been represented with qualities and characteristics which must inevitably repel any feeling of sympathy for him. In "Sam'l of Posen" this is reversed. The Hebrew traits are pronounced in the drummer; but they are those qualities which have made the Israelitish race the most energetic and dangerous competitor in the various professions and callings —indomitable pluck and perseverance, a strong passion for acquisitiveness, unbounded energy and self-confidence, and push and go-aheadedness. Although these characteristics are typical, there is also that human affection and charity in the Jew as in the Gentile. Therefore it is a new phase of Judaic character which Mr. Curtis depicts—the typical qualities of the race as it is to-day. And such a portrayal loses all offensiveness, even to the most sensitive Hebrews themselves. Mr. M. B. Curtis's assumption of Sam'l Plastrick and highly finished. His "make-up" is most excellent and he looks the character to a T. He does not overexaggerate, but presents a striking counterpart of the drummer class. As a dialectician Mr. Curtis is likewise admirable, and his German and broken English were capital. In the hands of Mr. Curtis Sam'l Plastrick has become a permanent stage personage. His easy, quiet, but realistic assumption of the Hebrew has greatly added to the interest with which the spectators watch the innocent drummer.—St. Louis Spectator.

"THE MASCOTTE."

At the Bijou Opera House there is now being performed Audran's delightful new opera of "The Mascotte," pronounced by many even brighter, as it is musically superior, to that composer's successful opera of "Olivette." The opera is rendered by the Wilbur Opera Company. The costumes and scenery are new, and the company, which contains the principal members of the Boston Company, is an excellent one.

THE IRON.—"The iron has entered my soul," exclaimed the barefooted newsboy who trod on a tenpenny nail.

ARCTIC ICE.—A school-boy wrote:—"When people write about arctic ice, it is said that they refer to ice up North, which is as old as the ark."

HOSPITALITY.—Let not the emphasis of hospitality lie in bed and board, but let truth and love, and honor and courtesy flow in thy deeds.

THE EMINENT PIANIST.

New York, April 16th, 1883.

My wife, Mme. Julia Rivé-King, has been a severe sufferer for years from General Debility, after treatment from many Eminent Physicians, I can say the use of Summit Mineral Spring Water has cured her.

We have just finished a tour of five months, covering nearly every portion of the United States and Canada, we have had the Summit Water shipped to us from place, and believe it priceless, and strongly recommend it to all suffering from general debility.

FRENCH GALLANTRY.—"What age do you think I am?" asked a lady of Mirabeau. "I don't know, madame, but whatever it is, you don't look it," was the reply.

A CASE FOR SYMPATHY.—Sympathetic Sister: "What is the matter, Julia? You look as sorrowful as a sick lapdog!"—Julia: Oh, don't perplex me that's a dear! My grief is too great for utterance. I've had such an awful vision. I actually dreamed that Rosa Smith had got a new silk dress."

PARADISE.—"Papa," asked a boy, "what is meant by Paradise?" "Paradise, my son," replied the father, "is the latter part of summer when your mother goes on a visit to your grandfather."

THE CREDIT SYSTEM.—A beautiful girl with a pair of pouting lips stepped into a store to buy a pair of mits. "How much are they?" "Why," said the gallant but imprudent clerk, lost in gazing upon her sparkling eyes and ruby lips, "you shall have them for a kiss!" "Agreed!" said the young lady, pocketing the gloves, and her eyes speaking daggers, "and as I see you give credit here, charge it on your books, and collect in it the best way you can!" so saying, she hastily tripped out at the door.

HIS IMPLEMENT FOR CORNS.—Some chap advertises to remove corns without using a knife. We suspect he uses an axe, or hand saw, or mowing machine.

ONE FOR MASTER LAWYER.—A well-known attorney at the criminal bar, who prides himself upon his skill in cross-examining a witness, had an odd-looking ge' 'm to operate. "Yon say, prisoner is a thief?" ' ., 'cause why, she confessed it.' "And you also swear she bound shoes for you subsequent to the confession?" "I do, sir." "Then," giving a sagacious look at the court, "we are to understand that you employ dishonest people to work for you, even after their rascalities are known?" "Of course; how else could I get assistance from a lawyer." The attorney said, "Stand aside."

JONES and Brown met Tompkins the other day, and said: "I say, Tompkins, we have been disputing whether you are most knave or fool." Tompkins took each of the querists by the arm, and cried out: "Well, to tell you the truth I believe I am between the two."

A CHALLENGE.—An anatomical observer asserted a few days ago that there were 489,881 feathers on the wings of a butterfly. "I don't believe it," said the hearer. "Then count them for yourself," was the quick reply.

Try Veteran Cigarettes & Tobacco. Very mild & Pure.

UNGRATEFUL.—A lady asked a theatrical manager, whom she knew, for a box, which the latter, the free list being "entirely suspended," was compelled to refuse. The lady was much vexed by the refusal. "You may remember, madam," timidly remarked the manager, "that I have sent you twelve boxes during the last three months.' "Yes," she promptly replied, with a little sneer, "and every one of them upper boxes." There is no pleasing some people.

HOW OBTAINED.—A person looking at some skeletons the other day asked a young doctor present where he got them. He replied "We raised them."

DETERMINED.—A quiet and peaceable gentleman has recently given up business, let his house, sent his family into the country, and calmly announces his determination of devoting the remainder of his life to discovering the man who sent him a brick by express from Europe, with $7.00 charges on it.

THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend, as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing out here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the sententious answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," gruffly replied the sleepy philosopher.

PICKING APPLES.—"When is the best time to pick apples?" This is a very simple question. The best time for such work is when the farmer is not looking and there is no big dog in the orchard.

MY DEAR MR. GAYLER:

I take much pleasure in sending to you, for your exclusive use, the prompt copy of "The Connie Soogah," as written by you and performed by Mr. Williams and myself for several seasons, with unvarying success, in America, England, Ireland and Scotland.

I have received many applications for the use of "The Connie Soogah," which I have declined, as I felt that if ever revived, it should be under the direction of its author. With best wishes for your success, I remain yours sincerely.

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

THE New York Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force, and after frequent consultations, reached the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Knox, leaving it to his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from nine different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled.—From December Trade Journal.

HAVERLY'S NIBLO'S GARDEN.

From the days when the first German comedian, so called, made his bow upon the American stage and the shock head and queer wooden shoes were seen for the first time, a warm corner in all hearts has been kept for the impersonators of our Rhineland brethren; and the nominal "Dutch dialect" has become as familiar as the Milesian brogue. Emmet and "Fritz" have become the Siamese twins of nomenclature, and the artist may well be proud of a nevermalling popularity which sterling merit alone has won. As Fritz, in the drama called "Fritz in Ireland," has achieved a success that has but few parallels, and has established himself as the leading comedian of the time. Mr. EMMET will appear at Niblo's Garden Theatre on Monday evening, 8th instant.

HAVERLY'S 14TH ST. THEATRE.

"The White Slave." Mr. Barney Campbell's latest contribution to the literature of the stage, has achieved a decided success, and will undoubtedly hold the boards for a lengthy period. The play has been unanimously praised by the leading news papers and the verdict of the public—more important still—is in accord with that of the critics. Mr. Campbell has done so much excellent work that we need not feel any surprise at the pleasing result of his latest venture—on the contrary, we were confident that the man who could construct such a work as "My Partner," or "Fairfax," or "My Geraldine," could not fail to write an interesting play; and "The White Slave" proves conclusively that Mr. Campbell is a playwright of no doubtful order, but one entitled to the distinction of a leading position in the guild.

The White Slave possesses all the elements of success. It is alternately humorous and pathetic, and in some phases quite powerful. It is admirably acted, and its scenic adornments are worthy of liberal commendation.

HAVERLY'S FIFTH AVE. THEATRE.

Maurice Grau's magnificent French Opera Company is achieving a brilliant and well-merited success, the theatre being packed at each representation with audiences of discernment, intelligence and taste. Mr. Grau's Company contains some of the finest artists of the Parisian stage, Mlle. Paola Marie, Madame Privat, Mlle. Dalmont and others being included in its organization. During the sojourn of this great troupe a number of the most successful operas of their extensive repertoire will be presented, the programme being changed at short intervals. The repertoire for this the second week is as follows:

Monday and Wednesday evenings and Saturday matinee, "Le Jour et la Nuit."
Tuesday evening, "Carmen."
Thursday and Saturday evenings, "Paul et Virginie."
Friday evening, "Olivette."

Lotta appears at the Windsor Theatre on Monday evening, May 8th.

The last nights of the "White Slave" are announced at Haverly's Fourteenth Street Theatre.

"The World" will be seen during the present week at Haverly's Niblo's Garden Theatre.

Bartley Campbell's exquisite drama, "Fairfax," will be played at the Novelty Theatre each evening of the current week.

Fay Templeton's Comic Opera Company is this week at Col. Sinn's Brooklyn Park Theatre.

Maurice Grau's French Opera Company is doing a good business at Haverly's Fifth Avenue Theatre. The repertoire, an extensive one, is varied and interesting.

"After the Opera," Gunter's new play, is running quite successfully at Abbey's Park Theatre.

The many friends of J. H. Haverly will be pleased to learn that the plucky and enterprising little manager is quite well, and is enjoying himself hugely in the modern Babylon. While in London he will keep his eyes open with a view to securing the best attractions for his theatres. Mr. Haverly will return about the latter part of July.

"Edgewood Folks," with Sol Smith Russell as Tom Dillaway, is this week the attraction at the Novelty Theatre. "Edgewood Folks" is a most pleasing and instructive little play.

Mr. James O'Neil will play in the fine drama, entitled "A Celebrated Case," at the Windsor Theatre on Monday, May 15th.

Mr. J. K. EMMET will appear at Niblo's Garden Theatre next Monday evening in his great character of Fritz, in the romantic play entitled "Fritz in Ireland."

Mr. J. T. RAYMOND will introduce "Fresh, the American," on the evening of the 15th instant, at Niblo's Garden Theatre.

At HAVERLY'S Brooklyn Theatre the Rice Surprise Party will this this week, play "Cinderella at School," "Billee Taylor," and "The Mascotte."

At the San Francisco Minstrels Opera House "All at Sea," a pleasing musical comedy, is continued upon the bills, and as yet no intimation of its withdrawal is announced. Dashing Kate Castleton, Frank Bush, and other clever artists are employed in "All at Sea."

MINNIE MADDERN.—On Monday evening, May 15th, the talented young artiste, Miss Minnie Maddern, begins a starring engagement at Abbey's Park Theatre, in her new comedy-drama, "Fogg's Ferry," supported by a strong dramatic company, under the management of Mr. John H. Havlin. Miss Maddern is one of the most pleasing young actresses on the stage, and will become a great favorite in New York as she is in the West. The play is exciting and invigorating in tone, and will prove quite a treat to the theatre-goers of New York.

JUMBO.—The Wonderful Jumbo has gone. But THE PROSPECT still remains the Popular House where the hungry are fed and the thirsty drink the sparkling wine. Grand Concert in the Garden, commencing 8 o'clock nightly, 106 & 108 East 14th Street, near 4th Avenue. Patrons of theatres are admitted without check.

THE LONDON AND LIVERPOOL CLOTHING COMPANY, who have their magnificent stores corner of Grand Street and Broadway, and Hester Street and Bowery, have the finest assortment of goods for Men, Boys and Children, in the city. Their modus operandi in business is the best goods at lowest prices, and any person who doubts this assertion should visit either of their stores, where they will be treated with the greatest courtesy whether they purchase or not, as the energetic manager of this Company, Mr. Davis, is exalated in politeness by all his employees. All goods purchased from this Company are guaranteed as to fit and style, and if not satisfactory can be returned.

New York.

IN OUR NEW PATTERNS for the coming season will be found a reproduction of the most choice and expensive fabrics of European design and manufacture, among which appear quaint old Dutch and Venetian leathers, antique metals and velvets, and the woven tapestries so much used in former times. We offer a decided novelty in the genuine velvets, which can be hung like wall paper, and which in softness of tone and delicacy of shading, richly decorated with antique designs, stamped and raised upon their surface, cannot be excelled.

Our unusual facilities for producing these richer fabrics have also been turned to good account in the cheaper varieties of paper-hangings made by us, which represent, to an astonishing degree, the same beauty of design and coloring, thus placing truly artistic effects within reach of the lowest prices.

The preparation of suitable designs for Ceiling Decoration has been made a matter of special consideration. To insure hurmony of detail, we will, if desired, attend to the entire work of Interior Decoration, for which we employ the best talent, and to which we give our personal supervision.

The Rev. Father Scully, of Cambridge, is a severe condemner of church fairs, and preaches against them. "A Checkered Life," a new domestic drama from the pen of A. Z. Chipman, Esq., will be produced at Haverly's Fifth Avenue Theatre upon the completion of the Grau Opera Season. The management intend mounting the new play in the elegant style that characterizes the productions at this fashionable house.

ROTTEN ROW.—The derivation of "Rotten Row," is disputed. In Timbs, "Curiosities in London" the word "Rotten" is said to have come from rotteran, to muster. Other authorities say that it came from Route du Roi, the King's road.

Return to America of Haverly's United Mastodon Minstrels.

In their recent auspicious trip to Great Britain, Haverly's "United Mastodon Minstrels" attained a success that is acknowledged by the press of both hemispheres as phenomenal in the history of amusements. Never, within the past decade, has any troupe, or even artist, met with triumphs so signal and pronounced, or greeted by audiences so vast and enthusiastic, or received ovations so overwhelming and genuine. From the night of the first appearance of the "Mastodons" at Her Majesty's Theatre, London—the largest Thespian temple of the largest city in the world—until the closing performance, the capacity of the great structure was taxed to its utmost, and throngs were each night unable to gain admission. During the London engagement the "Mastodons" were frequently honored with the patronage of H. R. H., the Prince of Wales, the Royal Family, and the entire nobility of the British Kingdom, thus proudly endorsing the excellence and refinement of the entertainments. Now the "Mastodons" return to their native land, crowned with additional laurels of bright victories, and justly boastful of having earned a prestige of superiority that has never been, nor ever can be equalled. They bore into the Old World banners on which were inscribed their successes in the New; these banners they now bring back adorned with new trophies of artistic merit. The "Mastodons" sojourn in America at this time has necessarily to be brief, owing to the engagements that demand their early return to "the land beyond the sea." Their tour of the principal cities of the Union will consequently be comet-like, brilliant and dazzling, as well as swift, for in the fall they will repeat their transatlantic glories.

ON TRIAL.—A client is never certain about a lawyer, and generally takes him on trial.

ORDERLY HABITS.—It would not be easy to detail in all its force the misery which is caused by the early neglect of orderly habits. It is a source not only of frightful unhappiness in families, but of great public vice; for, after all, the world is made up of those whose characters have been formed for good or for evil by the early training and example of mothers.

READ OF.—"Ah, my good fellow," said one man to another, slapping him familiarly on the shoulder, "you're one of the men we read of!" "How so?" inquired the other. "Where did you read of me?" "In the Police Gazette." "The man we read of" drew his fist, but the other was at a safe distance.

NOT FAR WRONG.—A little girl, being reproved the other day by her elder sister for using a slang expression, sharply retorted, "Well, if you went into society more you would hear slang."

WICKED GIRL.—"Oh, my own precious Maud, give me one spray of your shining hair, that I may wear it next to my heart," said he. "No sir. Hair costs money, and I won't give it away," said she.

DETERMINED.—A quiet and peaceable gentleman has recently given up business, let his house, sent his family into the country, and calmly announces his determination of devoting the remainder of his life to discovering the man who sent him a brick by express from Europe, with $7 00 charges on it.

A SHOCKING BELL.—A gentleman challenged a renowned pedestrian and runner to a race of a considerable distance with him, simply stipulating that the champion of the "footcourse" should carry ten pounds weight of any article his challenger might choose to select. In all the pride of well-tested powers, the champion cried "Done" to the bargain when, lo and behold! his opponent selected—not only for the effectual impediment, but the most grotesque adornment of his competitor—ten pound-weight of full-blown bladders! It is needless to add that the man with speed of foot lost his wager to the man with deeds of wit.

AMERICAN statesmen should know that a learned class is an essential element of a State—at least, of a Christian state.

AN old bachelor probably wrote the following:

"'Twixt women and wine
Man's lot is to smart;
'Tis wine makes his head ache,
And woman his heart."

ALLEN'S BRAIN FOOD is beyond doubt the most reliable, useful and permanent tonic to the genital organs of both sexes, known. Acting directly upon the nervous system it restores the debilitated functions of the principal organs of the human frame, and is unsurpassed as a nervine. Its merits are a powerful, permanent and determined aphrodisiac as well as an alterative aperient of remarkably fine quality. Sold by all Druggists. $1 package; 6 for $5. Send for Circular to ALLEN'S Pharmacy, 315 First Av., New York.

NOT SO MAD.—The following dialogue is reported to have taken place between a gamekeeper and a patient looking through the iron gate of a lunatic asylum:—Patient: "That's a fine horse; what's it worth?"—Keeper: "A hundred pounds."—Patient: "And what did that gun cost?"—Keeper: "Five pounds."—Patient: "And those dogs?"—Keeper: "Ten pounds, I believe."—Patient: "What have you got in that gamebag?"—Keeper: "A woodcock."—Patient: "Well, now, you had better hurry on, for if our governor catches a man who has spent a hundred and fifteen pounds to get a woodcock worth half a crown he'll have him under lock and key in no time, I tell you."

IT is when a man rises above his circumstances and moods that true manhood shows itself.

AWKWARD.—A bashful young man mortally offended the bride of his most intimate friend by stammering, when taken aback by a request for a toast at the wedding. "Tom, my first friend, may you have a wedding once a year as long as you live."

THE CREDIT SYSTEM.—A beautiful girl with a pair of pouting lips stepped into a store to buy a pair of mits. "How much are they?" "Why," said the gallant but imprudent clerk, lost in gazing upon her sparkling eyes and ruby lips, "you shall have them for a kiss!" "Agreed!" said the young lady, pocketing the gloves, and her eyes speaking daggers, "and as I see you give credit here, charge it on your books, and collect in it the best way you can!" so saying, she hastily tripped out at the door.

FRENCH GALLANTRY.—"What age do you think I am?" asked a lady of Mirabeau. "I don't know, madame, but whatever it is, you don't look it," was the reply.

THE SULTAN'S SERVANTS.—The Sultan of Turkey employs about his palace six thousand servants of both sexes, and he just monopolizes the columns of the Constantinople Herald with "wants" for girls "to do general housework." If it is absolutely necessary to have six thousand servants about the house in order to be a Sultan, we shall never ran for the office. By the way, if the Sultan's servants take their turns one at a time in getting "Sunday out," there must be a long wait for some of them."

ONE FOR MASTER LAWYER.—A well-known attorney at the criminal bar, who prides himself upon his skill in cross-examining a witness, had an odd-looking genius upon whom to operate. "You say, sir, that the prisoner is a thief?" "Yes, sir, 'cause why, she confessed it." "And you also swear she bound shoes for you subsequent to the confession?" "I do, sir." "Then," giving a sagacious look at the court, "we are to understand that you employ dishonest people to work for you, even after their rascalities are known?" "Of course; how else could I get assistance from a lawyer." The attorney said, "Stand aside."

A MAN recently knocked down an elephant, a lion, and a rhinoceros. He was an auctioneer.

THE FIRST THING.—A little girl was listening with much interest to the story of Jonah. When the question was asked, "What would you suppose would be the first thing Jonah would do after the great fish threw him upon the land?" she answered, promptly: "I s'pect fink he'd go home quick as he could and get cleaned up"

MARRIAGE is the one thing in which a mistake is fatal. In other affairs experience may profit one, but in marriage wisdom lies in forethought.

CURIOUS MOTTOES.—The trade mottoes of some of the London associations are curious. The blacksmiths, for instance, have "By hammer and hand all arts do stand;" the distillers, "Drop as rain, distil as dew;" the founders, "God the only founder;" the innholder, "Come, ye blessed; when I was harborless ye lodged me;" the joiners "Join loyalty and liberty;" the saddlers, "Hold fast; sit sure;" the weavers, "We weave truth with trust;" and the needlemakers, "They sewed leaves together and made themselves aprons!"

Sealskin Sacques and Dolmans, Fur-Lined Circulars and Wraps, are the leading fashionable furs this season. The shapes introduced by C. C. SHAYNE, wholesale Fur Manufacturer, 103 Prince Street, (formerly Broadway, opp. Stuarts), are the most popular. A large stock, finished too late for holiday wholesale trade, is now offered at retail. Splendid opportunity to secure strictly reliable fashionable garments cheap.

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

THE NEW YORK Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force, and after frequent consultations, reached the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Knox, leaving it to his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from nine different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled.—From December Trade Journal.

TRANCE-ACTION.—Walking in one's sleep.

WHAT HE WEIGHED.—"Tom, you seem to gain flesh every day; the grocery business must agree with you. What did you weigh last?" "Well, Jim, I really forget now; but it strikes me it was a pound of butter."

NOT IN THIS CASE.—When Longfellow was presented to Mr. Longworth, the latter remarked, "There is no great difference in our names."—"NO," replied Mr. Longfellow, "but words makes the man, the want of it the fellow."

SELF-DEFEATED.—Dishonesty often defeats its own purposes. This occurs very forcibly to a man when he sneaks down the alley to get a drink, and meets his pastor just coming out of the back door, wiping his mouth with the back of his hand.

STRIKING.—An Irishman, angry at being late, and hearing the clock strike, broke its face with his cane. The owner expostulated. "Faith, sir," said the Irishman, "the clock struck first."

WHAT YOU WISH TO DO, DO THOR UGHLY.—If you wish to do good, do good; if you wish to assist people, assist people. The only way to learn to do a thing is to do it, and that implies before you learn to do right you will do wrong—you will make blunders, you will have failures—but persevere, and in the end you will learn your lesson, and many other lessons by the way.

A DISTINCTION.—A nobleman who is in the habit of speaking to soldiers in an affable manner, was much amused lately when a guardsman said to him, in a hearty and genial way, "I like you, my lord. There's nothing of the gentleman about you."

OF

The most difficult problem which confronts each manufacturer, in the production of a fine toilet soap, consists in producing a soap which will not waste away too rapidly, and which will not crack, chap or peel off. This problem has been solved by L. Eeckelaer, of Brussels, whose soaps have received the highest awards at the principal World's Fairs, and which are now sold in the United States by C. N. Myers, L. PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S steward, Mr. WM. T. CRUMPS, says: "Summit Mineral Water did me more good in two months, than all the remedies I used in 17 years." It is one of the pleasantest table waters in the world. Try it.

"Really, my dear," said Mr. Jones to his better half, "you have sadly disappointed me. I took you elected from a band of a woman, but you've turned out only a bit of metallic taste." "Then, my love," was the reply, "console yourself with the idea that paste is very adhesive, and as long as you live."

OVER-APPRECIATIVE.—Mr. Edwin Booth says that the most genuine compliment he ever received was on the occasion of his playing Iago for the first time at Grass Valley, then a new mining camp. The audience, which had never "pulled out their shooters" in the middle of the third act and began blazing away at the stage. Othello had the tip of his nose shot off at the first volley, and Mr. Booth escaped by rolling over and over up the stage, and disappearing through a trap door. A speech from the manager somewhat calmed the house; but even then Mr. Booth thought it best to pass the night in the theatre, as a number of the most elevated spectators were making strenuous efforts to induce the vigilance committee to turn out and lynch "the infernal sneaking cuss," as they called him.

CAPTURING HIS GAME ALIVE.—A party of soldiers "out West," not having much to do, resolved to go bear hunting. They had been out about sixteen hours and had not seen a bear, and being tired and hungry, returned to camp. On their arrival at headquarters, they missed one of their companions, but thought nothing of it, one of them remarking, "He will return all right." They made their camp fire, and commenced preparing for supper. They had the coffee over the fire; one of them was slicing some potatoes, another was stewing some meat, and the remainder sat around the fire waiting, when they were all startled by a terrible noise that seemed to come nearer to camp. Suddenly the thickets parted, and in rushed the missing man, his hair standing on end, his face deadly white, his gun gone, and his arms flying in the air, as if grasping for imaginary objects, and about two feet behind him came a big black bear. The soldiers seized their guns, and one of them, leveling his piece, shot the bear dead. The pursued soldier turned when he saw the bear drop, and, looking at one of them, said breathlessly "Is he dead?" One of the men asked, "Why didn't you shoot him, instead of running?" "What do you take me for?" replied the missing one. Don you think I was such a darned fool as to shoot him when I could bring him in alive?"

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME
—OF—
HAVERLY'S
Niblo's Garden Theatre.

HAVERLY'S NIBLO'S GARDEN.

The great sensational spectacular drama of "The World," which was the success at Wallack's Theatre last season, will be produced at Niblo's next Monday evening, Sept. 5th.

All the magnificent scenery and realistic effects, including the famous "Raft Scene," "The Infernal Machine," "The Lunatic Asylum," The Last Drop of Water," and the exquisite views on the Thames River, will be taken from Wallack's Theatre, and placed on the stage at Niblos.

"The World" will be cast [to the full strength of Brooks' and Dickson's powerful Dramatic Company—an organization which for magnitude and merit has not been equalled in this city, in plays of this character.

At McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, the sign "SEASONS. ROOM ONLY" was displayed every night for the unprecedented long run in that city of five weeks.

Seats for every performance of "The World" can now be secured at the Box Office.

HAVERLY'S 14TH ST. THEATRE.

Miss Jennie Lee, who has gained in England a very enviable reputation by her rendering of "Jo," the permanent character in an adaptation of Dickens' "Bleak House," appears at the Fourteenth Street Theatre for a brief period. "Jo" has been played for nearly five years in London and the English provincial cities, and as the exponent of this character Miss Lee has been literally covered with praise. Mr. J. P. Burnett and Mr. J. A. Howell who acted in England with Miss Lee are included in her present support.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

The "Mascotte," of which the public never seems to grow weary, will receive a limited number of representations at this house. This delightful little opera will be represented by the Wilbur Opera Company, an organization that has enjoyed much popularity, and deservedly so wherever it has appeared. In order to give to these representations of the "Mascotte" the impor tance that the work so fully merits, the orchestra has been augmented and a powerful and efficient chorus has been engaged. Owing to prior contracts that do not admit of postponement the "Mascotte" will necessarily be withdrawn after Saturday evening, 15th instant and on Monday, the Comley-Barton Company will present the famous opera of "Madame Favart," a work that has received unqualified approbation at the hands of European critics.

Georgie Cayvan is going to star through the East in "Hazel Kirke." Miss Cayvan is an admirable actress and will certainly win golden opinions from all classes of people wherever she may appear.

The Comley-Barton Opera Company will open at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Monday evening, September 19. "Madame Favart" will form the initial attraction. The cast will include John Howson, Fred Leslie, James Barton, J. C. Arnaud, Catharine Lewis, Marie Jansen, etc., and a chorus of more than one hundred people.

John Howson has been playing in London all the Summer, and the English papers are generous in their praises of his acting.

The present week is the last one in which Miss Jennie Lee will be seen at Haverly's Fourteenth Street Theatre.

"Michel Strogoff" is doing finely at Booth's Theatre.

The highly sensational and realistic melodrama, "The World," will be played at Niblo's until further notice.

"The Banker's Daughter" will be played at the Jersey City Academy of Music during the current week.

"Esmeralda" will be produced at the Madison Square Theatre in October. "The Professor" will then be sent on the road. Some of the decorations for "Esmeralda" were brought from Europe by Mr. Daniel Frohman.

Mr. Charles Frohman is now in the service of the Mallory Brothers of the Madison Square Theatre.

Billy Sweatnam, the minstrel comedian, has returned from Australia, and will probably appear at the San Francisco Opera House during the season.

Mrs. Agnes Booth will play the leading part in "Esmeralda" shortly to be produced at the Madison Square Theatre. Mrs. Booth is a delightful actress, and the authoress is fortunate in having so able an artiste in the leading feminine rôle.

"Madame Favart" will be produced at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Monday evening, September 19. The costumes for this opera are said to have cost more than $20,000.

The Meistersingers, 30 in number, appear at THALIA & WILIANS' new house, The Academy of Music, Jersey City, on the evenings of the 8th, 9th and 10th inst.

John S. Clarke, the comedian, is booked at the Brooklyn Park Theatre for Sept. 10th, (one week). This will be the first appearance of this great comedian in Brooklyn for seven years. Mr. Clark has been playing at the Hay Market Theatre, London, the past six years.

As an illustration of the benefits to be derived from judicious advertising we may mention the case of RIKER & SON, the druggists, of Sixth Avenue. A few years since this now widely-known firm had nothing but a local reputation, and although doing a good business and selling the best articles, they were, outside of their immediate vicinity, almost unheard of. At that period they did not advertise. RIKER'S preparations are known from one end of the United States to the other, and their enormous sale has brought not only notoriety but fortune also. Whole columns in the leading daily newspapers, in addition to an almost endless variety of weekly papers, magazines, programmes, etc., attest the spirit with which RIKER & SON have used printer's ink as a means of increasing their business. But they have attained their object—not without a large expenditure, it is true—and RIKER'S American Face Powder, RIKER'S Calisaya Bark, RIKER'S Cod Liver Oil, and the thousand and one other preparations with which the name of RIKER is identified are met with in the highways and the by-ways, in every nook and corner throughout the vast expanse of our country. RIKER sells everything at an average reduction of thirty-three per cent. less than charged by other druggists, and yet despite this incontrovertible fact, and his immense outlay for advertising purposes, he has grown rich; and from possessing an ordinary business his trade has grown to large proportions. Advertising did it all, and it will do the same for anybody who has the spirit, the pluck, and the discernment of RIKER & SON.

ON THE "PLAIN HIGHWAY OF TRUTH."—It is of no use in "the States" for an Eastern man to try and tell a big story when there is a Western man about. "When I was a young man," said Colonel B., an Eastern, "we lived in Illinois. The farm had been well-wooded, and the stumps were very thick. But we put the corn in among them, and managed to raise a fair crop. The next season I did my share of the plowing. We had a 'sulky' plow, and I managed the horses, four as handsome bays as ever a man drew rein over. One day I found a stump right in my way. I hated to back out, so I just said a word to the team and, if you will believe it, they just walked that plow right through that stump as though it had been cream cheese." Not a soul expressed surprise; but Major S., a Western man, who had been a quiet listener, remarked quietly: "It's curious, but I had a similar experience once myself. My mother always made our clothes in those days, as well as the cloth they were made of. The old lady was awful proud of her homespun—said it was the strongest cloth in the State. One day I had just plowed through a white oak stump in the way you speak of, Colonel, but it was a little too quick for me. It came together before I was out of the way, and nipped my trousers. It felt mean, I can tell you, but I put the string on the ponies, and, if you'll believe it, they just snaked that stump out, roots and all. Something had to give, you know."

According to the late Mr. Frank Buckland, oysters should never be served on the flat shell, but always on the round shell, with the natural liquor left in the hollow. This liquor is not sea-water, but contains much of the same chemical ingredients as the oyster itself.

DICKENS' LOVE FOR THE STAGE.—There was, perhaps, some foundation for the charge of posturing, though by no means in the ill-natured sense in which the charge has sometimes been made. It was one of his humors to pasture, one of his relaxations to cast himself and his friends in fantastic parts, and write imaginary dialogues, in imitation of plays which they had seen together. There is nothing more striking in the two volumes of letters than the evidence that they furnish of the persistence with which his thoughts ran upon the stage. His passion for acting was of very early date. He has told us how a boy he used to stalk about his father's house acting out the various characters in Smollett's novels. He organized private theatricals at schools, and played as an amateur when he was a clerk in a solicitor's office. He seems to have had a complete knowledge of stage business down to its smallest detail. In the famous amateur company of literary men and artists which was organized in 1845, Dickens, Mr. Forster says, was "the life and soul of the entire affair—stage director, very often stage carpenter, scene arranger, property man, prompter and band-master." And it was not only among amateurs that he could venture to assume authority. When one of his Christmas tales was dramatized, he not only drilled the actors, but made suggestions to the master carpenter about the scenery. According to his own story, a master carpenter, to whom he developed some wonderful mechanical contrivance of his, shook his head with a mournful air and said, "Ah, sir, it's a universal observation in the profession, sir, that the stage sustained a great loss when you took to writing books."

Franklin Oliver has 3,300 acres of forest in Illinois fifty years ago, built a log cabin in the center of the tract, and has lived there ever since. He became noted eccentricities, and it is of him that the story is told about the two Methodist ministers, who having no money to pay for the lodging and breakfast which he had given them, were compelled to preach a sermon apiece to earn the said compensation. Oliver resolved never to allow a bit of his land to be cultivated, declaring that he would leave it at his death just as he had found it; but five years ago, at the age of ninety, he suddenly changed his purpose and builds. From being a woman-hater, he turned to loving the sex with the ardor of youth. He wooed several girls and women at a time, and won them by promises to marry him by giving them pieces of his land. In that way he has rid himself of a great part of his now extremely valuable property, and his heirs, in order to save the remainder, have had him judicially declared incapable of managing his business.

THE MAN WHO "PUSHED THINGS." The man who worked with a wheelbarrow.

WICKED JOKING.—It is an almost everyday occurrence to see written on the closed doors of places of business an announcement that the circumstance is in consequence of domestic bereavement. It has been left to a German in Rochester, New York, to reverse the cause, and to be the first to indicate in a humorous manner his delight at the marriage of his daughter which he did thus—"This store is closed on account of some fun in the family."

ARTISTIC Tapestry Wall Papers
AND CEILING DECORATIONS.

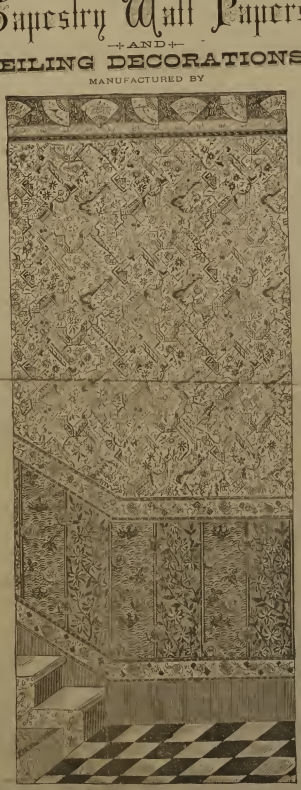
MANUFACTURED BY



Now that the element of coloring and decorative effect is entering so largely into even the pictures which adorn our rooms, with the purpose of developing the effect of ancient tapestries and rich hangings, it is all the more important that the walls should correspond with and aid the general effect.

These tapestry effects have been especially regarded in the new patterns brought out by Fr. Beck & Co., who have recently added to their large Twenty-ninth Street Factory the adjoining corner of Seventh Avenue, where they have on hand the best foreign and domestic productions, and are prepared to make goods to order in any style that may be wanted.

Besides their original designs by the best artists at home and abroad, this firm will reproduce, with absolute fidelity, the most expensive fabrics of European design and manufacture, which they sell often at half the prices of imported goods.

Some of these papers reproduce the effects of the old Venetian or Dutch Leathers. Their effect, with their quaint, antique patterns, especially when used in an apartment furnished with dark woods, is extremely rich. The same may be said of a similar class of papers which produce the effect of oxidized metals. Another novelty is a genuine velvet, so attached to a paper backing that it can be put upon the wall with the facility of the most ordinary wall hanging.

The ordinary "velvet" papers so called, are but lining, but this is not an imitation, and any one who wants his walls hung with real velvet can now obtain the article de novo at a cost not disproportionate to the effect produced.

A visit to their factory will repay any one who has in mind the subject of interior decoration, which they carefully attend to in all its branches.

NIBLO'S REDIVIVUS.

There is a no more beautiful and comfortable theatre than Niblo's. Grand its current stage attractions are, it is something peculiarly invigorating in its roomy chairs, broad aisles, spacious lobbies, and grand hallways adorned with heroic vases of statues. The adjoining garden with its veiled walks, marble fountain, and atmosphere perfumed by the breath of natural flowers, justifies the familiar title. It seems a pity so magnificent a place of recreation should have suffered by erratic management, and it is a cause for rejoicing especially among old New Yorkers that it has fallen into the hands of a manager who will take a pride in reviving its ancient glories.

POPULAR PRICES.

"Highest class attractions and lowest rate of prices" the policy of Niblo's Garden.

THE SEASON.

Mr. Lester Wallack, Mr. Dion Boucicault, and all the managers who have been recently interviewed by the New York Herald, have the impression that the season now so auspiciously opening will be a singularly successful one. In other business lines there is an apparent feeling of confidence in the near future, and even among the industrial classes this hopeful condition obtains. Recent "first nights" have been indications of an extraordinary eagerness on the part of the public for theatrical entertainments. It may well be expected that this will increase so soon as the exodus from the watering-places is begun. Precedence, however, upon what has unfortunately prove transient prosperity, would be impolitic upon the part of any management. In this connection allow to please will be the motto of the season through as if the promise of easy success were not held out by the signs of the times. The common attraction has had no abatement of attention to its minutest details, and up to the latest moment before a public representation, although a triumph seemed assured, solicitude regarding the popular verdict existed. This policy will characterize the conduct of NIBLO'S GARDEN throughout the lesseeship of Mr. Gilmore. The pieces that are to follow the Kiralfy Brothers' grand operatic spectacle, although their production at a very early day is not probable in view of the success of "Enchantment," will have immediate concern. The interim will be devoted to their perfection. The public may well have confidence in the official announcements of a theatre that has kept faith so well in regard to the first offering of the season. With this in view the management ask the patrons of Niblo's Garden to keep in mind the promises now made, that the plays to follow "Enchantment" will be worthy ones, and presented in magnificence. Due advertisement of their titles, character and dates will be made.

THE KIRALFY BROTHERS.

The varied attractions of "Enchantment" are the aggregated results of the experienced professional skill of these famous Hungarians. They have been before the public many years, both as performers and directors, and wherever lot located them—and they've been in nearly all climes—they culled whatever was beautiful, tasty, or novel to their eye, and now have placed the choicest of these gleanings in their latest and best offering. The costumes of "Enchantment" have never been equalled on the American stage for richness of material, artistic blending of colors, and novelty and varied character of style. The subjects of the superb scenic pictures are also of their selection, and even the terpsichorean, operatic and dramatic artists were engaged by them. The piece is their joint authorship. Taken in its entirety, "Enchantment" must be accepted as the Kiralfy Brothers' idea of a perfect spectacular play.

THE OTHER THEATRES.

This is the last week of "Wolfert's Roost" at Wallack's. Whatever is to follow, it is not yet announced. Sothern is playing at Abbey's Park Theatre, giving his impersonation of "The Crushed Tragedian." "Diverce" is to be revived next Saturday night at Daly's. Two new pieces are now being given. "Rescued" is on the boards at Booth's. The Criterion Company is at Haverly's in a piece called "Our Daughters." At the Fifth Avenue Theatre Maurice Grau's new French opera-bouffe company is singing in "La Fille de Madame Angot," etc. The new play, "My Partner," is a success at Union Square Theatre. Tony Pastor's troupe is at the Grand Opera House; the Florences will appear there next week. Bandmann are at the Standard, playing in "Narcisse." The Theatre Comique is yet offering "Mulligan Guard Chowder" the houses are always crowded.

Buttonless Gloves.

A NEW glove, the "Foster" patent, recently introduced, furnishes very neat and ornamental substitutes for the buttons that are always coming off, and that mar the effect of a kid glove by the gaps which they leave, their extreme unreliability, and common appearance. The fastening in the new glove is effected by minute gilt hooks, with round tops rivited in, and placed at short intervals on both sides of the wrist. A fine silk cord, with gilt cap attached to the end, winds in and out of these hooks, holding them close, yet without the strain or waste which is necessary in buttoning the ordinary glove over. It is impossible for the fastenings to stir, and they are very pretty and ornamental, moulding the arm as perfectly as if it were introduced into another skin. The quality of the glove, so far as we have been able to judge, is almost perfect. The kid is fine, soft, flexible, and wears admirably. The price begins at $1.50 for six "buttons" or hooks, three upon each side, which makes a glove no longer than the ordinary two-buttoned glove, and increases at the rate of twenty-five cents for each two buttons (one upon each side) added. For evening and dressy wear they are a boon.—Demorest's Monthly Magazine.

The "FOSTER" Glove, For Sale at 18 East 14th Street.

WHY are darned garments like dead men? Because they are mended.

AN IMPORTANT AGE.—The line of conduct chosen by a boy during the five years from fifteen to twenty will, in almost every instance, determine his character for life. As he is then careful or careless, prudent or imprudent, industrious or indolent, truthful or disemulating, intelligent or ignorant, temperate or dissolute, so will he be in after years, and it needs no prophet to cast his horoscope or calculate his chances

CURRAN CONFOUNDED.—Rogers says, I once dined with Curran in the public-room of the chief inn in Greenwich, when he talked a great deal, and, as usual, with considerable exaggeration. Speaking of something which he would not do for any inducement, he exclaimed, vehemently, 'I had rather be hung on twenty gibbets!' 'Don't you think, sir, one would be enough for you?' said a girl, a stranger, who was sitting at the table next us. I wish you could have seen Curran's face. He was absolutely confounded."

PARENTAL PARTIALITY.—There is a fatal danger in family government, from which we would warn every parent, and that is partiality. It is too often the case that fathers and mothers have their favorite child. From this two evils result. In the first place, the pet usually becomes a spoiled child; and the "flower of the family" seldom yields any other than bitter fruit. In the second place, the neglected part of the household feel envy towards the parent that makes the odious distinction.

LITTLE THINGS.—Springs are little things, but they are the sources of large streams; a helm is a little thing, but it governs the course of a ship; a bridlebit is a little thing, but we know its use and power; nails and pegs are little things, but they hold the parts of a large building together; a word, a look, a smile, a frown, are all little things, but powerful for good or evil. Think of this, and mind the little things.

A CUSTOM prevails at funerals among the Dutch settlers in Natal for some one of the deceased's friends to make a short oration at his open grave, recording his virtues and the good deeds, if any, performed by him during his earthly sojourn. It happened, however, that an individual died who was not considered to have been possessed of any virtues whatever, and had never performed any good deeds. Consequently, in his case, the melancholy obsequies were nearly being completed in silence, when one of his countrymen, raising his voice, said, in solemn tones, "If'm was a berry good smoker."

JUST THE DIFFERENCE.—When a man leaves our side and goes to the other side, he is a traitor, and we always felt that there was a subtile something wrong about him. But when a man leaves the other side, and comes over to us, then he is a man of great moral courage, and we always felt that there was some good stuff in him.

WINNING HIS SPURS.—A reporter has just won his spurs by an article headed "Departure Bloodshed—the Murdered Man Not Expected to Live"

HIS FATE.—During the session of a temperance meeting in a neighboring town, one of the persons who occupied the stage was an enthusiastic deacon, who frequently interrupted the speakers by yelling—

"Thank heaven for that!"

One gentleman was called upon, who arose and said—

"Ladies and gentlemen, I am heart and soul in this cause, and feel that it will be a great benefit to the people of this place——"

"Thank heaven for that," yelled the deacon.

"But, ladies and gentlemen," he continued, "I am going to say that it will be impossible for me to address you this evening——"

"Thank heaven for that!" said the absent-minded deacon.

And then the chairman took him out of doors, and had two men to sit on him.

DUKE OR DRAKE.—During the progress of a duke's funeral through a small town in Scotland, the following colloquy, between two women, was overheard. One, absorbed in contemplation of the signs of woe, exclaimed, "Poor woman! She will be sair lamented." "Woman," said the other, "blaw awa' wi' yo, it's a duke." "Ane aws' wi' ye yoursel'!" rejoined the other, with an expression of the utmost contempt "Wha dinna ken that a duke's the sloe' o' drake!"

BE IN TIME.—Tom Howard kept a gunshop. Tom was a first-class workman, but distressingly dilatory in the dispatch of business. He would meet his patrons with a positive promise, which he would renew month after month, until at length his shop became a mimory of unfinished rifles and fowling-pieces. One day his neighbor, Smith, who had suffered repeatedly by Tom's habit of procrastination, entered his shop. "Tom," said he, "I want you to make a gun for my little boy; a small, well-finished piece, and as light in the barrel as will be consistent with safety.' "Oh, yes," said Tom, "I will make it immediately—you shall have it at once. But, by the way, how old is the boy?" "Well, as to that," replied Smith, "the boy is not born yet, but I thought I had better get the gun under way."

INFERIORITY OF CONDUCT, and a practical vehemence of artfulness and disguise, will alone secure respect and success in our undertakings, both in public and private life.

HOPE.—"If it was not for hope, the heart would break," as the old lady said when she buried her seventh husband.

The favorite Irish comedians, Scanlan and Cronin, began their season at the New National Theatre in a new drama, "O'Neil," by C. R. Clifford, a New York journalist. The play has been well spoken of, being characterized by a blending of comedy with the most realistic emotionality. The gentlemen are satisfied that they have secured a good thing.

Courtesy to the actors and that portion of the audience desirous of witnessing the entire performance, dictates that the patrons of this theatre shall be in their seats at the rising of the curtain.

NIBLO'S REBUILT.—The re-opening of the great Spectacular Theatre of the country is an event of no little import in theatrical annals. Its re-opening with so complicated, costly, and superb a spectacle as that now on its new stage evinces the extreme degree of skill and enterprise attained by American management. This theatre was burned down on the sixth day of last May. It re-opens to-night, more beautiful and commodious than it ever was before, and with a piece on its stage that would seem to have required, in itself, a longer time than it has taken to prepare it and rebuild the theatre. There are very few alterations in the auditorium, the chief ones being an increase of capacity. Niblo's now will accommodate three thousand spectators comfortably. The dome is built on the most approved principles, and the softly painted ground gives an exquisite finish to the general ceiling. The grand chandelier increases the capacity of lighting, and throws out the decorations of the house with a beautifully bright yet softened glow. The accoustic arrangements have been most skillfully made, and no theatre in the world can boast so truly that from no seat in it can the spectator fail to have a full view of the stage or to hear every word uttered on it.

The repeated successes of the spectacles produced at this house determined the directors, in rebuilding this theatre, to build it, from the fall of the curtain to its back wall, on the most approved principles that the experince of the great London and Paris theatres had tested. Mr. Benson Sherwood, the regular machinist of Niblo's Garden, went to Paris, examined the construction of the great stage of the Chatelet, that of the Porte St. Martin, and of Les Italiens. He then returned to London, and devoted equal study to the stages of Covent Garden and Drury Lane, the Princess's and Her Majesty's. With complete models of each he returned here, and built what scientists would call an eclectic stage—one combining in itself all the facilities, all the safeguards, and all the effectiveness of each of the great European theatres.

From the able machinist at the Philadelphia Academy of Music, Mr. Highby, he adopted his fan grooves, and now has completed a stage that is possessed of every advantage that French ingenuity, English caution, and American invention could jointly suggest.

The stage is as the web of a geometric spider. It is all independent lines and squares, that fit together and separate as might the works of the great clock at Strasburg. It can all be thrown open at once, or an opening varying anywhere in size from eight inches long and three wide, to three and a half feet square, can be instantaneously made in any part of the stage. The height of the arch over the stage is forty feet, and the curtain that screens it can be raised perpendicularly without fold or rolling. The depth of the stage is sixty-two feet, its width seventy-six. The complete height over the stage beyond the arch is eighty feet, and the depth below the stage is twenty feet. The surface of the stage occupies just four thousand seven hundred and twelve square feet. This space is devoted entirely to the eyes of the public, because the scene-room, carpenter shop, and wardrobe-room each occupy a floor of a three-story building on the right of the stage. The division between this building consists simply of a fire-proof wall with fire-proof doors. The scene-room, carpenter shop and wardrobe-room are each sixty feet long by forty wide.

The dressing-rooms for the ladies are on the left, those for the gentlemen on the right, of the stage. They are all well warmed by steam pipes and comfortably upholstered, with hot and cold water in each room. They run under the lobby leading to the boxes. The Green-Room is situated precisely where it was, and is, perhaps, the most convenient in the country.

It is but just that the various mechanics and manufacturers who have had the rebuilding and furnishing of NIBLO'S GARDEN should have their names recorded, and we take great pleasure in placing them here:

The Decorating and Painting, by Messrs. Hill & Trehaene, Nineteenth street, near Broadway.

The Plumbing Work and Complicated Gas Piping, by Messrs. J. P. Quin & Co., of Fourteenth street and Fourth avenue.

The Heating Apparatus, by Messrs. Gillis & Geoghegan, 116 Wooster street.

The Immense Reflectors, by The United States Reflector Co., Broadway and Houston street.

The Electric Batteries and Apparatus, by Messrs. C. T. & J. N. Chester, 104 Centre street.

The Chandeliers and Gas Fixtures, by Mitchell, Vance & Co., 597 Broadway; and James Donaldson, Ninth street, near Broadway.

The Carpenter Work, by Messrs. J. C. Hoe & Co., 29 Gansevoort street.

The Mason Work, by Mr. James Bogert, West Thirty-second street.

The Iron Work, by Messrs. J. B. & J. M. Cornell, 135 to 143 Centre street.

The entire old site has been put up under the immediate superintendence of the Architect for Mr. A. T. Stewart, Mr. F. Schmidt.

Composed in a fit of inspiration on witnessing the first rehearsal of the Naiad Queen, or the Call Boy.

Lo! on the ruins of old Niblo's site,
Ere yet four moons have hurried time away,
Or all its pristine glories faded out of sight,
A new and grander Niblo's rises, to display,
Not the grand spectacles we witnessed in times past,
Dazzling in splendor, turning night to day.
Leo and Loros now, whose scenery, music, cast,
On such stupendous scale is set, in all detail,
That mortal eye ne'er yet such glories did behold,
Or ears such soul enrapcing music did inhale,
Since Father Adam and Eve Paradise was bowed.

REMINISCENCES OF NIBLO'S.—Sitting in this new structure—so like the old at first sight, so vastly superior in detail—memory will bring back the happy past, and all the tones and faces of the great actors, singers, and danseuses, so many of whom have passed away into the sere and yellow leaf, while others have gone for ever.

Few of those now here can recollect further back than the triumphal days of the Ravel Pantomimes and Ballets, whose effectiveness culminated when Yrca Matthias, the great Russian danseuse, was added to their ballet, and Gabriel returned to the scene of his early triumphs.

Niblo's has often been under the management of its present lessees, in conjunction with other entrepreneurs. The finest dramatic performance ever given on its boards was under the management of Henry C. Jarrett, the present senior lessee of the theatre. It consisted of a performance of the School for Scandal, which in its cast comprised Henry and Thomas Placide, John Gilbert, E. L. Davenport, Jas. W. Wallack, Rufus Blake, Charles Walcot, Miss Charlotte Cushman, Miss Lizzie Weston Davenport (now Mrs. Charles Matthews), and Miss Mary Wells. This was in 1854. In the same year London Assurance was cast as follows:

Sir Harcourt Courtly	H. Placide
Max Harkaway	J. Gilbert
Dazzle	[illegible] Brougham
Mark Meddle	Rufus Blake
Dolly	J. E. Owens
Charles Courtly	E. L. Davenport
Lady Gay Spanker	Charlotte Cushman
Grace Harkaway	Miss Lizzie W. Davenport

In 1860, under the joint management of Wm. Wheatley, H. C. Jarrett, and E. L. Davenport, Julius Cæsar was produced, with E. L. Davenport as Brutus, Jas. W. Wallack as Cassius, and Wm. Wheatley as Marc Antony; the Portia was Mrs. J. W. Wallack, and the Calphurnia Miss Julia Bennett Barrow.

Ten years later, the great Roman tragedy was again played at this theatre, but this time under the present management, i. e., that of Messrs. H. C. Jarrett and Henry D. Palmer. The cast included the lamented Walter Montgomery as Marc Antony, Mr. Davenport again as Brutus, and the leading young actor of the American stage, Lawrence Barrett, appeared in his excellent rendition of Cassius.

PLAYS PRODUCED.—In this theatre the following successful modern plays were first produced in this country:

Boucicault's Arrah-na-Pogue, After Dark, Formosa, and Kerppeare.

Brougham's Bel Demonio, with Vestvali in the title role, and the Duke's Motto, with the greatest romantic actor of his generation, Mr. Wm. Wheatley, as the heroic Lagardère.

Mosenthal's Leah or Deborah, with the popular Kate Bateman in the title role.

Falconer's Heart's Ease, with the merry little Lotta; and the same author's Inmisfallen, with Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams. Those artists also appeared in this theatre for the first time in the spectacular Irish play called the Connie Soogah. Tom Taylor's Fool's Revenge, with Mr. Booth as Bertucio, was also played in this house on its first production in America.

LYRIC TRIUMPHS IN NIBLO'S.—To this theatre the enterprising Mr. Max Maretzek brought the finest operatic company that as yet has ever sung in the United States. They came here from the Tacon at Havannah, and comprised in their numbers Bosio, Steffanone, Marini, Salvi, and Bellini, with Arditi as conductor.

In 1860, Caroline Richings played the Enchantress. Rosa de Vries, Anna Thillon, and Hudson have sung on its stage, as have Sontag, Parodi, Louisa Pyne, and Harrison, all with complete organizations, few if any of which have been excelled.

DANCERS AND BALLET.—The roll of great danseuses who have appeared in this house include, with very few exceptions, all that ever came to America that deserved the name; the chief exception being Fanny Elsler. On the boards where now figure Pitteri and Lannier have danced Yrca Mathias, Biangi, Espinoza, and the Franks; Soto, the voluptuous; Cubas, the fiery; Bonfanti, Sohlke, Sangalli, Rosa, Wesmael. But the freshest memory of the past cannot equal, even in this house, the ballet on its stage at present.

SPECTACLES.—Undine, the Black Crook, and the White Fawn, up to the production of Lee and Lotos, were the finest spectacles produced at this house. Two of them, the Black Crook and the White Fawn, were never approached in beauty of scenery, costuming properties, and ballet, in any other theatre in America.

STARS.—The list of dramatic stars that have appeared at this house may be said to include all that are recognized as such by the people of the United States: Edwin Forrest, Charlotte Cushman, W. E. Burton, James W. Wallack, E. L. Davenport, Matilda Heron, Edwin Booth, Edwin Adams, Lawrence Barrett, F. S. Chanfrau, Vestvali, Barney Williams, Lotta, Kate Bateman, Charles Fechter, Julia Dean, Jean Davenport, Mrs. Scott Siddons, Ed. A. Sothern.

And the Flag of the Union for ever

LIFE.

Ah! life is a maze of partings and meetings,
An hour of delight and a day of despair.
We pause for a second to gather the greetings;
We pass and re-pass like the phantoms of air.

We think for a moment—ah! now we are happy;
The brightness of heaven can have no eclipse—
But while we are thinking the sunlight is sinking,
And so with dead kisses we moisten our lips.

We smile by forgetting the past with its sorrows;
We live by imagining moments more fair.
We conquer to-day by the dream of tomorrow,
We read by the rushlight of fancies that were.

Thus toiling and resting, and doubting and resting,
We carry our burden mid gladness and strife;
But while we are thinking, the sunlight is sinking,
And this the thing that we worship as—Life.

A HARMONIOUS LOCALITY.

Within half a dozen years one of New Hampshire's best-known judges has granted two hundred and twenty-seven divorces. None of the couples thus legally separated live in Concord.

A—"That's a newly married couple."
B—"How do you know?"
A—"He is always stepping on her train."
B—"What does that prove?"
A—"After he has been married some time and found out what a dress costs he will be more careful."

"De singin' ob birds is sweet," remarked Uncle Eben, "but de cackle ob er chickin on yer own henroos" has a heap mo' expression in it."

A PRIVATE soldier walking arm in arm with his sweetheart, met his sergeant when about to enter a cheap restaurant. He respectfully introduced her to him: "Sergeant, my sister!" "Yes—yes," was the reply, "I know; she was mine once."

THE POWER OF MELODY.

The music sweet falls soft and low,
Hark! how its cadence seems to dwell!
Echoed back and to and fro,

So clear in each melodious swell.
Oh, solace of the Even hour,
How soft thy mellow notes can fall!
Moved by the sweet spell of thy power,
Each heart is touched at thy clear call.
Rejoice! Rejoice! Oh, saddened hearts,

Pain swept till music's soothing psalm
In hours of sadness thus imparts
A lasting, peaceful, holy calm,
No tears save those of joy shall start
Or sorrow stay, while falls thy balm!

A gentleman going up Sixth Avenue, New York, met a laborer, to whom he said, "Will you tell me if I am half way to Central Park?"

"Faith, an I will," was the reply "if you tell me where you started from."

He—And now tell me why Miss Stylish's dress resembles the legal profession.

She—Can't do it. Why?

He—Because there's plenty of room at the top.

Wiggs—It is the glare of the footlights, the wild applause, that intoxicates the true actor.

Wings—Very true (reaches for the can); still, beer helps out amazingly.

M. B. CURTIS

WILL PRESENT THE NEW

SAM'L OF POSEN

OR THE

Drummer Up-to-Date.

This will be the first appearance in New York of Mr. Curtis in three years, and the first time that he has been seen in "Sam'l of Posen" for almost a decade.

Mr. Curtis, it is very well known, introduced to wide popular favor the style of play of which "Sam'l of Posen" is the best type known. Like all other successful originators Mr. Curtis has had an army of imitators, but none of them, have at any time approached him in artistic work and original effort. At all times he has admittedly been in the foremost rank of that branch of the profession to which he gave his attention.

His return to the stage will undoubtedly be welcomed in a hearty manner, for his personal popularity is well and widely established, and "Sam'l of Posen" is a generally admired play. By a skillful process of revision the play has been brought up to date, the witticisms and local allusions being strictly of the present.

The company engaged to support Mr. Curtis includes Orrin Johnson, late of Chas. Frohman's stock company, William Courtleigh, recently leading man in "Old Kentucky," George C. Boniface, than whom there is no better delineator of old men on the stage; Chas. V. Seaman, who is remembered for his hit in "The City Directory;" E.L. Walton, who was "My Brudder Bolosay" in "Caught in a Corner." Miss Eleanor Barry, whose artistic work while with Rosina Vokes commanded general attention, will be the leading lady; Clever Merri Osborne will be the Rebecca; Ada Marie Vallean, a pretty debutante from Detroit, will be the Ellen, and the cast will also enlist the services of Clara Knott, Laura Christian, Robt. M. Eberle and John Finn.

It is a fact, with one exception, the Columbia, on Union Square, is the only establishment in this city for making and using absolutely pure fruit juices for soda. No alcohol, poisonous acids or drug mixtures. Call for a glass of their delicious pineapple soda, cream, acknowledged by all as far superior to any flavor now offered.

AUTOMATIC FOUNTAIN PENS—It is no longer necessary to buy an expensive fountain pen and holder. When the every-day steel pen can be made to flow equally as well by a simple elastic arrangement, which can be instantly attached, and will make a common pen write four sheets with a dip of ink. We find that continuous writing a luxury, without one of these little rubber contrivances. See advertisement in this programme of Thos. S. Meyer, 140 Nassau St., New York.

The Nobby Hat sold by Ben Bloch at 393 Canal street, near Broadway, for $1.98 is well worth $2.50, this is a leader. Men's furnishings sold in the same proportion. A visit to this popular stand will convince you that these are positive facts.

The celebrated Jules Mumm Extra Dry Champagne is now represented in the United States by the well known firm of Joseph Beck & Co., who control the popular brand of Kinnore Whiskey. The Jules Mumm Extra Dry Champagne is endorsed by Miss Lillian Russell and Thos. G. Seabrooke, of the Seabrooke Opera Co.

We call the attention of the public to the extensive establishment of Marks Arnheim at Broadway and 9th street, and Spring street and the Bowery. The display of new styles of Spring Goods in the first is the talk, and every gentleman ought to visit one of the stores, which range among the sights of New York.

Important Notice to Every Lady.—Since R. H. Macy & Co., 14th Street and 6th Avenue, have enlarged their building, they have also enlarged their departments. In their Trimmed Millinery Department they are showing some rare gems, and at such low prices that any lady can get TWO hats for about the price they would pay elsewhere for one.

Teacher—How do you spell Piano my young friend?
Pupil—Spells none with an easy one—fish spell—O-H-M-E-R; Schmer
Teacher—Correct: got the head of the class.
This little incident teaches us that if we would go the head of the class—no matter which one—we would be way up in spelling. If you want to buy a Piano and if you want the best, be sure that the name on it spells S-O-H-M-E-R; in no other instrument are united all the virtues that make a Piano worth having. Remember that "The Best Piano" and "The Sohmer" are synonymous terms.—The Duke's Library.

For Comfort, pleasing effect and general satisfaction there is nothing more popular than the Clinton silk shawl. Messrs. A. Vantine & Co. 757 and 879 Broadway, are now showing a very complete and unusually beautiful line of recently imported silk embroidered shawls fichus, the genuine being of finest White China silks. They are well worthy of attention, not only because of their remarkably low prices during present sale, but because of their undeniable elegance and beauty.

It is a fact well known among good dressers of the male population that Brill Brothers, the men's furnishers, of 211 Sixth Avenue and 47 Cortlandt Street, carry an exceedingly fine line of men's clothing, cut in the very latest fashions, and their shoe and hat departments are up to date. Go to Brill Brothers' establishment and be clothed from head to foot; lots of good dressers are doing it. They have two stores one at 211 Sixth Avenue, and the other a 47 Cortlandt Street. You can send to them for illustrated catalogue, which will be mailed to you free of cost.

Neck-Wear sale this week. All shapes at 48 cts., formerly 75 cts., $1.00 and $1.25. Special inducement in Outing Shirts, now 69 cts., formerly $1.00. This is a rare opportunity. In our Hat Department we still offer our popular hat at $1.90.

A FACT.

O sing a song of sixpence,
A pocketful of chaff,
The folks that try to copy me
At them I always laugh;
With flaming advertisements
They gull the public mind
And intimate to one and all,
That they are wondrous kind.

They'll give for Fifty Dollars
What for a hundred can't be bought,
And yet they think with fibs like these
The public sure are caught,
They swear their goods are foreign,
Fresh from old Europe's shores,
While nothing else but poorest goods
Are found within their stores.

And e'en their very salesmen
They keep upon the rack,
For if he dont swear black is white
He'll surely get the sack.
I'll stick to honest dealings
As I've always done before,
And sell my goods, — upon the square
Number One in Avenue Four.

And I, John Moriarty,
Am proud that I can say:
"You'll find as represented
My goods, — in every way
And then my Special Credit,
It fills a want much felt
And helps you furnish up your home
If you are short of "Geld".

5.

So, now, then come and see me
And my stock both fine and new,
'Tis the motto of my business
To render all their due.

The Meritorious Man.

Since Merit now doth rule the World,
The world will lawyer be
For merit takes the foremost rank,
Where Merit's stand should be,
His Merit makes the Merchant strive
With all his might and main
To merit custom for his goods,
And customers retain.

Now if to merit you're inclined
There's is one man I know well
Whose meritorious custom is
The best of goods to sell,
t prices too so very low
That they can never be beat,
Why just a vist to his store
Is certainly a treat!

You there will see of furniture
The best in every line,
In styles quite new and pretty too
Which you can buy on Time!!
You can select whatever you want
And pay a portion down,
And have your goods sent free of charge
To any part of Town!!

The balance by installments then,
Of course you'll duly pay
And feel within your pretty home
Happier, day by day—
John Moriarty is the man,
Whose merit is so rare
That you will find him always deal
With you upon the square.

Do you to others as you'd have
All others do to you."
This is his watchword every time,
A Watchword firm and true,
Just as he represents the goods,
So you will find them sure,
Thereby he merits custom from
The rich as well as the poor.

On Avenue Four; The Number is "One"
You will there find his stand,
Six floors well filled with furniture.
As good as any in the land.

MACY'S WINDOW SHOW.

IT OPENS WITH A FULL HOUSE AT SIXTH AVENUE AND FOURTEENTH STREET.

There were hosts of smiling young faces in front of Macy's windows at the corner of Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue this morning. It was holiday opening of this popular firm, whose mechanical toy window exhibition is considered by the children as an indispensable adjunct to the celebration of Christmas.

To be sure there were plenty of grown folks gathered in front of the spacious show windows, but the endless and gorgeous pageant that revolved within had not been got up for them, but for children who are old enough to distinguish the dainty-footed Cinderella from her proud and envious sisters, and can tell exactly what would happen to the forty thieves when they went to Ali Baba's house.

A FINE EXHIBITION.

This year's window show is the best the firm has ever shown. It is gotten up with strict regard to nursery traditions as to the exact appearance of the characters in these youthful classics.

Great indeed would be the shattering of juvenile idols if the diminutive Hop o' My Thumb looked a whit taller than he should be, or if Cinderella's slipper was a fraction of an inch larger than those youthful critics have fixed upon as being correct.

TEN MINUTES TO SEE THE SHOW.

It takes ten minutes to obtain a complete view of the revolving strip of stage, upon which appear all the principal characters in the nursery classics of Hop o' My Thumb, Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves, Cinderella and Aladdin.

All day long hundreds of little folks looked on this strictly continuous performance with never ceasing delight, wholly unmindful that it was a tedious task for their older companions to hold them up till the familiar characters had made at least four or five appearances.

CHILDREN GO AND SEE IT.

The panorama cannot be described; it must be seen by the children in order to be appreciated. In the juvenile mind the holiday season, which among its many other notable effects, does not include a visit to Macy's, is as prosaic as a Christmas tree without candles or Santa Claus who makes his rounds by cable car, instead of with sled and reindeer.

UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

"THE LAST STRAW."

This latest Parisian Comedy Success will be presented by the Piton Stock Company at the Union Square Theatre, Monday, March 7th. It is from the Pen of the well-known French author, Paul Ferfer, and was originally produced at the Comédie Francais last July. The English adaptation is by Mr. Fred. Horner and will shortly be presented in London.

The play is almost a pure Comedy, the second and third acts being slightly tinged with farce — at the commencement of the play quite a novel effect is produced before the rise of the curtain — a loud noise of the breaking of dishes is heard followed by the sound of a slap and a scream when the curtain is taken up a young married couple Mr. and Mrs. Hemsley are seen glaring at each other. She has a paper in her hand which she has snatched from him, the table is overturned and the breakfast things scattered in confusion on the floor, the young husband says "well this is the last straw," the wife answers "and it has broken the camels back," they immediately leave the stage in opposite directions, slaming the doors after them, the servants enter upon the scene and while rearranging the breakfast things are interrupted by the master who says "James, if anybody calls for me, say I have gone to my lawyers." Shortly after his exit the wife enters and says "Annette, if anybody calls for me say I have gone to my lawyers." The audience realizes that their has been a quarrel and are keenly alive to the complications and fun which must naturally follow.

The Comedy is in three Acts and the entire action transpires in 24 hours. The cast includes Miss Minnie Seligman, Miss Adelaide Stanhope, Miss Laura Woodhall, Messrs. Nelson Wheatcroft, William Parnham, W. H. Thompson, Charles Collins, Gustave Frankel, Frederic Perry and Alfred Palmer.

A FACT.

O sing a song of sixpence,
A pock-full of stuff
The folks that try to copy us,
At them I always laugh;
With flaming advertisements
They gull the public mind
And intimate to one and all
That they are wondrous kind.

2.
They'll give for Fifty Dollars
What for a hundred can't be bought,
And yet they think with this like chaos
The public sure are caught.
They swear their goods are foreign,
Fresh from old Europe's shores,
While nothing else but poorest goods
Are found within their stores.

3.
And when their very salesmen
I hey keep upon the rack,
For if he don't swear black is white
He'll surely get the sack.
I'll stick to honest dealings
As I've always done before,
And sell my goods, — upon the square
Number One in Avenue Four.

And I, John Moriarty,
Am proud that I can say:
"You'll find us represented
My goods, — in every way.
And then my Special Credit
It fills a want much felt
And helps you furnish up your home
If you are short of "Gelt".

5.
So, now, then come and see us
And my stock both fine and new,
T'is the motto of my business
To render all their due.

Mr. & Mrs. Sidney Drew.

All lovers of refined comedy will undoubtedly hail with delight the entrance into the starring arena of these young and capable artists. Their previous successes as members of the best American Comedy Companies, will be further excelled by their inimitable impersonations of the leading characters in their new, novel, and throughly original play, entitled "That Girl from Mexico." As the son of Mrs. John Drew, Mr. Sidney Drew has inherited a recognized versatility, which study and ambition has perfected to a pleasurable degree. Mrs. Sidney Drew (Gladys Rankin) has profited by the vigorous histrionic training of her father, Mr. McKee Rankin, and possesses also the vivacity and Grace of her talented mother, Kitty Blanchard. Surrounded as they are, by an exceptionally clever company of ladies and gentlemen, the production presented by this high-class organization should be a notable society event.

When Marriage is not a Failure.

I.

There's not a relation, in all of creation,
Should bind us so closely, as husband and wife,
In mirth or in gladness, in sorrow or sadness,
Let nothing he separate—not even life.
And when they do marry, good people should carry
A plan in their heads, the safest and best,
That now they are mated, like birds so related,
They both go together, to fit up their nest.

II.

The Carpets shall be, what both shall agree,
Are right in the pattern, and right in the price,
From Sofas and Tables, to Footsticks and Ladies
Let everything be what both shall call nice.
A nice room to dine in, good chairs to recline in
A well furnished room, for receiving your friends,
With Carpets that fit on, and Chairs you may sit on
And everything else meeting, Housekeeping ends.

III.

This whole combination, from roof to foundation
May all be selected, with never a hitch
By seeing One Man who, both will do and can do
The right thing by all, the poor and the rich
That's JOHN MORIARTY, and right from the start, he
Will prove he's a Friend, to the Wage earning man
Not trying to beat him, but fairly to treat him
By giving him Time to pay as he can.

IV.

Tis'n John Moriarty joins no other party,
His Business is single, and on his own score,
He's Opposite Sixth Street, you'll easily fix it,
His number is One on Avenue Four,
His front is White Painted, and once you're acquainted,
With JOHN MORIARTY'S low prices and plan,
His Payments so Easy, for Goods that will please ye,
MORIARTY is forever your Furniture Man.

When Marriage is not a Failure.

I.

There's not a relation, in all of creation,
Should bind us so closely, as husband and wife,
In mirth or in gladness, in sorrow or sadness,
Let nothing be separate—not even life.
And when they do marry, good people should carry
A plan in their heads, the safest and best,
That now they are mated, like birds so related,
They both go together, to fit up their nest.

II.

The Carpets shall be, what both shall agree,
Are right in the pattern, and right in the price,
From Sofas and Tables, to Footstools and Ladies
Let everything be what both shall call nice,
A nice room to dine in, good Chairs to recline in
A well furnished room, for receiving your friends,
With Carpets that fit on, and Chairs you may sit on
And everything else meeting, Housekeeping ends.

III.

This whole combination, from roof to foundation
May all be selected, with never a hitch
By seeing One Man who, both will do and can do
The right thing by all, the poor and the rich
That's JOHN MORIARTY, and right from the start, he
Will prove he's a Friend, to the Wage earning man
Not trying to beat him, but fairly to treat him
By giving him Time to pay as he can.

A MASTER WORK.

Visitors to the parlors of Sohmers & Co., No. 149 East 14th Street, our attention is called to an elegant example of recent work, in fact, the masters of the art of upright pianos have never before succeeded in constructing such a magnificent instrument. The case is a very handsome one according to the original design published by the well-known Cottage-form Sohmers, Exception, Pa. The whole is enameled wood work in ebony, combined with artistic hand carvings and combined with gold. The price of this "Grand" is $3,000. Entirely in accordance with the outside, is the inside of the instrument.

The melodious tone and the wonderful expression of the softest pianissimo as well as the strongest fortissimo is delightful to everybody's ear and has received the highest testimonials of our best artists.

A man went into a crowded store to buy some stockings for his wife. "I want striped ones," he said to the clerk. "We have very few stripes, sir," the clerk replied; "they are not so much worn now." "Are you sure?" "Oh, yes! quite sure? I will demonstrate the fact to you." Then he leaned over the counter and shouted: "Rats!" "See?" he added. "Yes," said the customer, "give me plain colors."

Examiner — Now Mr. Murphy, while on the subject of physical science, what are the properties of heat? Murphy (a Tipperary Candidate for license) — "Expanshun, surr." Correct. Give me an illustration. In Summer, surr, the sun, being hotter, causes the days to lengthen.

Literary Man (to his new secretum) — What became of the letter that was on my desk? Pat — Shure I mailed it, sor. Literary Man — Mailed it? You idiot. Why, there was no address on it. Pat — Shure I know that, sor, but I thought you didn't want me to know who you was writing to.

Tourist (out West) — I presume this neighborhood is full of exciting history. Guide — You bet. D'ye see that point o'rocks? When the sheriff's posse got after Buffalo Jim, they chased him to the top of that there peak, three hundred feet high and the only way he could escape was by jumping. Tourist — Goodness me! The fall killed him of course. Guide — No; he didn't jump.

He sat at his door at noonday
Lonely, glum and sad.
The flies were buzzing about him.
Led by a blue-winged gad.
Not a customer darkened his portal,
Not a sign of business was there;
But the flies kept on buzzing
About the old man's hair.
At last in misery he shouted:
"Great Scott! I'm covered with flies!"
And the zephyr that toyed with his whiskers said:
"Why don't you Advertise?"

They had an awful time last night at Smithers, Arabella screamed so that the whole neighborhood awoke. What was the matter?
Her scarabeus pin fell down the back of her neck.

Beggar—Certainly. I would not think of attempting to carrying it off with the heavy mortgage it has.

"NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW"

SAYS OF THE CELEBRATED

SOHMER

PIANOS:

"No one can fail to notice in them every good quality which one is entitled to expect from a good instrument; nobility, elasticity and sonorousness of tone, and an extent of power which never fails, added to which a perfect evenness of touch renders them as near perfection as has been thus far attained. Their touch unites with absolute precision a delicacy and pliability, and a most happy and responsive quality not found in the instruments of any other maker."

While the present firm of Sohmer & Co. was founded in 1872, its existence properly extends further back than that date, as Sohmer and Co., Mr. Hugo Sohmer, a native of Germany, who came to this country, coming of a good family in comfortable circumstances, and was given a most finished scientific and literary education, at the same time acquiring a thorough knowledge of music and the pianoforte. At sixteen years of age he arrived in New York, and was apprenticed to piano making in the factory of Nunnicke & Lathrop. Thoroughly learning the trade with this firm, he returned to Europe in 1858 and worked at his trade in Germany and Austria, making critically and scrutinizing nearly every possible standpoint. In 1870 he returned to New York, and in 1872 commenced embodying in practical form the ideas which his training and travel had brought. His partner was Mr. Joseph Kaiser, who still continues in the firm; a piano-maker who studied the art and trade thoroughly in his Vienna Shops, and added considerable experience gained in the shops of Steinway & Sons, and Wm. Knabe & Co., to his skill. In addition to Messrs. Sohmer and Kaiser, Messrs. Charles Fahr and George Richmond, the latter brother of the firm being in charge of special departments, to which he devotes his entire energies. The concern now has, in addition to its extensive warehouse on Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue, a new factory at Astoria, which is the most magnificent and complete establishment in the country, and the success which has come so much for Long Island in fostering other manufactures to establish themselves there.

Even with the present average production of the firm, which is the high figure of forty pianos per week, it is yet insufficient to supply the extensive demand, the firm being to-day largely in arrears of its orders.

A widely-spread constituency demanding these celebrated instruments, they may be had not only at the principal warehouse, 149 to 155 East Fourteenth Street, New York, but at Montreal, Canada; 226 State Street, Chicago; Union Club Building, San Francisco; 1101 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.; 1103 Pennsylvania Ave., Kansas City; as also of local dealers throughout the country.

The interest of the firm of Sohmer & Co. have been ably nursed and cheerfully bestowed."

FREDERICK PAULDING
IN A NEW AMERICAN COMEDY DRAMA,
"The Struggle of Life."

The regular season at this Theatre will be inaugurated on September 7th, next, with an elaborate production by Mr. Frederick Paulding of a new American comedy drama, entitled "THE STRUGGLE OF LIFE."

The occasion is of double interest in that it introduces an Actor long and favorably known to the Metropolis, for his earnest conscientious and virile acting — and also an American play by an American Author, the late William Irving Paulding, a man of splendid education, brilliant mind and literary taste. The play tells a strange and interesting story, in terse, forcible language. It is essentially a drama of action, of situation. Its characters are all Americ'an types, and the scenes are all local. The production will in many respects be a remarkable one. Every thing that artistic skill and a lavish expenditure of money can accomplish has been done. The scenery has been painted by the best artists in the country, including Homer F. Emens, of the 11th St. Theatre, Richard Marston of Palmer's, Arthur Voegtlin of the Standard and Lafayette Seavey. Those gentlemen have been engaged upon the work since last November, and many of the sets will be revelations—notably — a reproduction of St. Patricks Cathedral during a Christmas service, and a beautiful boudoir, the decorations, curtains, furniture and carpets all of which have been prepared by the Brush Decorative Studio, from whence came the wonderful decorations of the Vanderbilt Palace on Fifth Avenue. Another scene will be New York Bay and Battery Park by Moonlight. Music will be a strong factor in the play and Jesse Williams, the well-known Director, has composed an Overture, three original songs and much incidental music. In order to heighten the effect of the Cathedral scene, the management have engaged Madame Marie Salvetti, the soprano of St. Leo Church, who will sing Gounod's "Jerusalem" and Adam's "Cantique de Noel." She will have the assistance of a quartette and chorus of 20 voices. Carl Schiller of the Church of the Annunciation will be the organist. The play will be produced under the direction of Mr. Fred Williams, the able stage manager of Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre.

Besides Mr. FREDERICK PAULDING the cast will include the following well-known ladies and gentlemen:

EDWIN VARREY, GEORGE W. DENHAM, GUY LINDSLEY,
MURRY WOODS, JOHN K. GOODWIN, NORMAN CAMPBELL
ELLIS RYSE, MASTER CHARLEY THROPP

Misses—ADELAIDE FITZ-ALLEN, MAUDE E. PETERS, MAGGIE DEAN

Mesdames: CLARA BAKER RUST, and CHARLES PETERS

Mr. George L. Smith is Mr. Paulding's Manager, and Mr. Harry E. Sanford is Representative in Advance.

Indisputable Evidence.

De Lolo—Where do you intend to spend your vacation?

De Pole—I am going to our milkman's dairy farm. There is the finest kind of fishing in that neighborhood.

"Huh! You don't take his word for it, do you?"

"No, indeed. We've found young trout in the milk."—Good News.

A Superstition Confirmed.

THOU SHALT NOT.

Production of Max Freeman's Adaption of "Albert Ross' Novel of the Same Name Drama.

His announcement of the production of the play of "Thou Shalt Not," dramatized by Max Freeman from the novel of the same name by Mr. Albert Ross, has been unwarranted. The first performance will be given on the evening of March 30th, and the cast and accessories will be of the very best character. Many theatre readers are familiar with the story, which has been graphically followed in the drama. Hector Gresham, who lives in elegant bachelor quarters in Madison Avenue, makes his home the scene of a gay crowd of friends, to whom his means and his purse are always open. He money which he inherits so freely is obtained by his connection with a City Hall ring, through the services of Jacob Meshlil, a politician and "fixer." Gresham is a man of the keenest principals as regards feminine virtue, and has learned that he is invincible with the fair sex. Among his chosen is a young and beautiful actress named Walter Campbell, who has won a princely stake to make her fortune in the city, but who has not profited by the conquest to build up for herself a home. Miss Campbell is a lovely and innocent girl, who has come to the city with the highest ambitions almost his only true sentiment in selection. Gresham meets this girl who fully appeals to the best and manly nature in him, and he resolves to win her with great honor, and fulfil to some extent under the circumstances his engagement to her friend Clara Carlton. But the bachelor code of a large wager that no woman can be named by them whose he cannot betray. He succeeds in his purpose, deceived in regard to Miss Campbell's true character, and when the ordeal is to the referee's hand, he find that the name they have selected is Clara Campbell. Thus ogilly enraged at the trick of the would be swindlers he targets his resentment and plans to win the wager, which he does by deceiving the girl into a bogus marriage. As soon as he has the money, however, he pursues Clara, and with her Mama literally. The mother, Walter, learning of the affair, determines on revenge, and abducts a young daughter of Greytmrns, who is rescued by his father in the hall at, and after many tears, Clara, whom Gresham loves, finds him a changed man. A number of other characters, necessary to its smoothness of execution, and many stirring incidents, involve a vein of comedy which will relieve the heavy and thrilling plays recent years at this house in some of its scenes, and a long run is confidently predicted.

Miss Clara Lisle will be seen as Hector Gresham, E. J. Henley as Walter Campbell and Maude Leyton as Clara Campbell. The rest of the cast will include Wm. Haworth, John Glendenning, Al. Ayres and Frank Burch, Marie Rowe, Rose or Barry, Mary Hampton Camille Cornelia E. Ida Parker and Mia Freeman.

The "Country Fair" is in its last weeks at the Union Square Theatre. The piece will wind up the third and one year of its notable career on April 9th. Martin J. W. A. Brown will introduce a dramatization by Max Freeman of Albert Ross' novel, entitled "Thou Shalt Not," with a company of which Lisle, E. J. Henley, Clara Lisle, Walter Kelly, Al. Ayres, Glendenning, Wm. Markham, Frank Burch, Mai la Craigen, Marie Rowe, Rose Barry, Mary Hampton, Camille Cornelia, Ida Parker and Mia Freeman. The scenic and mechanical effects will be entirely new and the management promises a production of unusual strength and that Mr. Freeman has used the immense amount of material contained in the book to great advantage.

None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything to the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

Moriarty Did It.

I sat within my lonely room
So cheerless and so drear;
With shabby furniture around,
Brown worse from year to year.
I thought of every earthly plan
By which to change my life,
But nothing seemed the proper thing,
Except to take a wife

But how ask my woman fair
To share this dingy spot.
I told Bess I had not the heart
To bring her to my lot;
But she, wise little woman, said,
Joe, leave this while you can,
Give me the right to manage, dear,
I have a scheme and plan.

Hundreds of men as poor as you
Have blessed the day they went
To Moriarty, who gives worth
For every dollar spent.
He asks but honesty and truth
In everything when you buy;
He's shown the nasses how to live,
Then why not you and I?

His furniture is not excelled
By any in the town;
His carpets are fine and good
As ever were put down;
He drapes the windows o'er with lace,
And waste your money dear;
While tables, sofas, easy chairs,
Until he's furnished all.

"So, Joe, dear, let us not delay,
This credit's just the thing,
Will fix us royally at home
Before the buds of spring.
Think how you dwell in stuffy rooms,
When home is always to be had
With Moriarty near."

Heating the Surgeon.

An eminent surgeon declares that with four cuts and a few stitches he can alter a man's face so that his mother would not know him. A West Side gripman can perform the same operation with a single wist of his iron wrist.

The Bird's Narrow Escape.

"Doctor," said the lady, anxiously, "I have sent for you to see if you can't tell me what to do for my poor little canary. It droops and droops—"

"I'm not a bird doctor, madam," the physician interposed loftly.

"Don't you know anything about the diseases of canaries?"

"Most emphatically I do not."

"You will excuse me then, doctor," she said, "If I call a more experienced physician. I should be afraid to let you prescribe for the poor little dear."

I have treated twelve very severe cases of Dyspepsia with Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir, all of which were pronounced cured. The patient of a lady who was supposed to be in the last special notice, was obliged to take to her bed by reason of a severe attack of neuralgia of the stomach, or other disorder, which would cause excruciating pain for at least half an hour. She called in four leading physicians, remaining absolutely helpless. Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir in her water, your butter, or just after attempting to eat, and in less than two days she could take half a teaspoonful of tea without any inconvenience. In nervous dyspepsia I find it especially valuable.

THOU SHALT NOT.

Translation of Max Freeman's Adaption of Albert Rand Kenyt at the Union Square Theatre.

The announcement of the production of the play of "Thou Shalt Not," dramatized by Max Freeman from the novel of the same name by Mr. Albert Ross, has excited an unusual interest. The first performance will be given on next Monday evening, and the cast of characters will be of the very best character. Most novel readers are familiar with the story which has been so closely followed in the drama. Hector Feyrolles, who lives in elegant bachelor quarters in Madison Avenue, makes his home the centre of a gay crowd of friends, to whom his means and his purse are always open. The money which he is thus lavishly dissipating is not his own, but with a City Hall ring, through the means of Jacob Mendall, a politician and shaper. Greyburn is a man of the strictest principles as regards dishonesty, and has refused to take a dishonorable way for success. Among his clients is a young fellow named Walter Campbell, who came from the village of Spring-dale to make his fortune in the city, but who has not been successful. He finds in his friend's house. This girl has at principal—a lovely and innocent sister, named Clara, toward whom he instantly assumed his only true manly attitude. Hector Feyrolles, who is the villain of the piece, is the friend who has been the cause of leading Walter Campbell into evil courses, and has succeeded in alienating the affections of the latter's sister. Clara, who is the heroine, is the one who has been the victim of a love-winner that no woman could withstand, and he cannot forget. By appeals to his pride they succeed in getting him to bet a large sum in this way, and when the money is in the receiver's hand, it and the stakes they have selected is Louis Campbell. Thoroughly enraged at the trick of which he has been the victim, he forgets his resolutions and plans to win the money which he has lost, and, in a fit of passion, begs Greyburn to lend him the money, however, he marries Clara, and will not hear to her brother. The brother, Walter, warning of the affair, determines on revenge, and, finding that everything was in readiness for her father in the hotel at, and the wedding party, Clara begins all to make plans. There are a number of other characters in the play, and a number of amusing and laughable incidents, besides a vein of comedy which underlies the drama. It is one of the most thrilling plays ever seen at the Union Square Theatre, and should be a success.

Constance Lewis will be seen as Mrs. Greyburn, E. J. Hosier as Walter Campbell and Maddie Lonsdale as Clara Campbell, and will include Wm. Haworth, Frank Hatch, Samuel Abrams, Madison, Frank Hatch, Marie Rene, Eleanor Barry, Mary Hampton, Camille Cleveland, Ella Beatty and Miss Freeman.

The "County Fair" is in its last weeks at the Union Square Theatre. Burgess will wind up the third and last year of its engagement on Mar. h 28. On March 21 W. A. Brady will produce a dramatization by Max Freeman of Albert Ross's novel, "Thou Shalt Not." The company will be headed by Hosier, Gus Lewis, Wm. Haworth, John Glendenning, Alexis Markham, Frank Hatch, Maria Gregan, Marie Rene, Eleanor Barry, Mary Hampton, Camille Cleveland, Ella Beatty and Max Freeman. Those who have heard the play read say it is tremendously strong and that Mr. Freeman has used the immense amount of material combined in the book to great advantage.

Moriarty Did It.

I sat within my lonely room
So cheerless and so drear;
With shabby furniture around,
Grown worse from year to year.
I thought of every earthly plan
By which to change my life,
But nothing seemed the proper thing,
Except to take a wife

But how ask any woman fair
To share this dingy spot,
I told Bess I had not the heart
To bring her to my lot;
But she, wise little woman, said,
Joe, leave this while you can,
Give me the right to manage, dear,
I have a scheme and plan.

Hundreds of men as poor as you
Have blessed the day they went
To Moriarty, who gives worth
For every dollar spent.
He asks but honesty and truth
In every dealing when you buy;
He's shewn the misses how to live,
Then why not you and I?

His furniture is not excelled
By any in the town;
His carpets are as fine and good
As ever were put down;
He drapes the windows o'er with lace,
Hangs pictures on the wall.
Adds tables, sofas, easy chairs,
Until he's furnished all.

"So, Joe, dear, let us not delay,
This outfit's just the thing,
Will fix us cosily at home
Before the buds of spring.
Think how you dwell in stuffy rooms,
And waste your money dear;
When home is always to be had
With Moriarty near."

"I am not a bird doctor, madam," the physician interposed loftily.

"Don't you know anything about the diseases of canaries?"

"Most emphatically I do not."

"You will excuse me then, doctor," she said, "If I call a more experie ced physician I should be afraid to let you prescribe for the poor little dear."

"HARDMAN" AND HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS.

SINCE our last issue Messrs. Hardman, Peck & Co. have received notice from their European agents that H. R. H. the Prince of Wales has purchased one of the new Hardman semi-grands, of which The Musical Courier has had occasion to speak so highly.

The list of royal patrons of the Hardman now runs as follows:

Her Majesty the Queen.
His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.
Her Grace the Duchess of Fife.
Her Grace the Duchess of Montrose.
His Grace the Duke of Richmond and Gordon.

Pauline. How is it that you always look so neat and trim, while you do not spend any more for your dresses than I do?

Lillie. The reason is I always buy Gilbert's Dress Lining. It does not stretch and always enables your dressmaker to give you a perfect fit. You can buy it from any representative Drygoods store.

THOU SHALT NOT.

Production of Max Freeman's Adaption of Albert Ross's Novel

The announcement of the production out of the play of "Thou Shalt Not," dramatized by Max Freeman from the novel of the same name by Mr Albert Ross, has excited an unusual interest. The first performance will be given on the evening of March 16th, and the cast and re-censors will be of the very best character. Miss Rose Coghlan who appears with the theatre, who has been very closely connected in the drama. Hector Grey Simon, who plays an important part before production in Madison Avenue, makes his home the scene of a gay crowd of friends, to whom her charms and her purse are always open. The money which he lavishes so freely is obtained in his connection with the Civic Hall ring, through the machinations of Jacob Mendall, a polite and well shaped. Grey has married in one of the basest possible ways as regards feminine virtue, and has found out that he is no match for the fair sex. Among his chums is a young fellow named Walter Chapin, who is somewhat of a village dude, and who is unable to distinguish the ugly but attractive girl from the beautiful one. Walter is a bachelor, and has fallen desperately in love with Clara Howard, a very fine young woman, who only retains a sentiment of despising Gresham meets this girl, who for the sake of the love she has for her brother he has done so much for, treats him with great courtesy, and tells him she understands the spell of his fascination. But so good and sweet does he find Clara that the most glorious change takes place in his moral being, and gets Gresham to believe that his life has been evil. In order to further this end he decides that he can best help her the right path. Clara will not agree to this at first, however, but finally consents, and she returns to New York determined to do so. Mendall, a friend of Grey's, lies quite unexpectedly at which one of the criminals finds that he has been shot by a bullet which was meant for another man. Mendall is found by them when he cannot betray. Ruth Chapin finds that she is engaged to getting him to bet a large sum in the race, and when the money is not forthcoming, hands her back the ring they have selected to Clara Campbell. Through the struggle of the trick of the scoundrels he succeeds in forging the resolutions, and plans to win the money for himself. So he does, and goes off into a bogus marriage. As soon as he has the money, however, he marries Clara, and with her leaves the city. The other Walter, bringing of the affair, deserts, and in a very sad plight the young daughter of Governors who is pursued by the father in the final act, and ends up with good Clara, brings about a reconciliation. There are a number of other characters necessary to the smoothness of execution, and many stirring incidents, besides a host of scenes which highest dramatic. It is one of the most thrilling plays ever seen at this house in point of its scenes, and a long run is confidently predicted.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert. Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, but states positively that her knowledge of the skin comes from years of experience and hard study. "My method," says Mme. Ruppert, "is due to the fact that I do what I claim to do, and make no promise that I cannot fulfil. My preparations for the skin clean the pores of all poisonous matter, and is my own discovery. There is no other original Face Bleach. My articles are entirely original and I guarantee by its use the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Sunburns, Roughness or Discolorations of the Skin, Redness of the Nose, Sallowness, etc.

The bleach is labeled with fac-similie of photo and signature of Mme. A. Ruppert, and sold for $3 per bottle, three bottles usually sufficient to cure; $5 is used externally, does not require constant use, as bleaching the skin once in eight years will be sufficient to keep the complexion faultless. Item's Harm: The cruelty that begins at home and stays at home is weak in the legs.

I have treated twelve very severe cases of Dyspepsia with Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir, all of which have been cured by its use. The cases is only of recent standing in which special notice was obliged to take to her bed on September, 4th. Even a teaspoonful of water, milk, or beef tea would cause excruciating pain for hours. I, at last hour, was called to see her Christmas evening, administered Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir in hot water every four hours, or just after attempting to eat, and in less than two days she could take half a teacupful of beef tea without any inconvenience. In nervous dyspepsia I find it especially valuable.

Lowell Citizen: How's the weather? It's slushious.

Washington Star: Five dollars an hour for a sleigh is snow joke.

THE "NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW"

SAYS OF THE CELEBRATED

SOHMER

PIANOS:

"No one can fail to notice in them every good quality which one is entitled to expect from a good instrument, viz., durability and almost clearness of tone, and an extent of power which never fails, added to which perfect evenness of touch renders them as near perfection as has been thus far attained. Their touch responds with absolute precision a delicacy and pliability, and a most happy and responsive quality not found in the instruments of any other make."

While the present firm of Sohmer & Co. was founded in 1872, its existence really extends further back than 1860. Its author and head, Mr. Hugo Sohmer, is a native of the Black Forest, in Germany, coming of a good family in comfortable circumstances, and was given a most finished scientific and literary education, at the same time acquiring a thorough knowledge of music and the piano-forte. At sixteen years of age he arrived in New York, and, true superiority of piano-making being then, as now, of rare occurrence, he was pleased by entering his uncle's trade with the intention to return to Europe in 1864, and travelled in the various capitals, studying pianomaking scientifically. It is certainly very creditable to him that he returned to New York, still studiously and unbiassed, enlisted upon practical form, and in 1872 established his business. Of the ideas which he then brought with him, and which Mr. Joseph Kahler, who still remains with them, helped to place under his charge, the one and trade thoroughly in the Vienna Shops, and added considerable experience gained in the shops of prominent makers. At present the firm consists, in addition to Messrs. Sohmer and Kahler, of Mr. Charles Pohe and George Beckmann, each member of the firm being in charge of a special department, to which he devotes his entire energies. The concern now has, in addition to its extensive warehouses on Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue, a new factory at Astoria, which is the most magnificent and complete establishment in the country, and the advent of which has done much to lead the way in inducing other manufacturers to establish themselves there.

Even with the present average production of the firm, which is about 1,000 of forty pianos per week, it is yet insufficient to supply the demands of dimensions, being to-day largely in arrears of its orders.

A newly-opened constituency demanding these celebrated instruments, they may be had not only at the principal warerooms, 149 to 155 East Fourteenth Street, New York, but at Montreal, Canada; 226 State Street, Chicago; Union Club Building, San Francisco; 1323 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.; 1126 Main Street, Kansas City; as also of local dealers throughout the country.

The interests of the firm of Sohmer & Co. have been quite earned well deserved to bestowed."

Park Place, New York, runs out of Broadway opposite the Post Office. Among its features is the largest lamp store in the world, that of the Rochester Lamp Company. Ladies often like to go there among the large wholesale houses, and buy of first hands. They will find at 49 Park Place the largest and most artistic display of lamps ever shown—over 1,000 varieties. This house is single lamps.

Next Monday evening, March 2d the Standard Theatre will again have a fine farce comedy as its attraction, and an unusually good one, in "The Fakir." It is from the West and has visited New York but once this year, and then only for a week, in Harlem. There is no horse play or slapsticks in this piece, nothing but lively dialogue, bristling action, good singing, clever dancing, and a company who play well together. Paul Potter has written a new third act which goes with a roar, and the Metropolitan papers praised it highly. In fact, it contains all the elements tending to make plays of its character successful, and as for pretty girls, well, there are over twice as many as are usually found in a single company. Among them is the clever soubrette, Lizzie Derious Daly, Rose Pruner, Jeannette St. Henry, Helen Reimer, Gertie Lohman and Madge Abbett. Verily a cluster of Jewels. Among the conclusions are Mark Sullivan of "Natural Gas" fame, Alf Hampton, Max Arnold and young Gilroy, whose "buck" dancing is an entire new novelty here. One glance at these names is a guarantee of the delightful quality of the entertainment provided in "The Fakir." In fact no less than five of the company have starred successfully. "The Fakir's" visit to Broadway will be a flying one, as its other engagements will only permit its remaining at the Standard one week, but that week should be a most successful one. The music by Berger is all new and exceedingly lively and tuneful.

Fred. G. Berger, - - - Manager
Geo. S. Stevens. - - - Stage Director

——: For Mr. Russell :——

At the Standard Theatre, Manager J. M. Hill will soon inaugurate a prolonged comedy season, and to this end has consummated arrangements whereby Mr. George W. Lederer's Comic Players, illustrating the laughing festival, "U. A. I." will begin an extended run commencing about the 16th of March. A magnificent company will interpret this wonderful successful musical satire headed by the famous twin stars and fun makers, Gus Williams and John T. Kelly, who need no introduction to New York audiences, for their long and prosperous career on the stage has endeared them to all lovers of laughing comedies.

At the head of the ladies of the company there is Miss Florry West, who has been named by a number of prominent critics the "Dazzling Sunbeam." This petite little body is an importation of Mr. Lederer, and to state that she has created a veritable furor is but putting it mildly, in fact, it is positively asserted by those who ought to know, that she fully equals the talents of our own Lotta in the latters palmiest days. The prima donna of the organization, Miss Gertrude Zella, is a beautiful young girl, seventeen years old, who is a recent first prize graduate of the New York Conservatory of Music. There is, besides, a bevy of pretty and attractive girls, and a number of picked comedians.

"U.A.I." while called by the author, Mr. Elgar Smith, a musical satire, is really more, it is in a farce comedy in the true sense of the word, with much more thread than most farce comedies can boast of, with enough ludicrous situations that usually go towards making up a half a dozen of the so-called skirts now before the public. As for the two masters of contrasted dialect parts, Mr. Gus Williams appears as Professor Ungerpatz, a German music teacher who is a victim of circumstance and mixed drinks, and as of yore, his humor is easy, natural and pleasing. John T. Kelly as O'Donovan Innes is excruciatingly funny. The dialogue of the piece is sparkling and witty throughout, and the whole is a genuine satire on the New York Flat House system. While the last act "The Roof Garden Fete" is a genuine reproduction of the New York Casino roof garden.

Of course there is the usual specimen of the flat, the janitor, a goodly representation of the necessary evil, "The Servant Girl," who with the other servants in the flat, bind themselves together for the purpose of establishing a servant girls Protective Union, the famous grocery butcher, conventional typical square and in fact, dozens of incidents that go to make up a most laughable and consistent evenings entertainment.

Moriarty Did It.

I sat within my lonely room
So cheerless and so drear;
With shabby furniture around,
Grown worse from year to year.
I thought of every earthly plan
By which to change my life,
But nothing seemed the proper thing,
Except to take a wife.

But how ask any woman fair
To share this dingy spot,
I told Jess I had not the heart
To bring her to my lot;
But she, wise little woman, said,
Joe, leave this while you can,
Give me the light to manage, dear,
I have a science and plan.

Hundreds of men as poor as you
Have blessed the day they went
To Moriarty, who gives worth
For every dollar spent.
He asks but honesty and truth
Square dealing when you buy;
He's always the masses how to live,
Then why not you and I?

His furniture is not excelled
By any in the town;
His carpets are as fine and good
As ever were put down;
He drapes the windows o'er with lace,
Hangs pictures on the wall,
Adds tables, sofas, easy chairs,
Until he's furnished all.

"So, Joe, dear, let us not delay,
This credit's just the thing,
Will fix us comfy at once
Before the buds of spring.
Think how you dwell in stuffy rooms,
And waste your money dear;
When home is always to be had
With Moriarty near.

MESS. LEWIS SCHIELE & CO., GENTLEMEN:—I have used your "S. C." corsets and find them to be the best fitting corsets I have ever worn, partic ularly for stage purposes.

Yours very truly,
PAULA LOEWE, (Amberg's Theatre.

Pauline. How is it that you always look so neat and trim, while you do not spend any more for your dresses than I do?

Lillie. The reason is I always buy Gilbert's Dress Lining. It does not stretch and always enables your dressmaker to give you a perfect fit. You can buy it from any representative Drygoods store.

Park Place, New York, runs out of Broadway opposite the Post Office. Among its features is the largest lamp store in the world, that of the Rochester Lamp Company. Ladies often like to go down among the large wholesale houses, and buy of first hands. They will find at 45 Park Place the largest and most artistic display of lamps ever shown—over 2,000 varieties. That house sells single lamps.

"I am not a bird doctor, madam," the physician interposed loftily.

"Don't you know anything about the diseases of canaries?"

"Most emphatically I do not."

"You will excuse me then, doctor," she said, "if I call a more experienced physician. I should be afraid to let you prescribe for the poor little dear."

A Pair of Reputations.

As to the dispute between Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Civil-Service Commissioner Roosevelt, it may be remarked that Mr Roosevelt has a reputation for honesty and Mr. Wanamaker one for piety.

Heating the Surgeon.

An eminent surgeon declares that with a needle and a few stitches he can alter a man's face so that his mother would not know him. A West Side grigsnun can perform the same operation with a single twist of his iron wrist.

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as invalids in health, are starved daily while using beef, calfsfoot jelly and the various meat extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, or do more than palliate anything for the sufferer. Bovinine is obtained from the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

Bovinine holds in solution the albuminoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by processes which preserve all of its wonderful life-sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. P. BOVI MANUFACTURING CO.

Gentlemen:—I have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting professionalle work, and supplies the body with a gentle stimulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with alcoholic beverages. A · PERFECT · COMPLEXION.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert, Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, but states candidly that her knowledge of the skin came from years of experience and hard study. "My success," says Mme. Ruppert, "is due to the fact that I do what I claim to do, and make no promises that I cannot fulfil. My process of bleaching the skin clears the pores of all poisonous fillings, and is my own discovery. There is only one genuine Face Bleach. My article is entirely original, and I guarantee it to cure the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Comedones, Roughness or Discoloration of the Skin, Redness of the Nose, Sallowness, etc.

The bleach is labeled with fac-similie of photo and signature of Mme A Ruppert, and sold for $2 per bottle; three bottles (one fully sufficient to cure), $5. It is not a cosmetic, does not require constant use, as bleaching the skin once in eight years will be sufficient to keep the cuticle faultless. It is entirely safe, and harmless for the most delicate skin. Send 4 cents or call for sealed pamphlet by the Mme A. RUPPERT, 6 East 14th Street, New York

HOMES FOR ALL.
See John Moriarty.

I.

He is the hero in the strife,
Who aids his fellow man to live,
And shares the burdens of this life,
And lastens sympathy to give.
John Moriarty feels for all
Whose lives are honored by their labors,
He thinks the weak would never fall,
If every man would help his neighbor.

II.

Prosperous himself, he pities those
Who cannot rise above unaided
And poverty's the least of woes,
If by it we are not degraded.
As well put money in your hand,
As give you of his goods and chattels
On terms, a child could understand,
And thus he helps you win your battles.

III.

His special credit is the theme
Deals on by rich and poor at present,
By this you may attain your dream
And make existence sure and pleasant.
No house has richer goods to show,
Beds, carpets, furniture and pictures
On terms you'll find extremely low,
Unmarred by hidden cost or strictures.

IV.

More no man does than he will do
To aid you in this wise endeavor,
Start now that home for loved ones true,
Your confidence and domain forever,
John Moriarty, Avenue Four,
Opposite 20th Street, One the Number,
Third and Fourth Avenue cars pass by the door.
Go see to this before you slumber.

"I am not a bird doctor, madam," the physician interposed loftily.

"Don't you know anything about the diseases of canaries?"

"Most emphatically I do not."

"You will excuse me then, doctor," she said, "if I call a more experienced physician. I should be afraid to let you prescribe for the poor little dear."

A Pair of Reputations.

As to the dispute between Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Civil-Service Commissioner Roosevelt, it may be remarked that Mr Roosevelt has a reputation for honesty and Mr. Wanamaker one for piety.

Beating the Surgeon.

An eminent surgeon declares that with four cuts and a few stitches he can alter a man's face so that his mother would not know him. A West Side gritpman can perform the same operation with a single whet of his iron wrist.

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beef-tea, calsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

Bovinine holds in solution the albumoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process, containing the life-sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting professionals with alcoholic beverages.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert, Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, but states candidly that her knowledge of the skin comes from years of experience and hard study. "My success," says Mme. Ruppert, "is due to the fact that I do what I claim to do, and make no pretense that I cannot fulfil. My process of bleaching the skin clears the pores of all poisonous fillings, and is my own discovery. There is only one genuine Face Bleach. My article is entirely original, and I guarantee by its use the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Comedones, Roughness or Discoloration of the Skin, Redness of the Nose, Yellowness, etc.

The Flesh is labeled with fac-similie of photo and signature of Mme A. Ruppert, and sold for $3 per bottle; three bottles usually sufficient to cure, but if skin is excessive, does not require treatment. HOMES FOR ALL.

See John Moriarty.

I.

He is the hero in the strife,
Who aids his fellow man to live,
And shares the burdens of this life,
And hastens sympathy to give.
John Moriarty feels for all
Whose lives are honored by their labors,
He thinks the weak would never fall,
If every man would help his neighbor.

II.

Prosperous himself, he pities those
Who cannot rise alone unaided
And poverty's the least of woes,
If by it we are not degraded.
As well you'll keep in your hand,
As give you of his goods and chattels
On terms, a child could understand,
And thus he helps you win your battles.

III.

His special credit is the theme
Dwelt on by rich and poor at present,
By this you may realize your dream
And make existence sure and pleasant.
No house has richer goods to show,
Beds, carpets, furniture and pictures
On terms you'll find extremely low,
Unmarred by hidden cost or strictures.

IV.

More no man does than he will do
To aid you in this wise endeavor,
Start now that home for loved ones true,
Your empire and domain forever.
John Moriarty, Avenue Four, Opposite Sixth Street, One the Number,
Third and Fourth Avenue cars pass by the door.
Go see to this before you slumber.

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, find the only nourishment that will not cause nausea, caseous jelly and the various forms of pepsin made by manufacturers of beef. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition and are chiefly condiments for the support of the vital processes, but act only as stimulants, not restoratives.

Bovinine holds in solution the albuminoids and extractives, as obtained by a peculiar process, containing the life-sustaining and blood-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

I.

A sweet brunette with flashing eye,
Or blonde with golden hair,
Will always charm the heart of man,
And make him do or dare.
The dimpled cheek, the pouting lips,
And witching glances too,
Doth make one think of love's sweet dream;
I often do, don't you?

II.

"Ah there" within a cosey home,
That's furnished plain and neat,
A charm it adds to Love's sweet spell
As kindred souls we greet,
I love to see a pretty place
Where style and taste is true,
And rest awhile from care and toil,
I love it, yes, don't you?

III.

Don't do as heretofore,
But go at once to where I say,

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beef-tea, calsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

Bovinine is a fluid solution of the albuminoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process containing the life-sustaining and tissue building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. F. BUSH MANUFACTURING CO.

KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER

Two years ago this fall, I was taken with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism in my right shoulder. I used all the remedies prescribed by the doctors which I found of very little avail, and suffered greatly during the entire winter. In October last, I had another severe attack, and was induced by a friend to try King's Royal Germetuer, and in using great caution before using one bottle, it entirely left me and I have no return since. As a theumatic remedy, I consider it superior to all medicines given for this disease, and cheerfully recommend it to those suffering from rheumatism or dyspepsia, from which it also gave me immediate relief.

A · PERFECT · COMPLEXION.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert. Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, insinuates foolishly that her knowledge of the skin comes from years of experience and hard study. "My secret," says Mme. Ruppert, "is due to the fact that I do what I claim to do, and make no promises that I cannot fulfill. My process of fulfilling the claim does the work. All goods are of my own discovery. The face is only one genuine Face Bleach. My article is entirely original, and I guarantee by its use the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Coldness, Roughness or Discoloration of the Skin, Redness of the Nose, Sallowness, &c.

The bleach is labeled with fac-simile of photo and signature of Mme. A. Ruppert, and sold for $2 per bottle, three bottles usually sufficient to cure, $5. It is not a cosmetic, does not require constant use, as bleaching the skin once in eight years will be sufficient to keep the form better than it is save in every case, and harmless for the most delicate skin. Send 4 cents stamps for sealed particulars to Madame A. RUPPERT, 6 East 14th Street, New York.

A Merry Christmas, All. From the one John Moriarty.

I.

Oh Santa Claus is a jolly old soul,
His coming brings us pleasures hearty,
But more and more as seasons roll,
He owes his cheer to Moriarty,
For bedroom suits and parlor sets,
Fine library fittings, chairs and tables,
Our Santa Claus with wisdom gets
For those who love his pleasant fables.

II.

No home a happy or complete
With windows bare or floor uncovered,
For pretty gifts our friends to treat,
This is the best stock yet discovered;
Soft pillows full of blissful dreams,
And folding beds the latest passion,
'Tis watch the crowd it really seems
John Moriarty is the fashion.

III.

No wonder when his terms are known,
This paying system sure led it,
No debt need make the buyer groan,
For here he finds a Special Credit,
Fourth Avenue opposite Sixth Street,
So many cars his wide door passes,
At Number One your friends you'll find,
For Moriarty sells the masses.

IV.

His goods are made to wear and last,
One good trade will another follow,
No! like some Mountebanks, who cast
Their net to catch the present dollar,
No man need fail on Christmas Day,
Without home comforts for a party,
No customer need go away,
Unsatisfied from Moriarty.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER.
Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash, and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of 40 years' use, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Ask for "Gouraud's Oriental Cream," as there are several worthless imitations. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." BOVININE.

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as languor invalids, are starved daily while using beef tea, calfsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

Bovinine is a fluid, looking solution the albuminoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process, containing the life-sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it

The J. D. Howe Manufacturing Co.,

Gentlemen:—I received your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting professional work, and supplies the body with a gentle stimulation from which there is no reaction, as in the case with alcoholic beverages. KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER

Two years ago this fall, I was taken with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism in my right shoul er. I used all the remedies prescribed for its cure which I found of very little avail, and suffered greatly during the entire winter. In October last, I had ano her attack, and was induced by a friend to try King's Royal Germetuer, and to my great surprise before using one bottle, it entirely left me and I have no return since. As a rheumatic remedy, I consider it superior to all medicines given for this disease, and cheerfully recommend it to those suffering from rheumatism or dyspepsia, from which I also gave me immediate relief.

A · PERFECT · COMPLEXION.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert. Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, but states candidly that her knowledge of the skin comes from years of experience and hard study. "My success," says Mme Ruppert, "is due to the fact that I do what I claim to do, and make no promise that I cannot fulfil. My process of bleaching the skin clears the pores of all poisonous fillings, and is my own discovery. There is only one genuine Pure Blood Balm. My article is entirely original, and I guarantee it by its use the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Sunburn, Redness, or Discoloration of the Skin, Redness of the Nose, Sallowness, etc."

The Wrinkle is labeled with the signature of paste and signature of Mme A. Ruppert, and sold for $2 per bottle. Extra bottles (usually sufficient) to cure), $6. It is not a cosmetic, does not require constant use, as bleaching the skin once in eight years will be sufficient to keep the com lexion faultless. It is known in every race, and harmless for the most delicate skin. Send 4 cents or call for sealed pamphlet to Madame A. RUPPERT, 6 East 14th Street, New York.

A Merry Christmas, All.

From the one John Moriarty.

I.

Oh Santa Claus is a jolly old soul,
His coming brings us pleasures hearty,
But more and more as seasons roll,
He owes his cheer to Moriarty,
For bedroom suits and parlor sets,
Fine library fittings, chairs and tables,
Our Santa Claus with wisdom gets
For those who love his pleasant fables.

II.

No home is happy or complete
With windows bare or floor uncovered,
For pretty gifts our friends to treat,
This is the best stock yet discovered;
Soft pillows full of bissine dreams,
And folding beds the latest passion,
To watch the crowd it really seems
John Moriarty is the fashion.

III.

No wonder when his terms are known,
This paying system sure led it,
No debt need make the buyer groan,
For here he finds a Special Credit,
Fourth Avenue opposite Sixth Street,
So many cars his wide door passes.
At Number One your friends you'll find,
For Moriarty sells the masses.

IV.

His goods are made to wear and last,
One good trade will another follow,
Not like some Mountebanks, who cast
Their net to catch the present dollar,
No man need sigh on Christmas day,
Without home comforts for a party,
No customer need go away,
Unsatisfied from Moriarty.

KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER

Two years ago this fall, I was taken with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism in my right shoulder. I used all the remedies prescribed for its cure which I found of very little avail, and suffered greatly during the winter season. In October last, I had another attack, and was induced by a friend to try King's Royal Germetuer, and to my great surprise before using one bottle, it entirely left me and I have no return since. As a rheumatic remedy, I consider it superior to all medicines given for this disease, and cheerfully recommend it to the so suffering from rheumatism or dyspepsia, from which it also gave me immediate relief.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

'Tis said that fair woman, God's last gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—early began
To adorn and improve on divinity's plan.
By arts to enhance
She sought to preserve in creation her place
By ornaments, charming attire, and grace—
But found a fair skin and a beautiful face
The best after all.

BOVININE

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beef-tea, calfsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they constitute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

Bovinine holds in solution the albuminoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process, containing the life-sustaining and tissue building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. P. BUSH MANUFACTURING CO.

GENTLEMEN—I have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting professionable labor. I also recommend it to my body with a gentle stimulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with alcoholic beverages. MAURICE MORRISON

A · PERFECT · COMPLEXION.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert, Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, but states candidly that her knowledge of the skin comes from years of experience and hard study. "My Face Bleach, Nine Report," is the name she has given to that which she sells to ladies, and make no promises that I cannot keep. My process of bleaching the skin clears the pores of poisonous fillings, and is my own discovery. The only one that is genuine Face Bleach. My article is entirely vegetable, and I guarantee by its use the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Comedones, Redness or Discolorations in the Skin, Sunburn of the Nose, Sallowness, etc.

The bleach is labeled with fac-simile of photo and signature of Mme. A. Ruppert, and sold for $3 per bottle, the bottles (usually sufficient to cure), $5. It is not a cosmetic, does not require constant use, as bleaching the skin once in eight years will be sufficient to keep the complexion faultless. It is sure in every case, and harmless for the most delicate skin. Send 4 cents or call for sealed particulars to Madame A. RUPPERT, 6 East 14th Street, New York.

The's the best stock yet discovered;
Soft pillows full of lustful dreams,
And folding beds the latest passion,
To watch the crowd it really seems
John Moriarty is the fashion.

This paying system sure led it,
No debt need make the buyer groan,
For here he finds Special Credit,

BOVININE.

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beef tea, calfsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

Bovinine holds in solution the albumoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process, containing the life-sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. P. BOVE MANUFACTURING CO.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after professionable work, and supplies the body with a gentle stimulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with alcoholic beverages. KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER

"For years my system was overrun with a severe attack of rheumatism, and I was quite helpless. Having tried many remedies prescribed for it, without avail, I took, as a last resort, King's Royal Germetuer, and after using one bottle I entirely lost my pain and have no return since. As a theumatic remedy, I consider it superior to all medicines known, for this disease, and cheerfully recommend it to those suffering from rheumatism or neuralgia, from which it also gave me immediate relief."

A PERFECT COMPLEXION.

The Remarkable Success of Mme. A. Ruppert. Complexion Specialist.

Mme. A. Ruppert, New York's only thorough complexion specialist, does not claim for her specialties that they were purchased at fabulous prices from any of the nobility of Europe, but states candidly that her knowledge of the skin comes from years of experience and hard study, "my success," says Mme. Ruppert, "is due to the fact that I do what I claim to do, and make no promise that I cannot fulfil. My process of bleaching the skin clears the pores of all poisonous fillings, and is my own discovery. There is only one genuine Face Bleach. Mine is entirely original, and I guarantee by its use the removal of Wrinkles, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Comedones, Roughness or Discoloration of the Skin, Redness of the Nose, Sallowness, &c.

The bleach is labeled with fac-similie of photo and signature of Mme. A. Ruppert, and sold for $3 per bottle, three bottles (usually sufficient to cure), $8. It is not a cosmetic, does not require constant use, as bleaching the skin once in eight years will be sufficient to keep the same in fashion. It is sure in every case, and harmless for the most delicate skin. Send 4 cents or call for pamphlet and lecture to Madame A. RUPPERT, 6 East 14th Street, New York.

A MASTER WORK.

Visiting the salesrooms of Bourne & Co., 149 to 155 East 14th Street, our auditor is called to an elegant Louis-15 master-work added, the masters of the art of building Pianos have never before succeeded in constructing such a magnificent instrument. The case has been built principally in corrugated design executed by the well-known Corrugoneta Syndicate of Scranton, Pa. The wire-mounted wood work is ornamented with arsenic bead carvings and combined with gold. The price of this "Grand" is $5,000. Perfectly in accordance with the outside, is the inside of the instrument.

The melodious tone and the wonderful expression of the softest pianissimo as well as the strongest fortissimo is delighted to everybody's ear and has received the highest testimonials of our best artists.

Park Place, New York, runs out of Broadway opposite the Post Office. Among its features is the largest tea-room in the world, that of the Rochester Lamp Company. Ladies often like to go down among the large wholesale houses, and buy of first hands. They will find at 42 Park Place the largest and most artistic display of lamps ever shown—over 2000 varieties. This house sells single lamps.

"Pa," inquired Bobby, "what's the meaning of E pluribus unum?"

"Oh, it's a Latin phrase, Bobby. I used to know when I was at college, but a man is apt to forget most that he learned at college when gets to be as old as I am."

Just then a procession of college students passed the door shouting vociferously. "Rah, Rah, Rah!" "Tiger," yelled the old man, and he broke both suspenders before he reached the gate.

"Move up there!" roared the Elevated Railroad Guard. "Passengers are not allowed to stand on the platform."

"We're not standing!" gasped a suffocating victim. "We're being 'stood up'!"

AN INCORRIGIBLE WITNESS.

IT was a horse case. Horse cases are difficult to deal with, and in the course of the trial a horsey-looking witness was put in the box. Counsel asked him what happened.

Witness—I sez, sez I, how about the hoss? and he zaid he'd give me ten shilling to zay nothing about un.

Counsel—He did not say he would give you ten shillings.

Witness—Yes a did; that's exactly what a did zay.

Council—He could not have said "he;" he must have spoken in the first person.

Witness—No, I was the first person that spoke. I sez, sez I:—"How about the hoss?"

Council—But did he not speak in the third person?

Witness—There was no third person present, only he and me.

The judge (interposing)—Listen to me, witness. He could not have said:—"He would give you ten shillings to say nothing about it," but I will give you ten shillings."

Witness—He zaid nothing about your lordship If a zad anything about your lordship I never heerd un. And if there was a third person I never zeed un."

Point given up.

A YOUNG man in very threadbare clothes, summer derby and open-toed shoes was shivering his way up Bates street yesterday, when a benevolent looking old gentleman stopped him and said—

"Why, man, you have no overcoat?"

"No, sir."

"And your clothes are very thin."

"Yes, sir."

"You must suffer from the cold—actually suffer!"

"I do, sir."

"It is too bad—too bad; but while you suffer be consoled by the thought that this weather is making ice for next summer's use.—Detroit Free Press.

Saratoga—Season 1889.

Saratoga is the most popular summer resort in America. Twenty-three trains bring visitors there daily from every section of the country. The popular daily paper is the Saratoga Daily Register, which has been published (for the summer season only) during the past TWELVE YEARS, and is the only publication with which the visitors are thoroughly familiar, its circulation being almost universal at all the hotels, boarding houses and cottages.

The Register publishes the programmes of the morning concerts given on the piazas of the United States, Grand Union, Congress Hall, Clarendon and Kensington Hotels, and the paper is distributed gratuitously to the guests of these hotels at the concerts,

It affords business houses wishing to advertise an exceptionally good medium, as it is not only attentively read by visitors who have ample leisure for so doing, but it is mailed by them to their re'atives at home, which gives the paper an extraordinary wide circulation.

The season comprises ten weeks, and will commence on July 1 and end on Sept. 7. For advertising rates and sample copy of paper, apply to or address

AN HEROIC GIRL.

"George, dear," she said, with a pleading Amelia Rives look upon her face, "surely you are not going thus early? Have you ceased to love me?"

"No, darling, my love for you is as a rock; it will endure," George replied with emotion: "but early, why, it is after 7 o'clock, and" [dropping heavily into a chair] "the boss says that if the store isn't open and the steps washed down hereafter at 6 o'clock I lose my job."

"Go, go, George," exclaimed the girl with noble heroism, "the job is about all we will have to claim as our own."

We owe respect to the man who, however ignorant, makes no false pretense, but strive to repair his deficiences by attentive listening or modest questions; but we can have only scorn for the conceited assumptions of one who strives to make his narrowness appear broad, and his shallowness deep.

A YOUNG man in very threadbare clothes, summer derby and openwork shoes was shivering his way up Hahn street yesterday, when a benevolent looking old gentleman stopped him and said—

"Why, man, you have no overcoat!"

"No, sir."

"And your clothes are very thin."

"Yes, sir."

"You must suffer from the cold—actually suffer!"

"I do sir."

"It is too bad—too bad; but while you suffer be consoled by the thought that this weather is making ice for next summer's use.—Detroit Free Press.

PIANOS SOHMER PIANOS

Are at present the most popular and preferred by the leading Artists.

NOS. 149 TO 155 EAST 14TH STREET, NEW YORK.

Saratoga Season 1889.

Saratoga is the most popular summer resort in America. Twenty-three trains bring visitors there daily from every section of the country. The popular daily paper is the Saratoga Daily Register, which has been published (for the summer season only) during the past TWELVE YEARS, and is the only publication with which the visitors are thoroughly familiar, its circulation being almost universal at all the hotels, boarding houses and cottages.

The Register publishes the programmes of the morning concerts given on the piazas of the United States, Grand Union, Congress Hall, Clarendon and Kensington Hotels, and the paper is distributed gratuitously to the guests of these hotels at the concerts.

It affords business houses wishing to advertise an exceptionally good medium, as it is not only attentively read by visitors who have ample leisure for so doing, but it is mailed by them to their re'atives at home, which gives the paper an extraordinary wide circulation.

The season comprises ten weeks, and will commence on July 1 and end on Sept. 7. For advertising rates and sample copy of paper, apply to or address

There's nothing like leather, excepting, of course, the upper crust of the young wife's first pie.—Journal of Education.

The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain is "very English," but he seems to have embraced something American.

A MIDDLE-AGED women went to a prominent physician of San Diego, not long ago, and ask him to amputate her two great toes. He examined them, assured her that there was nothing wrong with them, and said that he wouldn't cut them off. She begged him to, saying that if they were off she could wear No. 2 shoes instead of 4 as then. Her toes were her own, she said, to do what she pleased with, and she would give $300 to have them off. The doctor went in quest of some one with less conscience. A San Diego newspaper says that she found some one to do the job successfully, for two weeks later she went to San Francisco wearing the best pair of No. 2s that could be found in San Diego.

CAUTION.

TO PURCHASERS OF PIANO-FORTES.

Unsuspecting purchasers of piano-fortes are often deceived by dealers in cheap instruments and are made to pay an exorbitant price because they get such instruments "on installments."

To meet this class of purchasers the firm of Albert Weber have resolved to sell their Upright Pianos in future on installments at but a fair advance on the cost price, whenever such accommodation is required by reliable parties.

By this system persons of moderate means will discover that they can purchase a "WEBER" piano at about the same figure they now pay for cheap and unreliable instruments.

The Standard Theatre

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF

MR. JAS. C. DUFF.

In securing an extended lease of the new STANDARD THEATRE it is Mr. DUFF'S intention to establish this house as the "HOME of OPERA COMIQUE," and with this object in view, he has sought to secure the services of artists whose talents will enable him to present the different musical works, selected for production here, in a thoroughly complete and brilliant manner.

The members of the Company already engaged include the names of Miss MARIE CONSON, Miss MAE ST. JOHN, Miss HATTIE NEFFLAND, Miss LOUISE ENGLANDER, Miss ALICE VINCENT and Miss EMMA SHERIDAN, Mr. RICH. MANSFIELD, Mr. HARRY HILLIARD, Mr. CHAS. STANLEY, Mr. W. H. FITZGERALD, Mr. FR. CLIFTON, Signor IZANO, Mr. J. E. NASH, Mr. E. SULLIVAN, Mr. WILLIAM GILLOW, Mr. C. L. ROSANO and Mr. ALEX. KLEIN.

The different departements of this Theatre are in charge of Mr. CARL HERRMANN—Bus. Manager.

Mr. W. H. FITZGERALD—Stage Manager.
Mr JOHN DENHAM—Stage Mechanist.
Mr. BENJ. BINNS—Gasmans.
Mr. PAUL BARBIER—Engineer.
Mr. THOS. DENNON—Adv. Agent.
Mr. JAMES BRADYS—Properties.

The Chorus, numbering fifty persons, together with an increased Orchestra (both permanent features of the representations given at this Theatre) under the direction of Herr ADOLPH NOWAK, will complete an ensemble, which, it is hoped, will favorably impress those interested in musical matters.

"Gasparone," comic opera in 3 acts adapted from the German of Messrs. F. ZELL and GENEE, music by CARL MILLOCKER, has been selected for the production at this Theatre, a synopsis of which will be found below.

ARGUMENT.

GASPARONE is the name of a notorious Sicilian brigand. A band of smugglers, headed by MASSACCIO and BENOZZO taking advantage of the terror in which the brigand is held by the unsuspecting inhabitants of their coast-town, circulate the report that GASPARONE is infesting their immediate neighborhood, and by thus keeping the coast guard and police employed in the search for the brigand, divert their attention from their own trade of smuggling. Signor NASONI, the local magistrate, is at the head of those in pursuit of GASPARONE. He is the guardian of the COUNTESS CARLOTTA whose estates have been in litigation. He conceals from her the fact that she has won her lawsuit, until she has consented to become the wife of his son, a rapid rou[é] named SPINELLO. The legal victory gained by CARLOTTA places her in possession of large sums of ready money which are locked up in a cabinet of her castle.

COUNT EMINIO, a knight errant, who has become enamored of CARLOTTA, comes on the scene and overhears the smugglers' plot to deceive the people with a mythical GASPARONE: he sews them into submission and resolves upon impersonating GASPARONE for the ultimate purpose of forcing CARLOTTA from the clutches of her scheming guardian, NASONI.

By the aid of BENOZZO, he effects the capture of ZENONIA, the duenna of CARLOTTA, and first appears to CARLOTTA as her preserver in a pre-arranged attack upon her in the adjacent woods. He enters her castle at night and plunders the cabinet. CARLOTTA thus impoverished is no longer a desirable match for the greedy NASONI. EMINIO who has succeeded in winning CARLOTTA'S affections, restores the money, confesses his disguise and finally wins her hand, much to the dismay of the defeated NASONI, who in the third act has been pompously holding a legal examination to establish the identity of the much pursued robber, GASPARONE.

Interwoven with the main story are the domestic squabbles of BENOZZO, the young smuggler, and his wife, SORA, arising from the latter's ignorance of his nefarious traffic; and the exploits of ZENONIA, a severe spinster whose good name, in spite of all her endeavors to the contrary, remains obstinately unimpugned, and whose wooing of NASONI is more quaint than prosperous.

This synopsis is published by the management for the convenience of the public to enable them to gain a clear idea of the plot and in no way is this publication to be used for purposes of performance or otherwise—all rights being reserved by the authors—the manuscript being unpublished.

A much-married Maine man writes to a friend: "Don't expect me to support Belva Lockwood. I am supporting all the women I can afford to just at present."

"Charles, dear," said a charming little literary lady to her husband the other evening, "let me read you the opening chapter of my new novel."

"Certainly," replied Charles, "I should be delighted."

"Well, then, sit still and listen: 'Twas evening. A huge, inky cloud '"

"Blue ink?" interrupted Charles.

"No, sir."

"Violet ink, methe."

"No, it was "

"Red ink, for instance."

"Charles, you know—"

"Perhaps it was that delicate, fashionable mauve ink?"

"Now, Charles, don't—"

"Methe it was green ink?"

"Why, you horrid creature you! When I speak of anything having an inky appearance, what impression does it make on you?"

"Same as a blotting pad, my love. I take it all in. Go on with the harrowing scene."

"Charles you are a brute!" and the little literary lady flounced out of the room.

Mme. X. is a charming woman, but nature has dowered her altogether too liberally in the matter of feet. She has been sick, but is convalescing, and tells a friend, who has called to see how she is getting along, that she can barely put one foot before the other.

"Ah, my dear," says the visitor (who wears No. 1½), "then you have made a gigantic stride toward recovery."

Old Lady Goodheart took up a newspaper the other day, and upon reading the caption "Making Bessemer Steel," she threw down the vile sheet and exclaimed:

"I've no patience with the papers any more! You can't find a thing in 'em that doesn't make your blood bile. Now I don't s'pose that Bessemer had any notion of stealin', but they went to work an made him do it. My, my! what a wicked world this is."

"The Daily Butterite has flopped over to the Democrats," remarked the exchange editor to the managing editor of the Republican organ.

"It was bought. Any paper that changes its political at this time campaign is always bought."

"I made a mistake about that paper," observed the exchange editor a few minutes later. "It has come over to our side."

"Well, that alters matters. Write an editorial and say that we admire independence in the press above all things."

THE SEASON OF 1881-'82.

The Regular Season of 1881-'82 at the Standard Theatre began on Thursday, September 22d, with the production of Gilbert & Sullivan's new aesthetic opera, "Patience," by an opera company under the direction of R. D'Oyly Carte. "Patience" held the boards until March 6th, '82, when the romantic opera, "Claude Duval," by Stephens and Solomon, was performed for three nights, and divided the two following weeks with "Patience," which latter piece was withdrawn on Saturday, March 25th, after a run of 180 performances—a run unequalled by any previous production of a musical work at any single theatre in this country, and far exceeding the record of its famous predecessor, "Pinafore."

C. D. HESS' ACME OPERA CO.

This celebrated Lyric Organization will commence a brief season of English Opera, at this Theatre, on Monday Evening, May 1st. The following celebrities comprise the principals: Miss Zelda Seguin, (who will make her reappearance on the Lyric Stage after an absence of two seasons) Miss Adelaide Randall, Miss Louise Searle, Miss Emma Pressy, and Miss Emma Elsner; Mr. William Castle, Mr. Henry Peakes, Mr. Mark Smith, Mr. Alfred Wilkie, Mr. James Peakes, Mr. Walter Allen, and Mr. H. F. Fairweather, also a Grand Chorus of 40 young musical voices.

During the season a new Opera, entitled will be produced. It has been eminently successful in the cities that it has been played in, and is thus described by the Cleveland Morning Herald of April 6th:

"THE WIDOW,"

It is the best American opera yet written and, aside from National predilections in its favor, it is a work that will always command attention in any country. The following synopsis of the story of the opera will exhibit its character and scope:

Act I. opens on a fete at the chateau of the Duc de Trop, in honor of his niece and ward Nanine who loves Marcel Dubois in opposition to the wishes of her guardian, who favors another suitor. Here the Marquis Beauseant meets Donna Paquita, to whom he had been engaged, but to marry Adele Henriques for her fortune. A stormy interview ensues upon her discovery of his perfidy, and she pretends to drown herself in order to frighten and punish him. As he is running toward the water to prevent her, he is caught by Passepoil, a domestic, who, not having seen the Widow, imagins he has prevented the Marquis from committing suicide; and the, latter, thinking he has been arrested for murder, bribes his captor to silence, and resolves to fly from the neighborhood.

Act II. opens at the chateau of Count Frederic, near Bordeaux, a brother of the Duc de Trop, where Nanine has been sent to banish her marriage to the suitor selected by her guardian befnre she attains her majority. Here the Marquis appears under the assumed name of Guibouland, and Nanine persuades him to represent himself as her husband, in the hope that her uncle, finding she had not married the man he dislikes, may not discover the deception until she becomes of age. Marcel having learned that the Count is an old friend of Adele, but unacquainted with her husband, introduces himself as the latter, in order to be near Nanine, the true Marquis not daring to expose him because he suspects him to be a detective in search of the Widow's murderer. Passepoil meanwhile has secured employment as a waiter at the Chateau and recognizes the Marquis, who again bribes him to continued silence. When Guibouland meets the Duc and declares himself the husband of his niece, he hastily retires and in his confusion drops a card bearing his name and title, which the Duc picks up, and upon Adele's arrival he informes her that the Marquis is the husband of his niece.

In Act III. the Count mistaking the reserve of of Marcel upon meeting the Marchioness for a slight domestic disagreement, endeavors to heal the breach much to the annoyance of the real Marquis, who has refused to tell his wife the reason fnr concealing his name or to explain the mystery of passing for Nanine's husband. The reappearance of the Widow alarms the Marquis, who believes her to be dead until her explanation and that of Passepoil relieves him of his fears, when he explains all to the Marchioness and is forgiven The Widow persuades the Duc to offer his hand, and the Count forgives the deception practiced upon him, and in the general hapiness which ensues, Nanine is united to Marcel.

This plot is ingenious and effective. It abounds with ludicrous situations and telling business, and, everywhere carefully worked out, maintains its intc est to the final falling of the curtain. Above all—and this is the most important feature in the book of an opera—it lends itself readily to musical treatment, and its various numbers seem never to be forced, but to be the natural outgrowth of the story. As for the music it everywhere betrays the dual presence of the born composer and the cultured musician. It is original, melodious and sparkling, and the concerted p eces and choruses are written in a particularly scholarly spirit. To ci e the pleasing selections would be almost equivalent to the enumeration of all its numbers, but the fo lowing were more noteworthy and specially caught the fancy of the audience: The first air of Paquita, a taking melody treated in a thoroughly Spanish manner; a buffo song for Passepoil and chorus, which concludes the first act. In the second act, which was, musically, the best of the opera, were a sparkling waltz song, a comical sighing duet to which the accompaniment was very novel and clever and a well-written quartette. The last act had a sextette, with a pretty melody, scholarly treated, and the closing chorus, which is one of the best things in the opera. The orchestra scoring of the work is excellent, and we noticed several places in which the instruments were ingeniously employed with good effect.

Mr. Calixa Lavallee, of Boston, who is the composer of "The Widow," has not only written an enjoyable opera, but has demonstrated in it his capacity for work of the best quality.

At the close of the Regular Operatic Season at this theatre, which will take place about June 5th, a Supplementary Season will be given by Messrs. Baker & Farron, who will produce a new sensational drama, entitled "Max Muller." It is full of strong dramatic situations, and serves to show these versatile comediaos in the happiest vein

PANTS.—This abbreviation is not used by those who are careful in the choice of words. The purist does not use the word pantaloons even, but trousers. Pant are worn by cents who eat lunches and open wine, and trouse s are worn by gentlemen who eat luncheons and order wine.—Ayres' Verbalist."

COMBINE.—It is safe to say that most of those who use this word do not know its meaning, which is, suitable, deserved, merited, proper "His endeavors shall not lack combin praise," i. e., his endeavors shall not lack proper or their merited praise. "A villain constantly punished" is a villain punished according to his demerits. To use combin in the sense of praise is just as incorrect as it would be to use deserved or merited in the sense of praise.—Ayres' Verbalist."

FEMALE.—The terms male and female are not unfrequently used where good taste would suggest some other word. For example, we see over the doors of school houses, "Entrance for Males," "Entrance for Females" Now hucks and bulls are males as well as boys and men, and cows and sows are females as well as girls and women.—Ayres' Verbalist."

A PAIR OF FUNNY FACTS.

The "Galley Slave" Company were recently playing in one of the Michigan towns, and, during the performance, when Frank Evans was creeping through a window (as those knowing the piece will remember he does), tramp down the centre aisle came a pair of jackboots with a red-headed man in them. Evans spun out the business to give the boots time to halt, but, to his surprise, the wearer stopped not till he reached the orchestra rail, when he turned and fronted the audience, and, in a scythe-sharpening voice, said, "If Eben Richardson is in this theayter, he must go home—his barn is on fire!"

One day Thad. Stevens was practicing in the Carlysle courts, and he didn't like the ruling of the presiding judge. A second time the judge ruled against Old Thad., when the old man got up with scarlet face and quivering lips, and commenced tying up his papers as if to quit the court-room. "Do I understand, Mr. Stevens," asked the judge, eyeing Old Thad. indignantly, "do I understand that you wish to show your contempt of this court?" "No, sir! no, sir!" replied Old Thad., "I don't want to show my contempt sir: I'm trying to conceal it."

Mr. JOHN E. OWENS is now playing the part of Rogers in "Esmeralda," at the Madison Square Theatre. The play has entered upon its fifth month, and still drawing crowded houses.

PATHOS.—A love story: "It is the first time you ever repulsed me, Edith, and it shall be the last," said young De Courcey, as he arose haughtily and moved toward the door. "Stay!" cried she, piteously, as if her heart would break: "we must not part in anger." "Well," he rejoined, half-penitently, "what shall I do?" "Oh, Gus, don't blame me," she explained, with a perceptible shiver; "my neck is very sensitive. I stood it as long as I could. Go and warm your nose with Opera Puff Cigarettes."

SWEARING ON A SKULL. — In April, 1851, a man was committed to Mayo prison for cutting off the head of a corpse but a few days interred. His object in severing the head was that of clearing himself of some imputed crime by swearing on a skull, a superstition said to be very common in that part of Ireland.

SNAKES.—There is a very prevalent belief that a snake can never die till the sun is down. Cut or hack it as you will, it will never die till sunset. This idea has evidently its source in the amazing vitality common to the species.

A LEGEND OF THE COUNTY CLARE.—On the west coast of Ireland, near the Cliffs of Moher, at some distance out in the bay, the waves appear continually breaking in white foam even on the calmest day. The tradition among the country people is, that a great city was swallowed up there for some great crime, and that it becomes visible once every seven years. And if the person who sees it could keep his eyes fixed on it till he reached it, it would then be restored, and he would obtain great wealth.

GLEE-MEN.—Glee-men was a term which included dancers, posturers, jugglers, tumblers, and exhibitors of trained performing monkeys and quadrupeds; and, the masculine including the feminine in this case, many of these performers were women and girls. The illuminations (the Harleian Collection) which constitute our chief authority as to the amusements of the fairs during the middle ages, introduce us to female posturers and tumblers, in the act of performing the various feats with balls and knives, as their representatives of the nineteenth century; what is professionally designated "The Shower," in which the balls succeed each other rapidly, while describing a semi-circle from right to left, is shown in one of the Harleian illuminations.

THE æsthetic lawyer spoke ironically of his opponent as an astute gentleman, whereupon the opponent retorted that he entertained a similar opinion of the other, regarding him astute, too.

GOLDSMITH received £1,300 for his two plays: viz., £500 for the "Good Natured Man," and £800 for 'She Stoops to Conquer;" a sum very seldom obtained by dramatic authors at that time.

MLLE. EUGENIE LEGRAND will make her début in New York at the Union Square Theatre on the 1st of May in an entirely original play, written by George Darrell, entitled "Solange." Mlle. Legrand is an emotional actress of a high order of merit. She has appeared with most gratifying success in the principal London and Parisian Theatres, and recently obtained the unanimous endorsement of press and public for her artistic representation of Camille, in Jersey City. The play has been approved by Manager Palmer, and in its presentation the Author and a specially selected company will appear.

WHEN is a candle like a tombstone? When it is put up for a late husband.

"BILLEE TAYLOR."

(No. 4.)

An anonymous friend has favored us with still another version of the ballad of "Billy Taylor," and in commenting thereupon points out the difference between this and former versions. This is the fourth copy of the verses which has come to light, and seems, like the first one published, to be quoted from memory.

Billy Taylor was a fine young fellow,
Full of fun and full of glee,
And his mind he did diskiver
To a maiden, fair and free.

Four and twenty gay young fellows—
Dressed they were in rich array—
And they took poor Billy Taylor
Whom they pressed, and sent to sea.

And his true-love followed after,
Under the name of Richard Carr,
And her lily-white hands got bedaubed all over
With the nasty pitch and tar.

Now behold! in the first engagement
Bold she fought among the rest,
Till the wind her shirt blew open
And diskivered her lily-white breast.

When the captain come for to know it,
Says he, "What wind has blew you here?"
"Oh, sir! I'm come to seek my true-love, Whom you press'd, and I love so dear."

"Oh, if you've come to seek your true-love,
Tell to me his name, I pray."
"Oh, sir, his name is Billy Taylor, Whom you press'd and sent to sea."

"If his name is Billy Taylor
He's both cruel and severe;
If you'll rise up early in the morning
You'll see him walking with his lady dear."

With that she rose up early next morning—
Early at the break of day—
And then she saw bold Billy Taylor
Dancing with a lady gay.

With that she called for sword and pistol,
Which did come at her command,
And then she shot bold Billy Taylor,
And his lady at his right hand.

But when the captain came for to know it,
He very much applauded what she had done,
And immediately made her the first lieutenant
Of the glorious Thunderbomb.

The fame of "Billee Taylor" is gone abroad throughout the land. The first nights in Philadelphia of the new traveling company sent out by Messrs. Carte and Rice were quite as successful as the first presentations in this city. The public filled the beautiful new Chestnut Street Opera House completely full, and showed by unbounded applause and repeated encores their cordial appreciation of the bright melodies, witty dialogue, and effective situations of the opera. The scenery and stage-setting, which is an exact duplicate of the Standard stage, was greatly admired. Mr. Voegtlin deserves and receives the highest praise for his artistic pictures. The press of Philadelphia are unanimous in endorsing the new production. They draw many apt comparisons between "Billee Taylor" and "Pinafore," and find, on the whole, that the former has many attractive elements of popularity which the latter did not possess

Following the Philadelphia engagement the traveling company will appear at Cincinnati, Chicago, and other large cities of the country. The company is under the management of Mr. James Scanlan and Mr. H. B. Lonsdale; the cast of characters is as follows:

Christopher Crab	Sig. Broccoli
Sir Mincing Lane	W. H. Montgomery
Ben Barnacle	J. J. Benitz
Billee Taylor	Eugene Clarke
Capt. Flapper	George Thorne
Arabella	Miss Rachel Sanger
Susan	Miss K. Guthrie
Eliza	Miss J. Hughes
Phœbe	Miss F. Guthrie

The dance music of the sailor's hornpipe at the beginning of the second act, is the old song of "Billee Taylor," arranged as a hornpipe, by Mr. Cellier. It is one of the brightest and most charming bits of melody in the whole performance. The song itself, and the hornpipe, have been published by Messrs. Pond & Co., Union Square, and is now on sale in the lobby of the Theatre.

There are three different books o the opera sold in the theatre. The full score, with all the words and music, price, $1.00; the selections, containing fifteen songs, and choruses, price, 25 cents; and the third, an illustrated edition, with the portraits of the principal artists, all the words of the music, and nine of the principal songs, which also sells for 25 cents.

FIRST-CLASS HOUSE FOR LADIES

As the audience were leaving the Theatre, on Thursday evening, they were astonished by the sound of a ringing cheer from behind the curtain, which had just fallen on the last scene of the opera. The occasion of this was the reception by the members of the Opera Comique Company, assembled on the stage for the purpose, of Mr. CHARLES HARRIS, the gentleman who has superintended the production of the opera in this theatre. Mr. Wm. Henderson, the Manager of the Theatre, on behalf of himself, Mr. Carte, Mr. Rice, and the members of the Opera Company, in a felicitous speech, presented Mr. Harris with a beautiful Albert double gold watch chain, with an onyx locket and gold pencil attached, "as a mark of the appreciation of the ability shown in the production of 'Billee Taylor' at the Standard Theatre, March, 1881." The gift was a complete surprise to Mr. Harris. He received it with a graceful and cordial expression of his gratitude to his American friends, and a happy allusion to the pleasure with which he should show it on his return to England as a reminder of the good feeling of the management and company. It was a well-deserved compliment, and an occasion which both givers and recipient thoroughly enjoyed.

THE SULTAN'S SERVANTS.—The Sultan of Turkey employs about his palace six thousand servants of both sexes, and he just monopolizes the columns of the Constantinople Herald with "wants" for girls "to do general housework." UNDERGOING AN OPERATION.—"What's the matter with your eye, Tommy?" "Oh, it's only been going through an operation at the hands of a knockulist: that's all."

THE BEST REMEDY.—"What is the remedy," asked a preacher of a shrewd observer, "for an inattentive audience?"—Give them something to attend to," was the significant reply; "hungry sheep will look up to the rack if there is hay in it."

FASSO · CORSET.

THIS CORSET, after many years' trial in Europe and this country, has been acknowledged to be superior in every particular to all others.

As each corset is cut, basted and finished with the same care that is given to the making of a dress-waist, it has that accuracy and symmetry which it is impossible to obtain in machine-made goods.

Its points of excellence are: a long tapering waist, gracefully curved back, perfectly shaped and easily fitting hips, with the lines of the bust and shoulders so proportioned in each model as to insure the greatest advantage in appearance, while affording perfect ease to the wearer.

GOTHAM'S SIGHTS AND DELIGHTS.

GARDEN THEATRE.

Madison avenue and Twenty-seventh street. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"1492."

Rice's new edition of that fascinating burlesque, "1492," is jamming and packing the beautiful Garden Theatre from gallery to footlights. Retouched and rejuvenated, it is hardly recognizable as the same piece that delighted huge audiences at Palmer's for nine months. Over two thousand dollars' worth of new scenery has been provided. The new first act set, by Marston, is the most gorgeous ever shown in burlesque. The act drops, by Rafter and M. Artus, are wonderful specimens of pictorial art. There is a superb outfit of costumes. The novelties of song, dance and jest are by far too numerous for mention. Nearly all of the old specialties have been discarded, but the favorite performers of a cast that cannot be improved upon show their cleverness and originality in many new offerings. Josie Sadler, a quaint soubrette, is a capital addition. Among the best of the new things are Theresa Vaughn's delightful songs and ballads; Edward Favor and Yolande Wallace's songs; E. E. Rice's novelty, "In New York," by Sloan and police chorus; the topical trio, "If America Had Never Been Found"; the reconstructed tramp of Walter Jones; the Whirlwind and Marguerite dance of dainty Mabel Clark; the musical knife grinders, by Walton and Slavin; and no end of novelties. The new "1492" will enjoy great popularity at the Garden Theatre, and will be constantly freshened up. The Wednesday matinees will continue an attractive feature. On March 5th, the 250th performance will be celebrated with souvenirs.

J. V. GOTTSCHALK.

The youngest, best dressed and handsomest theatrical manager, is herewith presented to the public. Mr. J. V. Gottschalk is a Philadelphian by birth, a New Yorker by adoption, and a cosmopolitan by choice. He is a charming good fellow, otherwise he would not be where he is. His honors are not so great as to have affected his brain, and he wears the same size hat which fitted him when he was "assistant" only.

ABBEY'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirty-eighth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"L'ENFANT PRODIGUE."

The revival of the almost forgotten classic pantomime is well worth seeing at Abbey's, especially as it is acted with all the verve and chic which a French troupe of the first water can put into a play which appeals so directly to the Gallic love for poses and gesture. Mme. Theo, an old-time favorite of the New York play-going public, is the star, and those who remember her former good work in this city will be sure to appreciate her very clever work now.

STANDARD THEATRE.

Broadway, Sixth avenue and Thirty-third street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The Standard Theatre is crowded every night to the doors in spite of the fact that "Charley's Aunt" has run more than one hundred and fifty nights. There is no diminution in the fun and hilarity, and the "nuts" keep coming from Brazil every night without any hitch or hindrance. Brandon Thomas's roaring farce grows funnier with age. It is one of those extremely good plays which can be seen over and over again without paling on the taste

DALY'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.30 P.M.

"SHORE ACRES."

There will be no change at this theatre for the balance of the season, as James A. Herne's play is drawing the best paying house which even Daly's has known in a very long time. The comedy is good and clean, while the pathetic is not so strongly drawn as to leave a bad after taste with the play goer. "Shore Acres" is a wonderfully truthful study of the homely New England life. It is never vulgar, never common-place and never farcial. In sentiment, as clean as in its performance, it is a play which delights those who see it.

PALMER'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE BUTTERFLIES."

Henry Guy Carleton's latest success as interpreted by Mr. John Drew and his clever company at the above theatre is proving a drawing card for mid Lenten dissipation as is evinced nightly by the large and fashionable theatre parties. It is a very clever comedy, decidedly "legitimate" and free from the farcial to a "degree." The Fifth Avenue scores another big success and a happy author reaps his reward. The management makes money and the public makes the play go. If you doubt it, go and convince yourself that this is so.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Irving Place and Fourteenth street. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

Any play which can run seventeen weeks uninterruptedly at one house in this city and make money must be good. That is just the verdict which every production of this clever play carries with it. There is no diminution in the interest in the plot from the rise of the curtain to the final scene. The characters are wonderfully true to life while the very large stage of the Academy permits of scenic effects, which would be impossible in a smaller house. "In Old Kentucky" is well worth seeing, the more so as it will be withdrawn in two weeks to make room for a very elaborate staging of "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

HARRIGAN'S THEATRE.

Thirty-fifth street, near Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE LEATHER PATCH."

Like in everything which the inimitable Harrigan does, his performance as Jerimah McCarthy is simply perfect. Whether in lowly comedy or pathos his portrayal of the under current of New York life is perfect and betrays not only the perfect actor, but the close observer and student of society among the "lower four hundred." There remains only a short time for "Ned" Harrigan at his own house before he takes to the road, and strangers who want to become acquainted in a genteel way with the rough life of the large city, can take it all in a "parlor edition" in the "Leather Patch."

HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE.

Twenty-fourth street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8:30 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN."

The revival of this old-time favorite, which ran over two years in this city, has not disappointed the owners of the Madison Square Theatre, for the cosy little house is filled nightly with crowds of fun-loving theatre-goers. The original caste makes the old-time play go with its accustomed vim to which play-goers are accustomed, and this is especially so of Anna Boyd, the charming and fascinating Widow. It is doubtful whether another revival anywhere would have met with such flattering success as Hoyt's very funny farce has just met with.

AMERICAN THEATRE.

Forty-second street and Eighth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A WOMAN'S REVENGE."

Minnie Seligman Cutting has scored a success and the chances are about even that "A Woman's Revenge" will repeat the success of "The Prodigal Daughter" at this house. It is a powerful drama well acted and well written, while in staging it leaves nothing to be desired.

MISS BERTHA WALTZINGER.

The charming little woman whose brilliant voice and acceptionally good acting were a genuine surprise to the music lovers of New York, stepped into metropolitan favor as an operatic star on her first appearance in "The Maid of Plymouth", which has just been withdrawn from the Broadway Theatre. She was born in Madison, Wis., where she lived until three years ago, when she came to this city to study music under Mr. F. E. Bristol. For a year she sang at the Church of the Convent and at Dr. Paxton's. Two years ago she joined "The Bostonians", and her career since then has been writ on the tablet of operatic success.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.

Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN."

With the success of "Darkest Russia" behind him, J. Wesley Rosenquest has laid himself out in the production of "The Land of the Midnight Sun," and the likelihood stares him in the face again of having produced a "stayer" for his pretty theatre. From a scenic as well as a dramatic standpoint, it is well worth seeing.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

Broadway corner Twenty-eighth street. Evenings at 8:15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE LADY OF VENICE."

Katherine Clemmons, supported by Maurice Barrymore and a complete cast of stars of the first water opened at the Fifth Avenue one week ago in the finest spectacular play which has ever been produced at this house. The play in itself is known out of town as a success. Miss Clemmons, too, has been favorably spoken of "in the provinces, as they say on the other side of the water.

Now drink brings lots of men to shame,
There's nothing in it!
I am an old 'un at the game,
There's nothing in it!
In my wife's drawer I found to-day

When she comes home, I think she'll say,
"There's nothing in it!"

Ah! Poverty's an awful curse,
There's nothing in it;
And, though I have a great big purse,

So little wealth my lot does bless,
That hunger oft gives me distress,
And, though a "stum-jack" I possess,

STAR THEATRE.

Broadway, corner 13th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"BROTHER JOHN."

After a successful revival of "The Senator," which has just been withdrawn to make room for "Brother John," William H. Crane and his very excellent company are sure to score another long run on this second revival of one of Crane's masterpieces. "Brother John" has been seen here before, but has lost nothing in its attractiveness on that account. It is a strong play well played, in which the star and his company acquit themselves with their accustomed finish.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

Broadway, 41st street and Seventh avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE OGALLALLAS."

Imagine Sitting Bull and his warriors cavorting about the stage of a metropolitan theatre, singing and acting for the delectation of a metropolitan house. The first impression on entering The Broadway is a reminder of a frontier fort. Buffalo Bill, J. Fenimore Cooper, and the other romantic writers of Indian fiction seem to have been let loose in the Broadway Theatre with their hordes of redskins. Bertha Waltzinger and Jessie Bartlesz Davis proved to be very gentle savages. The fun and the tragedy of Indian warfare are graphically produced with most delightful music accompaniment, and one naturally feels after seeing "The Ogallallas" that savagery as written and acted is not so uncomfortable after all, especially with the temperature of the house at 78 and delightful music to soften the suggestively cruel parts of the play. With such an entourage as that which the savages at the Broadway Theatre enjoy it would be delightful to play at real Indian.

BIJOU THEATRE.

Broadway, between 30th and 31st streets. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A COUNTRY SPORT."

If you want to laugh "until your sides ache" try a session from quarter past eight until half past ten with Peter F. Dailey and his fun makers at the above house. Originally intended for a one week's run only, it has crowded the house to its full capacity every evening and matinee for eight weeks, and the chances are that it will remain indefinitely to delight theatre-goers in this city. "The Country Sport" is one of the very few successes this season. With its phenomenal run here, it should prove an immense money-maker for years to come, on the road.

CASINO.

Broadway and 39th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"PRINCE KAM."

Only one week more of one of the jolliest, prettiest and most pleasing of all of E. Rice's many handsomely mounted operettas will delight theatre-goers at the above house. Camille d'Arville and her delightful corps of stars, shapely and good-looking, have brought back to the Casino many of its old-time crowds of delighted patrons. "Prince Kam" is well worth seeing as both from a scenic and a musical aspect it is superior to many productions which have drawn larger crowds on considerably less merit.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Broadway and 40th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"SOWING THE WIND."

There seems to be no let up on the delight with which thousands of play-goers have seen this play, and as a consequence every week of these thousands wants to see it also. Consequently its withdrawal is one of those very remote possibilities which delights the heart of every manager. A well spent pleasurable evening, a well acted play, and a beautiful house, and there you have the four ensemble of the theatre-goer's delight. Try it.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

Fourth avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE AMAZONS."

Like every play which goes on at the Lyceum "The Amazons" is a big success and well worth seeing. Mr. Frohman has the earned reputation of never putting on a play in his house which has the slightest chance of being a failure and as is one of the best judges of what the fickle public wants, it is very safe to say that "The Amazons" stands a good show of a long run. It is mounted in a manner thoroughly in keeping with the plays which have made this house famous in the past. Other than this criticism would be simply a repetition of praise.

NEW PARK THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirty-fifth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Tuesday and Friday at 2 P.M.

"THE RAINMAKERS."

This is the last week of Donnelly and Girard in their very funny musical comedy,

MLLE. OTTILIE.

Charming, versatile, pretty and—but why exhaust the vocabulary of adjectives when those who have eyes have seen and may see Mlle. Ottilie, a real live New York girl who, after having delighted Metropolitan theatre-goers, is now in Boston at the Palace Theatre, filling a very successful engagement as the reigning star in her original specialty, "Liberty Enlightening the World". As a vocalist, Mlle. Ottillie is perfect, and as she is equally conversant in German, French, Spanish, Italian and English, she naturally has such a range of scope as but very few singers ever master. Her chansonettes are a treat, while in "La Palma", "Pretty As a Picture", and other songs of the day, she is great.

"The Rainmakers." Standing room only has been a rule after eight o'clock, and as for the matinees the management has been compelled to close the doors. Archie Ellis, the handsome manager, deserves this streak of good luck for his house as he has the reputation of being one of the most liberal men in the business. There has been scarcely a week during the past hard times season in which he has not loaned the house for some "benefit" for the poor. The cyclone scene and the snow storm are the funniest bits of staging which have been seen in this city in a long time.

UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

Union Square between Fourth avenue and Broadway.

Continuous performance from noon until 10:45 P.M.

The revival of "The Tar and Tartar" operetta, as well as the immense bill of variety performers presented at this house every week, makes it one of the favorite places of amusement in this city. The latest and best talent of all kinds procurable for the vaudeville stage is always to be seen at "Keith's".

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

Twenty-third street near Sixth avenue.

Continuous performance from 10 A.M. until 10:30 P.M.

"The Ladies' Club," as Proctor's has come to be known, is one of the very best vaudeville theatres in the United States. Always up to date in its performers, with a clean bill and the best talent, the house does a rushing business every day, as the location is an extremely favorable one for the shopping public.

Situated in the heart of the busiest shopping district, "The Ladies Club" with its low rates of admission has proven a wonderfully attractive lounging place for tired shoppers as well as for promenaders who for a small price may rest themselves and at the same time witness one of the best performances in this city. The idea is another evidence of what the fin de siecle manager must be equal to in providing with new ideas this continually growing little town of "York."

If there is any virtue in advertising, if the money expended in advertising is to do the advertiser any good whatever, then it naturally follows in both cases that the medium which brings the advertiser directly into contact with the consumer is the only one which it will pay him to spend his money in.

Every hotel proprietor on the list published in THE TRAVELLER is interested in seeing that his guests receive a copy of this paper every morning, and it is naturally very easy for advertisers to understand that their advertisement will be seen every day by all the guests who register at any or all of the hotels to which THE TRAVELLER goes.

That means twenty-seven thousand guests who will this week receive THE TRAVELLER and take it with them to all parts of the United States. As THE TRAVELLER is not an ordinary paper, it will be preserved on account of its music and other interesting features, and will not be thrown away, but will find its place on twenty-seven thousand pianos and in twenty-seven thousand homes this week. The circulation will grow wonderfully, as every one will be able to see by closely following the published list of hotels which receive THE TRAVELLER every week.

The best criterion as to the value which an advertising medium possesses in the eyes of the advertising public is the class of advertising which that medium publishes. Watch the columns of THE TRAVELLER every week for a few months for some interesting developments.

Apropos of the World's Fair medal by St. Gaudens and rejected by the Puritanical committee of hayseeds, who sat in judgment over its "naked" man, THE TRAVELLER dedicates this little Sabbath school psalm:

Spirit of Rembrandt and of Rubens,
Brush of Titian and Corot;
Master minds of all known artists,
Spirit of talented Bougereau;
Cherubic genius of a Powers,
Of Toulemouche and Laclede;
Kill the fools who'd dress art in
Coats and pants, tailor made.

DUST—TRUST—BUST.

Man is made of dust, as you're aware!
That's not always true I declare.
To claim it is, I vow I wont:
Dust always settles—some men wont.

Man may be made of dust, and still
Not settle every little bill;
But I know men composed of gall
Who never pay a bill at all.

Men should be made of dust, but then
They are a sort of dustless men.
You need but take them both on trust
To find out soon which has the dust.

The saddest words of tongue or pen,
Are these: "We Never Trust,
Because We Are Afraid That You
With Our Dust, Will Dust
AND

A MOST UNCOMFORTABLE POSITION.

If ever I go into a new location again, I will study my geography better than I did this time; for my ignorance got me into a most uncomfortable position.

As the boat neared Standford, I was standing with others on the deck, when a very pretty young lady came up to me, and with a sweet smile on her face, looked into mine with a pair of lovely eyes, and asked: "Are you going to kiss me, sir?"

If somebody had offered to lend me ten dollars I could not have been more surprised, and hardly knew what to say, and in order to gain a little time, I gasped out: "Pardon, miss, what did you ask?"

I felt that she knew I heard her, but she said sweetly: "Are you going to kiss me to-night?"

There was no misunderstanding her this time. I heard her and so did others, and I felt the blood rushing into my face, and I stammered out:

"I would like to accommodate you, miss; I would truly; but I have a wife and thirteen small children on board with me, and if my wife should see me kissing you—"

"Kissing me, you hateful old thing! who asked you to kiss me?"

"You did," I yelled; 'you asked me twice!"

"You old fool, I asked you if you were going to Kissime—Kissime City to-night; don't you know anything?" and off she went, and if ever anybody felt meaner than I did I would like to exchange photographs with him.—The Traveller.

FASSO · CORSET.

THIS CORSET, after many years' trial in Europe and this country, has been acknowledged to be superior in every particular to all others.

As each corset is cut, basted and finished with the same care that is given to the making of a dress-waist, it has that accuracy and symmetry which it is impossible to obtain in machine-made goods.

Its points of excellence are: a long tapering waist, gracefully curved back, perfectly shaped and easily fitting hips, with the lines of the bust and shoulders so proportioned in each model as to insure the greatest advantage in appearance, while affording perfect ease to the wearer.

HOW AN INDIGNANT BRIDEGROOM WAS PACIFIED.

In one of our local hotels there appeared last week a granger couple who were on their wedding tour. They had supper and went to the parlor. It grew late, and the bride retired, agreeing to ring to the office when the groom might come. The groom sat on the lounge in the office and waited patiently. Finally he walked to the desk and wanted to know if that bell had not rung. A negative answer sent him back to the lounge. About twelve o'clock he inquired again, and learning that the bell had not rung, went back to the lounge and fell asleep. In the morning the porter awoke him and he used unparliamentary language, swearing that he would see whether his wife would make him sleep on a lounge all night. A divorce seemed to be imminent, and the hotel clerk was surprised to see the twain together in a few hours as happy as turtle doves. Her excuse was satisfactory. While lowering the gas in her room she had turned it clear out and could not find the bell.—The Traveller.

HIS NECESSITIES COMPELLED HIM TO BE A LITTLE RECKLESS AS TO THE USE OF WORDS.

It was on the fourth floor of the Moffat block. The occupant of an office sat reading his paper, when the door opened and a queer looking old chap, having a very old hat and a very bad pair of boots, and making a very thin coat do a great deal of duty, entered and bowed and said:

"They wouldn't let me come up in the elevator, and so I elumb the stairs. Is it proper to say elumb?"

The occupant looked up, and then returned to his article on "The Salt Industry of Michigan."

"Well, never mind whether it is or not," continued the man, as he shut the door and leaned against it. "I clumbed, and here I am. I struck the town last week. I am not certain as to the properness of the word struck, but I arroved here and have had an infernal hard time of it. My friend, I am nigh onto sixty years old."

The occupant looked up, folded his paper, and went on with his article.

"Nigh on to sixty and clean discouraged," said the old man. "Fact is, I kinder think if somebody don't gim me a quarter or sunthin' as a present I'll precipitate myself into the river. I believe pecipitate is the word, though I wouldn't swear to it. Would you like to warm an old man's heart with a gift?"

The occupant turned around and punched the fire, and then his eyes sought the paper again.

"Twenty-five cents would buy me a handsome present and save my life, but if you haven't got but fiftcen I'll let you off. Avarice is not the predominating trait in my character. I believe predominate was properly used there, though I'll leave it to you."

There was deep silence in the room for sixty seconds.

"Well, we might say ten. That would buy a plug of tobacco, and as long as I had anything to chew on I shouldn't think of drowning myself. Yes, ten cents would kinder entitle me to mingle in with the joyous festivities of the occasion. You needn't be in any hurry about handing it over; I've got all the time there is."

This time the silence continued for one hundred and twenty seconds, and was thick enough to knock down oyster soup.

"I presume you have a nickel about your person," whispered the old man after a while. "I won't agree to cut much of a figure in the festivities for that sum, but I'll make it go as far as possible."

There was more silence. Not a leaf stirred nor a bird chirped.

"Good-bye!" said the stranger, as he opened the door and backed out. "When I am fished out of the river next Spring please attend the inquest and identify me as the man whose life wasn't worth five cents. I go to precipitate! Precipitate may not be the word, but I go—I'm gone!"

"1492."

Theatrical theories have been quite upset by the extraordinary success of Rice's new "1492," at the Garden Theatre. It has always been considered hazardous to break a run, or move an attraction. But "1492" has taken firm root in new soil and flourishes as vigorously as it did so many months at Palmer's. This emphasizes the wonderful vitality of the most unique and enjoyable performance that New York has seen for years. And incidentally shows that one theatre is about as good as another if you have the attraction. In Boston "1492" was moved about with equal success to two different theatres within a year. There is a wealth of novelty and timely diversion in the new "1492". To fresh splendors of scenery and costume have been added a great number of new and diverting specialties. Of the former features only those have been retained which the patrons of the burlesque demanded. The burlesque is playing to the nightly capacity of the house, but many new things are being devised to arouse interest. Next month will be added a European novelty that is just now creating a sensation in London. The 250th performance in New York will be celebrated with handsome souvenirs on Monday March 5th.

Miss Eleanore Mayo, the charming daughter of Frank Mayo, is herewith presented to the readers of THE TRAVELLER. Miss Waltzinger is heard at her best in this most tuneful of all the operas which the Bostonians have so far produced, but I would like to hear her in "Fatinitza," in which pretty operetta she would be sure to make a big hit. So charming an actress with so magnificent a voice would make a big hit in Offenbach's sparkling operettas. In the meantime, "Robin Hood" with its beautiful staging deserves its renewed success.

MRS. JESSIE BARTLETT-DAVIS.

The many marked successes of Jessie Bartlett-Davis clearly evince what may be achieved by pluck, faith and energy. At fifteen years of age she became a member of Caroline Riching's Old Folks Company, and even then, in its crude condition, her voice attracted wide attention and favorable comment. After the disruption of the Riching's troop in 1876, Jessie Bartlett returned to her home in Morris, Ill., and applied herself to serious study. Within a year from her return home she was engaged in the choir of the Church of the Messiah in Chicago. Upon the organization of the Chicago Church Choir Pinafore Company she accepted the part of Little Buttercup, and the critics throughout the country agreed that she was the best of the many who essayed that part. It was while studying in New York that Colonel Mapleson sought her, after hearing her sing Siebel to Patti's Margnerite, Lakme, Faust, The Merry Wives, etc. She then went to Paris for a year, devoted herself to study and returned to accept a fine engagement with the Bostonians under the management of Barnabee, Karl & McDonald.

Broadway, corner 13th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"BROTHER JOHN."

After a successful revival of "The Senator", which has just been withdrawn to make room for "Brother John", William chance of being a failure and as is one of the best judges of what the fickle public wants, it is very safe to say that "The Amazons" stands a good show of a long run. It is mounted in a manner thoroughly in keeping with the plays which have made this house famous in the past. Other than this criticism would be simply a repetition of praise.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

Broadway corner Twenty-eighth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE LADY OF VENICE."

Katherine Clemmons supported by Maurice Barrymore and a complete cast of stars of the first water are in their third week at the Fifth Avenue in the finest spectacular play which has ever been produced at this house. Miss Clemmons, by her pleasing manner and careful acting, has made a favorable impression, while as for the staging of the play that is beyond criticism and well worth seeing.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.

Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN."

With the success of "Darkest Russia" behind him, J. Wesley Rosenquest has laid himself out in the production of "The Land of the Midnight Sun," and the likelihood stares him in the face again of having produced a "stayer" for his pretty theatre. From a scenic as well as a dramatic standpoint, it is well worth seeing.

NEW PARK THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirty-fifth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Tuesday and Friday at 2 P.M.

"WALKER, LONDON."

"Jimmy" Powers and a good play, a pleasant house conveniently located, and there you have the toute ensemble for a most enjoyable evening. "Walker, London" is a first-class sprinter and in company with such an actor as Powers, is sure to "go" well. By the way, the late successes at the New Park Theatre are proving "Archie" Ellis, the manager of this pretty house, a first-class theatric chef, who knows just how to tempt the palates of theatre goers.

PALMER'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE BUTTERFLIES."

Henry Guy Carleton's latest success as interpreted by Mr. John Drew and his clever company at the above theatre is proving a drawing card for mid Lenten dissipation as is evineed nightly by the large and fashionable theatre parties. It is a very clever comedy, decidedly "legitimate" and free from the fareial to a "degree." Palmer's scores another big success and a happy author reaps his reward. The management makes money and the public makes the play go. If you doubt it, go and convince yourself that this is so.

HARRIGAN'S THEATRE.

Thirty-fifth street, near Sixth avenue Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"Harrigan's Theatre" will be closed during the coming week in order to prepare for the very elaborate production of "THE PRINCESS OF TREBIZONDE," by the Lillian Hall Opera Company, on next Monday, March 5th.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Broadway and 40th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"SOWING THE WIND."

There seems to no let up on the delight with which thousands of play-goers have seen this play, and as a consequence every friend of these thousands wants to see it also. Consequently its withdrawal is one of those very remote possibilities which delights the heart of every manager. A well spent pleasurable evening, a well acted play, and a beautiful house, and there you have the tout ensemble of the theatre-goer's delight. Try it.

COLUMBUS THEATRE.

One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, near Lexington avenue. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A MAN AMONG MEN."

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

Twenty-seventh street and Madison avenue. From 10 A.M. to 11 P.M.

The International Wine, Spirit and Tobacco Exposition is one of the most interesting places in this city to pass an evening with. As varied in exhibits as it is unique in the exposition field, it will be sure to draw immense crowds to the Garden during the week of its stay there.

HERRMANN'S

Broadway, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets. Continuous performance.

Vaudeville.

IMPERIAL MUSIC HALL.

Twenty-ninth street, near Broadway. Matinees, Monday, Thursday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

Vaudeville.

BIJOU THEATRE.

Broadway, between 30th and 31st streets. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A COUNTRY SPORT."

If you want to laugh "until your sides ache" try a session from quarter past eight until half past ten with Peter F. Dailey and his fun makers at the above house. Originally intended for a one week's run only, it has crowded the house to its full capacity every evening and matinee for eight weeks, and the chances are that it will remain indefinitely to delight theatre-goers in this city. "The Country Sport" is one of the very few successes this season. With its phenomenal run here, it should prove an immense money-maker for years to come, on the road.

H. R. JACOB'S THEATRE.

Third avenue and Thirty-first street. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Monday, Thursday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE HUSTLER."

INSTRUMENTS OF TORTURE.

Twenty-third street, West of Sixth ave. Open from 10 A.M. to 11 P.M.

DALY'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.30 P.M.

"SHORE ACRES."

There will be no change at this theatre for the balance of the season, as James A. Herne's play is drawing the best paying house which even Daly's has known in a very long time. The comedy is good and clean, while the pathetic is not so strongly drawn as to leave a bad after taste with the play goer. "Shore Acres" is a wonderfully truthful study of the homely New England life. It is never vulgar, never common-place and never farcial. In sentiment, as clean as in its performance, it is a play which delights those who see it.

HARLEM OPERA HOUSE.

West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, near Eighth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"MIZZAURA."

Mr. "Nat" Goodwin will delight the Harlemites with his clever play. It is as well-known as is the actor and yet it is always fresh—which Goodwin is not. He may be new and yet old, but "fresh" —never.

NIBLO'S THEATRE.

Broadway, near Prince street. Evening at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

Manager Walter Sanford has certainly rejuvenated Niblo's, for the old house is doing a land-office business. The successful experiment of opening Niblo's as a popular priced combination theatre proves beyond a doubt that there is no such thing as a "Jonah," for certainly that name clung to the house for the last few years, but Mr. Sanford has effectually rid the "Old Drury of America" of such an epithet, and it is now ranked high up on the list of money-making theatres. The prices have been placed at such a low figure (from 15 to 50 cents), that no cry of hard times can scare off Mr. Sanford's patrons.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"BLUE JEANS."

Crowded houses are the rule to see Joseph Arthur's beautiful play, which is billed for this week also. Any consideration of the play is woefully incomplete that omits mention of the queer combination of melody and grotesquery found in the country band of "Rising Sun Roarers," the bull and barbecue, the village dance, the Kazoo chorus, mill songsters or the saw-mill whose realism has won mention for the play in every current record of the country's fresh and notable dramatic achievements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Irving Place and Fourteenth street. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"IN OLD KENTUCKY."

Any play which can run seventeen weeks uninterruptedly at one house in this city and make money must be good. That is just the verdict which every production of this clever play carries with it. There is no diminution in the interest in the plot from the rise of the curtain to the final scene. The characters are wonderfully true to life while the very large stage of the Academy permits of scenic effects, which would be impossible in a smaller house. "In Old Kentucky" is well worth seeing, the more so as it will be withdrawn in a short time to make room for a very elaborate staging of "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

IRVING PLACE THEATRE.

Irving Place and Fifteenth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

PEOPLE'S THEATRE.

201 Bowery. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

Change of programme weekly.

MISS LUCILLE SAUNDERS

Was born in Hartford, Conn., and studied singing in Paris under the celebrated Madame de la Grange for three years. Afterwards she went to London, where she made her first appearance at the Covent Garden Promenade Concerts, and was received with great enthusiasm. For some time Miss Saunders devoted herself to concert and drawing-room singing, and became famous for her rendition of French and English ballads. Miss Saunders was engaged as principal contralto by the Royal Carl Rosco Opera Co., appearing with very great success. Sir Agustus Harris then secured her for his Italian and English opera seasons at both Covent Garden and Drury Lane Theatres, where she again distinguished herself. She is now with the famous "Bostonians," and her success with them is a matter of history.

STANDARD THEATRE.

Broadway, Sixth avenue and Thirty-third street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The new "business" in "Charley's Aunt" has freshened up this delightful comedy, and it is hard to tell just how long this very funny play will hold the boards at The Standard. Already the two hundredth night is close at hand and still the supply of "nuts" from Brazil is not exhausted.

DORIS' EIGHTH AVENUE MUSEUM.

Between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets. Open all day and evening.

PALACE MUSEUM.

Fourteenth street, near Fourth avenue. Open day and evening.

HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE.

Twenty-fourth street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8:30 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN."

The revival of this old-time favorite, which ran over two years in this city, has not disappointed the owners of the Madison Square Theatre, for the cosy little house is filled nightly with crowds of fun-loving theatre-goers. The original caste makes the old-time play go with its accustomed vim to which play-goers are accustomed, and this is especially so of Anna Boyd, the charming and fascinating Widow. It is doubtful whether another revival anywhere would have met with such flattering success as Hoyt's very funny farce has just met with. The beautiful and new "Myriad Dance," is given at 10.50 P.M., towards the close of the performance, and has proven an attractive feature to this most charming play.

TATTERSALLS.

Fifty-fifth street and Seventh avenue. Evenings at 8.30 P.M. Matinees every afternoon at 2 P.M.

HAGENBECK'S TRAINED ANIMALS.

THE TOURISTS PLAINT.

I'm with ye once again, ye crags and hills!
Again I've joined the traveling lord
Of poor papas who pay big boarding bills
To the landlord; Oh Lord!

Yes hills! I'm with ye once again with fears!
With check book ready and with a wallet fat,
Then when the season's o'er, just like in other years,
I'll be dead broke—FLAT. Oh Lord!

Then comes another year of pinching and of saving,
And then another round among those costly hills!
And so we weary papas yearly go on slaving,
To pay big Summer boarding bills. On Lord,

The Traveller.

ON THE WRONG ROAD AGAIN.

A young gentleman of this city, while on a visit recently in Indianapolis, imbibed quite freely to the health of several of his friends on the eve of his departure for home.

After boarding a number of out-going trains and getting "fired" from each for being on the wrong road, he finally seated himself in a coach on the Vandalia line, which by the way was the right train to convey him home.

He had not been in his seat long ere an Evansville clergyman saw the youth, and approaching him, said in a kind tone:

"Young man, do you know where you are going?"

"Yezzer. Ish goin' (hic) home," said the dizzy youth.

"Very true, no doubt," replied the clerical gentleman, "but do you know what road you are on?"

"Yezzer (hic), h'lieve Ish on the Vandalia."

"On the wrong road again," howled the young man, as he sobered up somewhat at the startling information, "damfino which ish right road."

And before the minister could speak again the young man had grabbed his valise and sprung from the train.—The Traveller.

ADAM AND EVE AND THAT APPLE

How many apples did Adam and Eve eat? Some say Eve 8 and Adam 2—a total of 10 only. Now we figure the thing out far differently. Eve 8 and Adam 8 also—total 16.

And yet the above figures are entirely wrong. If Eve 8 and Adam 82, certainly the total will be 90. Scientific men, however, on the strength of the theory that the antediluvians were a race of giants, reason something like this: Eve 81 and Adam 82—total 163.

Wrong again; what could be clearer than, if Eve 81 and Adam 812, the total was 893?

If Eve 811st and Adam 812, would not the total be 1623?

I believe the following to be a fair solution: Eve 814 Adam, Adam 8124 Eve—total 8,938.

Still another calculation is as follows If Eve 814 Adam, Adam 81242 oblige Eve—total 82,056. We think this, however, not a sufficient quantity. For though we admit that Eve 814 Adam, Adam if he 8081242 keep Eve company—total 8,082,056.

All wrong. Eve, when she 81812 many and probably she felt sorry for it, but her companion, in order to relieve her grief 812. Therefore, when Adam 818142969 Eve's depressed spirits. Hence both ate 81,896,864 apples.—The Traveller.

As each corset is cut, basted and finished with the same care that is given to the making of a dress-waist, it has that accuracy and symmetry which it is impossible to obtain in machine-made goods.

Its points of excellence are: a long tapering waist, gracefully curved back, perfectly shaped and easily fitting hips, with the lines of the bust and shoulders so proportioned in each model as to insure the greatest advantage in appearance, while affording perfect ease to the wearer.

THE FAKIR'S FATE.

In the gloaming, oh! how lonely;
Waiting by the railroad track.
Far away from home and "stranded,"
Wondering how I will get back.
"Combination" gone to pieces—
Salary due three weeks or more.
Sheriff seized upon the wardrobe,
And the wig that once I wore.

In the gloaming still I'm waiting,
For the train has passed me by.
Tickets to New York are plenty,
But the price is most too high.
Ah! at last a thought has struck me,
Now I will no longer talk,
But put on my thick-soled "gaiters,"
Button up my coat and—walk.

ALL THE GLORY HE WANTED IN ONE DEAL.

It was during the late war. We were preparing for a charge on Mulligan's works at Lexington, when Vest, of Missouri, came up and asked permission to participate as a volunteer. His request was granted, and being furnished weapons and a horse, he dashed boldly into the fray.

The attacking party were driven back, and in a few minutes Vest rode up to where General Price and staff were standing, dismounted, turned over horse and weapons to an orderly, and with an impressiveness all his own declared that "The man who says George Vest has never been in a battle is a d—d liar, and the man who says that George Vest will ever be found in another, is a d—d fool."

A LEGISLATOR WHO IS GOING TO REFORM THINGS.

As a Central train approached New York just after the organization of the Legislature, the sleeping-car porter noticed a weak look old gentleman peering around as though in search for something, and expressing his disappointment in the exclamation: "Dern a monopoly, anyway!"

"Lost anything?" asked the kind porter, who hadn't up to that time been paid for the shine and slap with the whisk brush.

"Dern a monopoly! No!" replied the man, continuing his search with renewed vigor.

The passengers squinted around the car and tried to see something somewhere that didn't belong there, and then notwithstanding they had heard the question put by the kindhearted porter, they asked him if he had lost anything.

"Dern a monopoly, anyhow!" grunted the old man. "No, I ain't lost nothing. I'm looking for the tooth-brush, but this cussed road don't seem to furnish anything for the comfort of passengers! I'm a member of the Legislature, now, and you bet things are going different with the railroads of this State, or I'll resign and leave the business without a quorum!"—The Traveller.

"SOWING THE WIND."

There seems to no let up on the delight with which thousands of play-goers have seen this play, and as a consequence every friend of these thousands wants to see it also. Consequently its withdrawal is one of those very remote possibilities which delights the heart of every manager. A well spent pleasurable evening, a well acted play, and a beautiful house, and there you have the tout ensemble of the theatre-goer's delight. Try it.

have been added a great number of new and diverting specialtics. Of the former features only those have been retained which the patrons of the burlesque demanded. The burlesque is playing to the nightly capacity of the house, but more new things are being devised to arouse interest. Next month will be added a European novelty that is just now creating a sensation in London. The 250th performance in New York will be celebrated with handsome souvenirs on Monday March 5th.

"1492."

Theatrical theories have been quite upset by the extraordinary success of Rice's new "1492", at the Garden Theatre. It has always been considered hazardous to break a run, or move an attraction. But "1492" has taken firm root in new soil and flourishes as vigorously as it did so many months at Palmer's. This emphasizes the wonderful vitality of the most un que and enjoyable performance that New York has seen for years. And incidentally shows that one theatre is about as good as another if you have the attraction. In Boston "1492" was moved about with equal success to five different theatres within a year There is a wealth of novelty and timely diversion in the new "1492". To fresh splendors of scenery and costume have Grocery of Avenue A." In the cast are Jacques Kruger, Dan Daly, Charles W. Seaman, William Cameron, William F. Mack, David Warfield, Willis P. Sweatnam, Henri Laurent, Mathilde Cottrelly, Ada Dare, Jennie Reiffarth, Kate Uart, Mamie Kelso and Amelia Glover. With such a cast of star fun makers a long run is predicted for this very funny success.

UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

Union Square between Fourth avenue and Broadway Continuous performance from noon until 10:45 P.M.

The revival of "The Tar and Tartar" operetta, as well as the immense bill of variety performers presented at this house every week, makes it one of the favorite places of amusement in this city. The latest and best talent of all kinds procurable for the vaudeville stage is always to be seen at "Keith's".

STAR THEATRE.

Broadway, corner 13th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"BROTHER JOHN."

After a successful revival of "The Senator", which has just been withdrawn to make room for "Brother John", William H. Crane and his very excellent company are sure to score another long run on this second revival of one of Crane's masterpieces. "Brother John" has been seen here before, but has lost nothing in its attractiveness on that account. It is a strong play well played, in which the star and his company acquit themselves with their accustomed finish.

NIBLO'S THEATRE.

Broadway, near Prince street. Evening at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

Manager Walter Sanford has certainly rejuvenated Niblo's, for the old house is doing a land-office business. The successful experiment of opening Niblo's as a popular priced combination theatre proves beyond a doubt that there is no such thing as a "Jonah," for certainly that name clung to the house for the last few years, but Mr. Sanford has effectually rid the "Old Drury of America" of such an epithet, and it is now ranked high up on the list of moncy-making theatres. The prices have been placed at such a low figure (from 15 to 50 cents), that no cry of hard times can scare off Mr. Sanford's patrons.

NEW PARK THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirty-fifth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Tuesday and Friday at 2 P.M.

"WALKER, LONDON."

"Jimmy" Powers and a good play, a pleasant house conveniently located, and there you have the toute ensemble for a most enjoyable evening. "Walker, London" is a first-class sprinter and in company with such an actor as Powers, is sure to "go" well. By the way, the late successes at the New Park Theatre are proving "Archie" Ellis, the manager of this pretty house, a first-class theatric chef, who knows just how to tempt the palates of theatre goers.

DALY'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.30 P.M.

"SHORE ACRES."

There will be no change at this theatre for the balance of the season, as James A. Herne's play is drawing the best paying house which even Daly's has known in a very long time. The comedy is good and clean, while the pathetic is not so strongly drawn as to leave a bad after taste with the play goer. "Shore Acres" is a wonderfully truthful study of the homely New England life. It is never vulgar, never common-place and never farcial. In sentiment, as clean as in its performance, it is a play which delights those who see it.

Fourteenth street, near Fourth avenue. Open day and evening.

HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE.

Twenty-fourth street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8:30 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN."

The revival of this old-time favorite, which ran over two years in this city, has not disappointed the owners of the Madison Square Theatre, for the cosy little house is filled nightly with crowds of following theatre-goers. The original caste makes the old-time play go with its accustomed vim to which play-goers are accustomed, and this is especially so of Anna Boyd, the charming and fascinating Widow. It is doubtful whether another revival anywhere would have met with such flattering success as Hoyt's very funny farce has just met with. The beautiful and new "Myriad Dance," is given at 10.50 P.M., towards the close of the performance, and has proven an attractive feature to this most charming play.

W. H. MACDONALD,
IN "THE OGALLALLAS."

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

Twenty-third street near Sixth avenue. Continuous performance from 10 A.M. until 10.30 P.M.

"The Ladies' Club," as Proctor's has come to be known, is one of the very best vaudeville theatres in the United States. Always up to date in its performers, with a clean bill and the best talent, the house does a rushing business every day, as the location is an extremely favorable one for the shopping public.

Situated in the heart of the busiest shopping district, "The Ladies Club" with its low rates of admission has proven a wonderfully attractive lounging place for tired shoppers as well as for promenaders who for a small price may rest themselves and at the same time witness one of the best performances in this city. The idea is another evidence of what the fin de siecle manager must be equal to in providing with new ideas this continually growing little town of "York."

BROADWAY THEATRE.

Broadway, 41st street and Seventh avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"ROBIN HOOD"

with all its favorites is sailing along under a full head of success as of yore. Miss Waltzinger is heard at her best in this most tuneful of all the operas which the Bostonians have so far produced, but I would like to hear her in "Fatiniza," in which pretty operetta she would be sure to make a big hit. So charming an actress with so magnificent a voice would make a big hit in Offenbach's sprightly operettas. In the meantime, "Robin Hood" with its beautiful staging deserves its renewed success.

ABBEY'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirty-eighth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

Mr. Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry return to this beautiful theatre on Monday evening for a final engagement of two seasons in the following repertoire:

Monday, Feb. 26th, "Becket."
Tuesday, Feb. 27th, "Becket."
Wednesday, Feb. 28th, "Olivia."
Thursday, March 1st, "Charles I." (only time).
Friday, March 2d, "Much Ado About Nothing."

Saturday Evening, March 3d, "The Lyons Mail."
Monday, March 5th, "The Merchant of Venice."

PALMER'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE BUTTERFLIES"

Henry Guy Carleton's latest success as interpreted by Mr. John Drew and his clever company at the above theatre is proving a drawing card for mid Lenten dissipation as is evinced nightly by the large and fashionable theatre parties. It is a very clever comedy, decidedly "legitimate" and free from the farcial to a "degree." Palmer's scores another big success and a happy author reaps his reward. The management makes money and the public makes the play go. If you doubt it, go and convince yourself that this is so.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

Fourth avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE AMAZONS."

Like every play which goes on at the Lyceum "The Amazons" is a big success and well worth seeing. Mr. Frohman has the earned reputation of never putting on a play in his house which has the slightest chance of being a failure and as is one of the best judges of what the fickle public wants, it is very safe to say that "The Amazons" stands a good show of a long run. It is mounted in a manner thoroughly in keeping with the plays which have made this house famous in the past. Other than this criticism would be simply a repetition of praise.

STANDARD THEATRE.

Broadway, Sixth avenue and Thirty-third street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The new "business" in "Charley's Aunt" has freshened up this delightful comedy, and it is hard to tell just how long this very funny play will hold the boards at The Standard. Already the two hundredth night is close at hand and still the supply of "nuts" from Brazil is not exhausted.

"TWO HAPPY DAYS,"

the new comedy by Schonthan-Radelburg, will be played every night next week at the Irving Place Theatre. Manager Heinrich Conried, who has not appeared as an actor since 1885, will probably make his reappearnce at the end of next week in a revival of "Processhaus'l," for which the well-known Hoffman Schuhplattler have been engaged.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

Irving Place and Fourteenth street. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

After an unusually successful run of twenty weeks this play will be withdrawn after this week and will be followed on Monday next by an elaborate production of "The Girl I Left Behind Me." The immense stage of the Academy insures a "setting" for this war drama such as no other theatre in this city can give, and the preparations have been made for both a scenic and dramatic success on the most elaborate plan.

HARLEM OPERA HOUSE.

West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, near Eighth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE."

Miss Rose Coghlan and her very clever company will be at the above theatre this week. Miss Coghlan's successful "run" with this delightful play at the Fifth Avenue Theatre is of too recent date to need particular recalling. "A Woman Of No Importance" is cleverly constructed and well played.

HARRIGAN'S THEATRE.

Thirty-fifth street, near Sixth avenue Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"PAULINE HALL OPERA COMPANY,"

assisted by Richard Golden, have taken possession of this house for an indefinite run in "The Princess of Trebizoude." La belle Pauline, one of the Casino favorites, and the belle Amie of New York theatre-goers, will make her usual tout cela va sans dire.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.

Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"MRS. DASCOT."

Miss Kathrine Clemmons has shelved "A Lady of Venice" and will be seen this week in the new play, "Mrs. Dascot," by Gen. Lloyd S. Brice and Stanislaus Stange. It is unnecessary almost to say that in the hands of two such clever people as Miss Clemmons and Maurice Barrymore "Mrs. Dascot" is certain to make a big hit.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

"A COUNTRY SPORT."

If you want to laugh "until your sides ache" try a session from quarter past eight until half past ten with Peter F. Dailey and his fun makers at the above house. Originally intended for a one week's run only, it has crowded the house to its full capacity every evening and matinee for eight weeks, and the chances are that it will remain indefinitely to delight theatre-goers in this city. "The Country Sport" is one of the very few successes this season. With its phenomenal run here, it should prove an immense money-maker for years to come, on the road.

THE CIRCUS EFFECTS OF A PAIL OF WATER.

The first man to strike the corner where the porter had thrown a pail of water over the flag stones and produced a glare of ice was an insurance agent. He slid to the right, clawed to the left, clutched at a sunbeam, and went down with the exclamation: "Hanged if I don't!" He rose up to jaw and threaten and collect a crowd, and almost lick somebody, and he went away stirred up for all day.

The next man was a tailor—tall, spare and solemn. His toes all of a sudden turned out, his left leg was lifted, and he spun once and a half around before he went down with the remark: "I knew 'twould happen!" He got up to hurry along out of sight, and it was easy to see that he had calculated on about so many falls for the winter.

The next was a fleshy man with a smiling face and an air of good nature. He didn't lose any time going down, and when he struck he realized that he had hit something. And yet what he said was: "Is it possible!" He got up slowly, forced a grin as the boys chaffed him, and looked back three times to make sure that he hadn't made a hole which would prove a man-trap for other pedestrians.

The next was a bank clerk with a pencil over his ears and preoccupied mind. He was swinging his right hand and rushing right ahead when he suddenly saw billions of stars shining in the morning sky. His first thought was that somebody was celebrating the Fourth of July; his next was to scramble up and search for an asylum where he could hunt up his collar button and splice his suspenders. Not a word escaped him until he was a block away. Then he remarked: "At six per cent, it would be $854.17."

The next man was a strapping big fellow with an ulster and a red silk handkerchief hanging out of a pocket. He began a sort of shuffle as he struck the spot, increased it in a minute to a regular "breakdown," and finally went down with a woop that was heard half a block away. He was up in a moment. Diagonally across the street he saw a man in an express wagon. The boys called to him that he had lost his red handkerchief, and that his nose would sadly miss it, but he would not wait. He strode across the street and up to the wagon, and as he hauled off and hit the driver a stinger on the ear, he growled out:

"There, hang you! That makes us even!"

"What even?" shouted the victim, as he rose up and adjusted his cap, but the other was gone.

Her lips were like the leaves, he said,

LIVER CONDUCIVE TO REFINED THOUGHT.

"I have noticed," said a boarder to Colonel Lubermore, who dropped literature and became a landlord, "that you feed us on liver."

"Yes," the colonel replied.

"Do you think, si, that liver is conducive to refined thought?"

"Yes, it is the moulder of great sentiment."

"I am glad to know this, but I would rather have less liver even at the risk of losing sentiment. To tell you the truth, I don't like liver."

"Then you are not a literary man. Don't you remember what the beautiful Anne Boleyn, in 'Henry the Eighth,' said of liver:

> "'I swear 'tis better to be of humble birth
> And range with lowly livers in content,
> Than to be peck'd up in glistening grief
> And wear a golden sorrow.'"

"That is a glorious idea, colonel, but I fail to discover its relevancy."

"What, don't see the application? Don't you see that Anne Boleyn wanted to range with livers? Said nothing about heart or steak. Craved no sausage or veal, but wanted liver. I fear, sir, that you will never become a man of true literature Help yourselves to the liver, gentlemen.—The Traveller.

THE BEST MAN IN ILLINOIS.

"Whoa! Whoa'p!" exclaimed a broad-shouldered emigrant, as he drew up in front of a saloon in Bloomington in an early day. "Dad, let's go in an' have a little corn juice."

Just then a man came out of the log palace head over heels, and another man after him, striking him with his fists at every revolution.

"Enough! Enough!" yelled the vanquished individual.

"Ye-oop!" shouted the victor, "I am the best man in the State of Illinois!"

"Whoa! Whoa'p!" cried the old man in the wagon. "John, ain't we in Eely noy?"

"Yes, pap!"

"Well, we can't stand that air kind o' talk. Git out and whale 'im, John." John came down from the wagon and soon had the bully begging for mercy.

"I'm the best man in Illinois!" shouted John.

"Whoa! Whoa'p!" called the old man, as his bleared eyes flashed fire and his palsied hands twitched nervously. "Somebody hold this 'ere team." A stranger volunteered to do so, and the old man walked up to his exultant son and said:

"John, yer turgit 'at er old man's in Eelynoy," and he gave him a sound thrashing, while the bystanders applauded.

"I'm the best man in Eelynoy," the old man yelled, cracking his fists together and jumping up and down, and no one disputed his word. As they all went in, the young man said:

"You're right, dad, an' yer boy comes next."—The Traveller.

"J'aime, tu aimes, il aime," she said;
She was studying French—her shapely head
Leaned light on his shoulder—what could he do?
"Elle aime," he said, then—"I love, too."

And she, pretty maid, was she acting a part?
Was her manner the grace of an exquisite art?
When with roguish smile and cheeks aglow,
She whispered "J'aime" so soft and low?

"Elle aime"—his arm stole round her trim, slender waist,
Eyes looked into eyes—the danger was faced.
"Tu aime, dearest, so tender and true"—
"Vous aimez"—wedding cards ordered for two.

TOO STRICT.

In Germany, the police regulations are very strict, and any violation of them is promptly punished. The people have a holy terror of the law. Two gentlemen happened to meet in Berlin, and the following conversation took place:

"Have you heard the dreadful news about Miller?"

"No what is it?"

"He was in a boat in the river. He fell overboard, and was drowned. The water was too deep."

"Didn't he know how to swim?"

"Swim! Don't you know that all persons are forbidden by the police to swim in the river?"—The Traveller.

NOT A SATISFACTORY JOB.

A gentleman from the country stopped at a barber shop to ask for directions concerning the locality of a place where he wished to go, when one of the new hands said: "Boss, ye'r got mighty long hair. Better let me take som ob it offen yer." "I haven't time, now," the gentleman replied with a smile, "but I'll be in again soon." The gentleman went away, met several acquaintances, became somewhat boozy, and in that condition went to the shop, said he wanted to be shaved, laid his head back on the cushion and was soon asleep. After shaving the gentleman, the ambitious barber, remembering the conversation of a few hours before, determined to cut his hair. Just as he was completing the work the gentleman awakened, and springing from the chair exclaimed: "I've a good mind to shoot the top of your head off." "What's de matter, boss? Job not done satisfactory, sah?" "Satisfactory, you stupid wretch! You shingled my wig!"

HE WAS A PIONEER AND KNEW HIS BUSINESS.

A traveler passing over a California mountain road on horseback, observed a long, slim, seedy, limber-looking individual laying the foundation of a log cabin so high on the mountain side that it looked as though it could only be reached by the aid of a block and tackle or a balloon. The traveler's curiosity was excited, and for enlightenment he accosted the seedy-looking individual as follows:

"What are you doing up there, my friend—setting up opposition to the Lick Observatory?"

"Wall, not 'zactly, but if I could get a cock-eyed crane like you for a telescope rest, I would. I've taken up a ranch here, and I'm making the necessary improvements."

"But you can't raise anything up there, not even mountain sheep, unless you sit them up to trees or dig holes for them to stand in. Why, you're in danger yourself—if you should fall off your ranch you would break your neck."

"You just go 'long, stranger, I know my biz. This is property, isn't it, you grograined old idiot?"

"Yes."

"I'll have to pay taxes on it, won't I, you old kittle-stomached pyramid?"

"Yes," meekly replied the traveller.

"And I can't sit on a jury unless I'm a property holder and a taxpayer, you old sugar-coated, bow-legged scorpion, can I?"

"I believe that's the law."

"Very well, then, you old bald-head boa constrictor, if I can get on a jury or two and can sell out, I can make more money than any old gangle-shanked, lantern-jawed, son-of-a-dog-churn like you can running around the country sticking your diabolical smelling machine into other people's business. I'm a pioneer, I am."

And the traveler went on in a brown ashes-of-roses study.

HOW TO MAKE A WIFE INSANE.

The Christian at Work has an article entitled "How to Make a Wife Insane." We've been too busy to peruse it, but we know what it is all about, just the same. You go into the house of a rainy day, track the mud through the kitchen, dining-hall and drawing-room into the parlor, lean your dripping umbrella against the marble-top center-table, throw your wet coat on the piano, kick your boots against the what-not in the corner, fill the house with the stench of a nasty five-cent cigar and top off with knocking your cigar ashes all over the carpet. This is the regular formula, and if a woman is the sort of wife she ought to be she will go raving mad in ten minutes. If she don't you can set her down as a muff, jump on her and utilize her for floor-mopping purposes and she won't raise the slightest objection.—The Traveller.

"SOWING THE WIND."

There seems to no let up on the delight with which thousands of play-goers have seen this play, and as a consequence every friend of these thousands wants to see it also. Consequently its withdrawal is one of those very remote possibilities which delights the heart of every manager. A well spent pleasurable evening, a well acted play, and a beautiful house, and there you have the tout ensemble of the theatre-goer's delight. Try it.

have been added a great number of new and diverting specialties. Of the former features only those have been retained which the patrons of the burlesque demanded. The burlesque is playing to the nightly capacity of the house, but more new things are being devised to arouse interest. Next month will be added a European novelty that is just now creating a sensation in London. The 250th performance in New York will be celebrated with handsome souvenirs on Monday March 5th.

"1492."

Theatrical theories have been quite upset by the extraordinary success of Rice's new "1492", at the Garden Theatre. It has always been considered hazardous to break a run, or move an attraction. But "1492" has taken firm root in new soil and flourishes as vigorously as it did so many months at Palmer's. This emphasizes the wonderful vitality of the most unique and enjoyable performance that New York has seen for years. And incidentally shows that one theatre is about as good as another if you have the attraction. In Boston "1492" was moved about with equal success to five different theatres within a year. There is a wealth of novelty and timely diversion in the new "1492". To fresh splendors of scenery and costume have Grocery of Avenue A." In the cast are Jacques Kruger, Dan Daly, Charles W. Seaman, William Cameron, William F. Mack, David Warfield, Willis P. Sweetnam, Henri Laurent, Mathilde Cottrelly, Ada Dare, Jennie Reiffarth, Kate Uart, Mamie Kelso and Amelia Glover. With such a cast of star fun makers a long run is predicted for this very funny success.

UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.

Fourteenth street and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

W. C. Hudson's melodrama, "A Man Among Men," is at the Fourteenth street Theatre. Since the piece was produced a couple of weeks ago in Brooklyn several changes have been made in it, and one entirely new scene has been introduced. The caste will include Amelia Bingham, Alice Fisher, Mary Davenport, Gertrude Dawes, Gussie Hart, William Harcourt, Harry Meredith, Charles Nevins, Theodore Babcock, Ernest Elton, Fred M. Lee, Frank Kemble, Errol Dunbar, Walter B. Woodall, Edward Young, Thomas Wilson, Lloyd Melville, George Thomas and Alfred Brooks. To aid the unemployed actors and actresses, Manager Pitou has engaged about fifty of them to act as "supers." "A Man Among Men" will remain at the Fourteenth Street only one week, and will be followed on the 19th inst. by the Kimball Opera Comique Company in "Hendrick Hudson," with Corinne in the title role.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

Broadway, 41st street and Seventh avenue. Evenings at 8 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"ROBIN HOOD."

The Bostonians will continue to present "Robin Hood" at the Broadway Theatre until the 17th inst. The week following that date the theatre will be closed, and on Easter Monday, the 26th inst., Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, "Utopia, Limited," will be produced there by a company which D'Oyly Carte is now selecting in Europe. The company sails from Liverpool on Saturday, and will bring with them all their costumes, which are said to be very costly and exact duplicates of those worn in the opera at the Savoy Theatre, London.

There are only two scenes in the opera. The first represents a tropical landscape, the next a second a throne room. In the latter hundreds of extra electric lights are employed.

HERRMANN'S.

Broadway, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets. Continuous performance.

One of the prettiest little theatres in New York is undoubtedly Herrmann's, and this fact, together with its splendid location on Broadway, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, gives it what may be called natural advantages not possessed by any other house of amusement in this city. It was due to the person of that well-known manager, J. M. Hill, that Herrmann's was converted, a few months ago, into a home for every form of entertainment that comes under the term "Vaudeville"; that is to say, one may see here in the continuous performance that runs on from 12 30 noon, until 10:30 P.M., the finest and most remarkable combinations of solo and quartette singing, trick, fancy and Parisian dancing; comic scenes on phases of human nature; trapeze and acrobatic evolutions; juggling and instrumental playing.

NIBLO'S THEATRE.

Broadway, near Prince street. Evening at 8 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

To prove that everyone is looking for the most goods for the least money, one has only to visit Niblo's Theatre on Broadway and watch the throng that nightly crowds the spacious lobbies. Manager Walter Sanford plays only the best attractions there, and plays them to audiences that pack the old theatre, the popular prices (from fifteen to fifty cents) being a wonderful magnet. Public favors are once more being shed upon the grand old Thespian temple, where the walls at one time echoed the voices of Edwin Forrest, E. L. Davenport, Charles Fechter, Barney Williams, John McCullough, Charlotte Cushman, and many others whose names have become famous.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

Broadway, corner Twenty-eighth street. Evenings at 8:15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"LOVE'S EXTRACT."

The Rosenfeld Bros. began their fourteen weeks' season at the Fifth Avenue on Monday night, with the production of the farcial comedy "Love's Extract," a translation from the French. Later they will bring out a translation of Gerhardt Hauptmann's "Haunele." The date has not yet been fixed.

HOYT'S MADISON SQUARE

Twenty-fourth street, between Broadway and Sixth avenue. Evenings at 8:30 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"A TRIP TO CHINATOWN."

The revival of this old-time favorite, which ran over two years in this city, has not disappointed the owners of the Madison Square Theatre, for the cosy little house is filled nightly with crowds of fun-loving theatre-goers. The original caste makes the old-time play go with its accustomed vim to which play-goers are accustomed, and this is especially so of Anna Boyd, the charming and fascinating Widow. It is doubtful whether another revival anywhere would have met with such flattering success as Hoyt's very funny farce has just met with. The beautiful and new "Myriad Dance," is given at 10.50 P.M., towards the close of the performance, and has proven an attractive feature to this most charming play.

DALY'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2.30 P.M.

"SHORE ACRES."

There will be no change at this theatre for the balance of the season, as James A. Herne's play is drawing the best paying house which even Daly's has known in a very long time. The comedy is good and clean, while the pathetic is not so strongly drawn as to leave a bad after taste with the play-goer. "Shore Acres" is a wonderfully truthful study of the homely New England life. It is never vulgar, never common-place and never farcial. In sentiment, as clean as in its performance, it is a play which delights those who see it.

"A COMEDY OF ERRORS."
STUART ROBSON.

PALMER'S THEATRE.

Broadway and Thirtieth street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE BUTTERFLIES."

Henry Guy Carleton's latest success as interpreted by Mr. John Drew and his clever company at the above theatre is proving a drawing card for mid Lenten dissipation as is evinced nightly by the large and fashionable theatre parties. It is a very clever comedy, decidedly "legitimate" and free from the farcial to a degree." Palmer's scores another big success and a happy author reaps his reward. The management makes money and the public makes the play go. If you doubt it, go and convince yourself that this is so.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

Fourth avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"THE AMAZONS."

Like every play which goes on at the Lyceum "The Amazons" is a big success and well worth seeing. Mr. Frohman has the happy reputation of never putting on a play in his house which has the slightest chance of being a failure and as is one of the best judges of what the fickle public wants, it is very safe to say that "The Amazons" stands a good show of a long run. It is mounted in a manner thoroughly in keeping with the plays which have made this house famous in the past. Other than this criticism would be simply a repetition of praise.

BIJOU THEATRE.

Broadway, between 30th and 31st streets. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"A COUNTRY SPORT."

If you want to laugh "until your sides ache" try a session from quarter past eight until half past ten with Peter F. Dailey and his fun makers at the above house. Originally intended for a one week's run only, it has crowded the house to its full capacity every evening and matinee for eight weeks, and the chances are that it will remain indefinitely to delight theatregoers in this city. "The Country Sport" is one of the very few successes this season. With its phenomenal run here, it should prove an immense money-maker for years to come, on the road.

STANDARD THEATRE.

Broadway, Sixth avenue and Thirty-third street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2.15 P.M.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

The new "business" in "Charley's Aunt" has freshened up this delightful comedy, and it is hard to tell just how long this very funny play will hold the boards at the Standard. Already the two hundredth night is close at hand and still the supply of "nuts" from Brazil is not exhausted.

STAR THEATRE.

Broadway, corner 13th street. Evenings at 8.15 P.M. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday at 2 P.M.

"ROSEDALE."

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

Twenty-third street near Sixth avenue. Continuous performance from 10 A.M. until 11 P.M.

"The Ladies' Club," as Proctor's has come to be known, is one of the very best vaudeville theatres in the United States. Always up to date in its performers, with a clean bill and the best talent, the house does a rushing business every day, as the location is an extremely favorable one for the Lenten public.

Situated in the heart of the busiest shopping district, "The Ladies Club" with its low rates of admission has proven a wonderfully attractive lounging place for tired shoppers as well as for promenaders who for a small price may rest themselves and at the same time witness one of the best performances in this city. The idea is another evidence of what the fin de siecle manager must be equal to in providing with new ideas this continually growing little town of "York."

DORIS' EIGHTH AVENUE MUSEUM.

Between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets. Open all day and evening.

INSTRUMENTS OF TORTURE.

Twenty-third street, West of Sixth ave. Open from 10 A.M. to 11 P.M.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD.

If at market thou shouldst be,
And the butcher said to thee,
"Dees is a tender sthake I haf,
Shoost so soft und nice like calf—"
Ten to one it's tough.

If your bath-room needs repair,
And the plumber should declare
That the money he requires
Hardly pays the help he hires—
Ten to one he lies.

If you want to buy some clothes,
And the tailor should depose
That his clothes are finest made
And his goods will never fade—
Ten to one he cheats.

WHAT HE WOULD DO IF HE OWNED THE STOCK.

A Boston man who was coming East over the Northern Pacific a few days ago, rode for a day at the rate of twelve miles an hour, was side-tracked all night, and "stalled" in a snow-bank all next day. When night came again, he asked the conductor:

"Will you push through to-night?"

"We may make twenty-five miles," was the answer.

"See here," said the Bostonite, as he lost his placidity of mind, "I've got $8,000 in stock in this line."

"Well?"

"Will you agree to make one hundred miles by daylight if I give you the stock?"

"Twouldn't do," was the reply, accompanied by a mournful shake of the head. "If I owned stock in the road I'd ditch the train, put on snow shoes, and get to some market where I could sell the stuff for enough to buy me a burial lot outside of this infernal country! Keep your bonds and your patience. Why, the last Boston man who came out here was stuck in a snow-bank so long that a toothpick he swallowed in Chicago had time to work out of the calf of his leg!"

The Operatic Comedy Success
"Miss Helyett."
New Comedy by DAVID BELASCO.
New Music composed for this production by EDMOND AUDRAN.
New Cast. New Songs. New Dances. New Costumes. Everything New.

UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

"CAPTAIN THERESE," AGNES HUNTINGTON'S latest operatic venture, is destined to prove one of the leading musical attractions of the season. It is by Planquette and its music is spoken of as being in his happiest vein, bright and sparkling throughout, with here and there an approach to classic composition. The Scenery, Costumes and stage effects are of the most elaborate and gorgeous design and in keeping with the action of the play, which is laid out at Dijon, France, in the seventeenth century. In this opera Miss Huntington sustains a dual role, that of the daughter of a Marquis, and a dashing French captain of hussars. Those who have seen Miss Huntington only in the male character of Paul Jones will have an opportunity of contrasting her merits and judging of her abilities in the role of a French lady in high life, while her accredited excellence in the portrayal of male characters is a guarantee that the role of the French officer will be most acceptably sustained.
Love is the mainspring of the plot of "Captain Therese." She is a beauteous maiden, the idol of her father, the Marquis du Vardeuil, who betroths her to the Vicomte Tumerade de la Touche, while she is desperately in love with Philip de Bellegarde a French army officer who is in temporary disfavor, charged with compromising the wife of the general. Therese believes in the innocence of her lover who has been imprisoned on the charge, and to rescue both his reputation from calumny and his person from prison she dons a captains uniform and proceeds with some companions likewise in male attire, to her lover's camp, where her worst fears appear to be realized. After a series of ludicrous situations the mastery of Philip and the base perfidity of his accusers are fully proven and all ends happily for Therese and her lover.

Manager J. M. Hill takes pleasure in announcing that he has secured for a three weeks engagement at the Standard Theatre the immense comedy success, "JANE." This highly successful play was withdrawn from the Madison Square Theatre in this city during the very height of its success, in consequence of that theatre changing management. Since that time it has played extended engagements in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. In Philadelphia the attractions which were to follow "JANE" were twice cancelled to continue its run.

Jane ran 100 nights in New York.
Jane ran 100 nights in Australia.

Jane will shortly be presented at the Standard Theatre with its immence comedy cast for an engagement of three weeks only.

"MODJESKA."

The word artist is oftimes much abused in its application, especially when applied to the interpreters of the drama, yet, to quote from an article which appeared in the Century some time since, "Modjeska is an artist in the highest sense. As her fellow countryman Chopin, was an artist in music, as De Musset in poetry, Millet in painting, so Modjeska is in acting." She not reserved as approximating to the profession and learned early to be at home on the stage in the face of an excitable, demonstrative audience, but she has taken the step beyond excellence into the rank of master. "In the late Mr. Lewes' book on actors and the art of acting he says: 'Rachel was the panther of the stage; with a panther's terrible beauty and undulating grace, she moved and crouched, glared and sprang. Scorn, Triumph, rage, hate and merciless malignity she could represent in symbols of irresistible power; but she had little tenderness, no womanly caressing softness, no gayety, no heartiness. She was so graceful and so powerful that dignity was inseparable. But somehow you always felt in her presence an indefinable suggestion of latent wickedness. "So far as can be learned from those who saw her, Rachel was simply the superior of Modjeska in stage skill. According to Mr. Lewes, she was wanting in qualities in which the Polish actress is pre-eminent. Modjeska is full of gayety, not violent or riotous, but well controlled, and her womanly manner is winning her admirers in this country almost as warm as these in Poland. Moreover, she is a most conscientious artist, and in that like Rachel, while in other respects greater. She does not, like Rachel in her later days and like Sarah Bernhardt already, play indifferently at times — almost carelessly — until the supreme moment for a telling point arrives, in order to flash out then into action of the highest strain. Modjeska gives sufficient attention to all parts of a role, and modifies and subordinates the parts in such a manner that the play becomes of finely modulated tone. Her Juliet, for instance, is such a workman leaves none of the minor things undone — these minor things which it is the tendency in all acts to raise to the dignity of major questions. Modjeska begins with great care the costumes used in her many productions, that they may be historically accurate, and tries to bring realism into a strong play without letting it usurp the interest of an audience.

Modjeska may have her equal, but it is doubtful if Europe passes so well rounded a genius for the stage as she. Voller of Vienna is said to be unrivalled in heavy tragedy; Janauschek has proved in America her marked tragic genius; Bernhardt has her roles in which she is unsurpassed; but none of these can run the gamut of emotions like Modjeska.

A FACT.

O sing a song of sixpence,
A pocketful of chaff,
The folks that try to copy me
At them I always laugh;
With flaming advertisements
They gull the public mind,
And infamite to one and all
That they are wondrous kind.

2.
They'll give for Fifty Dollars
What for a hundred can't be bought,
And yet they think with the like these
The public sure are caught,
They swear their goods are foreign,
Fresh from old Europe's shores,
While nothing else but poorest goods
Are found within their stores.

3.
And a'en their very salesmen
They keep upon the rack,
For if he don't swear black is white
He'll surely get the sack.
I'll stick to honest dealings
As I've always done before,
And sell my goods, — upon the square

A FACT.

O sing a song of sixpence,
A pocketful of shaft,
The folks that try to copy 'me
At them I always laugh;
With flaming advertisements
They gull the public mind
And intimate to one and all
That they are wondrous kind.

2.

They'll give for Fifty Dollars
What for a hundred can't be bought,
And yet they think with five like these
The public sure are caught,
They swear their goods are foreign,
Fresh from old Europe's shores,
While nothing else but poorest goods
Are found within their stores.

3.

And a'an their very salesman
They keep upon the rack,
For if he dont swear black is white
He'll surely get the sack.
I'll stick to honest dealings
As I've always done before,
And sell my goods, — upon the square
Number One in Avenue Four.

And I, John Moriarty,
Am proud that I can say
You'll find as represented
My goods, in every way,
And that my Special Credit,
It fills a want much felt
And helps you furnish up your home
If you are short of "Gold".

5.

So, now, then some and see me
And my stock both fine and new,
'Tis the motto of my business
To render all their due.

When Marriage is not a Failure.

I.

There's not a relative to call or send
Should bind us so closely, so hushand wife,
In mirth or in gladness, in sorrow or ness,
Let nothing be separate—not even life.
And when they do marry, good people should carry
A plan in their heads, the safest and best,
That now they are united, like birds so related,
They both go together, to fit up their nest.

II.

The Carpets shall be, what both shall agree,
Are right in the pattern, and right in the price,
From Sofas and Tables, to Potsticks and Ladles
Let everything be what both shall call nice,
A nice room to dine in, good Chairs to recline in
A well furnished room, for receiving your friends,
With Carpets that fit on, and chairs you may sit on,
And everything else meeting, Housekeeping ends.

III.

This whole combination, from roof to foundation
May all be selected, with never a hitch
By seeing One Man who, hoth will do and can do
The right things by all, the poor and the rich
That's JOHN MORIARTY, and right from the start, he
Will prove he's a Friend, to the Wage earning man
Not trying to beat him, but fairly to treat him
By giving him Time to pay as he can.

IV.

This John Moriarty joins no other party,
His Business is single, and on his own score,
He's Opposite Sixth Street, you'll easily dix it,
His number is One on Avenue Four,
His front is White Painted, and once you're acquainted,
With JOHN MORIARTY'S low prices and plain,
His Payments so Easy, for Goods that will please ye,
MORIARTY 's forever your Furniture Man.

The Schmer Piano factory is kept busy night and day to supply the immense demand for this wonderful instrument. Its success is phenomenal in the history of the piano-trade, and the leading professional artists, the world over, are ever bestowing glowing encomiums upon it, which its beautiful and faultless construction fully entitles it to. In these days of competition an article must be, indeed, perfect, to excel. The unparalleled sales of the Schmer during the past, fully demonstrates the fact, that it has excelled. Its popularity is destined to be as enduring as the love for music itself. Merit is always appreciated and meets its own reward, and we are glad to know that the efforts of Schmer & Co. to furnish a Piano second to none in the world have been crowned with unprecedented success.

When Marriage is not a Failure.

I.
There's not a relation, in all of creation,
Should bind us so closely, as husband and wife,
In mirth or in gladness, in sorrow or sadness,
Let nothing be separate—not even life.
And when they do marry, good people should carry
A plan in their heads, the safest and best,
That now they are mated, like birds to be mated,
They both go together, to fit up their nest.

II.
The Carpets shall be, what both shall agree,
Are right in the pattern, and right in the price,
From Sofas and Tables, to Pottsticks and Ladles
Let everything be what both shall call nice.
A nice room to dine in, good Cheer, reline
A well furnished room, for receiving your friends.
With Carpets that fit on, and Chairs you may sit on
And everything else meeting, Housekeeping ends.

ED PINAUD'S Famous Perfume IXORA BREONI

THE "NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW"
SAYS OF THE CELEBRATED

SOHMER PIANOS:

"No one can fail to notice in them every good quality which one is entitled to expect from a good instrument; nobility, elasticity and utmost clearness of tone, with a high degree of power which never fails, added to which a perfect firmness of touch renders them as near perfection as human skill can make them. Their touch suits with absolute precision a delicacy and pliability, and a most happy and responsive quality not found in the instruments of any other maker."

While the present firm of Sohmer & Co. was founded in 1872, its existence really extends further back to the year 1861, when the late head, Mr. Hugo Sohmer, (a native of the Black Forest, in Germany, coming of a good family in comfortable circumstances,and was given a most finished scientific and literary education, at the same time acquiring a thorough knowledge of music and the pianoforte. At sixteen years of age he arrived in New York, and was apprenticed to piano-making in the factory of Schmeltz & Lindolph. Thoroughly learning his trade in every detail, he returned to Europe in 1861 and traveled in the various capitals, studying piano-making critically and scientifically, finishing practically at Erard, Paris. In 1861 he returned to New York, and in 1872 commenced embodying in practical form the ideas which his inquiring and travel had brought. His partner was Mr. Joseph Ruder, who still continues in the firm; a piano-maker who studied the art and trade thoroughly in the Vienna Shops, and who had a reputation already gained in the shops of prominent makers. Of these the firm consists, in addition to Messrs. Sohmer and Ruder, of Mr. Charles Fahr and George Hutchinson, members of the firm being in charge of a special department, to which he devotes his entire energies. The concern now has, in addition to its extensive warehouses on Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue, a new factory at Astoria, which is the most magnificent piano-manufacturing plant in the country, and the advent of which has done much for Long Island in inducing other manufacturers to establish themselves there.

Even with the present average production of the firm, which is the high figure of forty pianos per week, it is not insufficient to supply the extensive demand. The firm being to-day largely in excess of its output.

A widely-spread constituency demanding these celebrated instruments, they may be had not only at the principal warerooms, 149 to 155 East Fourteenth Street, New York, but at Montreal, Canada; 226 State Street, Chicago; Union Club Building, San Francisco; 1056 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.; 1108 Main Street, Kansas City; as also of local dealers throughout the country.

The tastes of the firm of Sohmer & Co. have been "good and cheerfully believed."

Messrs. KARL, MACDONALD and BARNABEE announce the production for the first time in this city of DEKOVEN & SMITH'S famous comic opera,

A man went into a crowded store to buy some stockings for his wife. "I want striped ones," he said to the clerk. "We have very few stripes, sir," the clerk replied; "they are not so much worn now." "Are you sure?" "Oh, yes! quite sure? I will demonstrate the fact to you." Then he leaned over the counter and shouted: "Rats!" "See?" he added. "Yes," said the customer," give me plain colors."

Examiner — Now Mr. Murphy, while on the subject of physical science, what are the properties of heat? Murphy (a Tipperary Candidate for license) — "Expanshun, surr." Correct. Give me an illustration. In Summer, surr, the sun, being hotter, causes the days to lengthen.

Literary Man (to his new factotum) — What became of the letter that was on my desk? Pat — Shure I mailed it, sor. Literary Man — Mailed it? You idiot. Why, there was no address on it. Pat — Shure I know that, sor, but I thought you didn't want me to know who you was writing to.

The poor boarder who is fast wearing out his store teeth on tough fowl has the satisfaction of knowing that his host will be obliged to give an account of all the tough deeds done in the flesh.

The population of France has only increased 500,000 in five years.

Young Lady—How can one tell a horse looks like that?

He—It says that more than half the women in this country are crazy

She (with a sigh)—I expect that's so. There are a great many married women in this country.

The Schmer Piano factory is kept busy night and day to supply the immense demand for this wonderful instrument. Its success is phenomenal in the history of the piano-trade, and the leading professional artists, the world over, are ever becoming more enthusiastic upon it, which its beautiful and faultless construction fully entitles it to. In these days of competition an article must be, indeed, perfect, to stand. The unparalleled sales of the Schmer during the past, fully demonstrates the fact, that it has earned a reputation, which promises to be as enduring, as it is rare for music itself. Merit is always appreciated and always brings reward; and we are glad to know that the efforts of Schmer & Co. to furnish a Piano second to none in the world have been crowned with unprecedented success.

MASON & HAMLIN.

Their New Piano and Organ Warerooms on Fifth Avenue.

Owing to the steadily increasing demand for the Mason & Hamlin Piano and for its world-famous companion, the Mason & Hamlin Organ—the Mason & Hamlin Company have leased, and have just moved into, elegant and spacious quarters at 108 Fifth Avenue, between 20th and 21st Streets. Every facility is here afforded for the proper display of the magnificent instruments made by this time-honored firm, and a delightful music hall has also been provided especially for the charming recitals given each season by this musical firm.

R. M. Walters, the Piano Manufacturer, of University Place, corner 14th Street, has scored a great triumph by the introduction of his celebrated pianos in the public schools of New York and many of the large educational institutions throughout the country.

That the choice wands, splendid candies and delicious pure fruit juice sodas, all sold at popular prices, with charming music, at "The Metropole," 94 and 96 E. 14th Street (near Union Square), are appreciated, is proven by the fact that over 2,000 persons patronize the immense establishment daily, taxing seating capacity.

Stranger (in Tombstone, Ariz.)—I hear your bank has suspended? Resident—Yes, so is the president.

"Did you propose to the beautiful Miss Rox, last night, Charlie?" "I did, and she also proposed." "What?" "That I wait till the end of the summer for her answer."

"Ho," said Professor Feelem, the eminent phrenologist, "my profession does not yield a life full of sunshine, as many suppose, I tell you;" and he wiped away a tear. "I've felt some pretty hard bumps in my life."

Mrs. Potts—Just to think of you talking to me in such a style! You who used to swear I was an angel. Mr. Potts—Look here, my dear, that isn't fair. What is the use of twitting a man about the fiction he dealt in fifteen years ago?

Why would it be impossible for horses to vote on any measure? Because all their votes would be neighs.

"I suppose you will be somewhat particular in your choice of a wife, Mr. Jones?" "Not a bit of it. Will you marry me, Miss Smith?"

French Editor—Did you make a minute of yesterday's duel? Assistant—No, Monsieur; it was impossible. French Editor—Why? Assistant—Because it only ha i two seconds.

Father (sternly)—Joe, do you want me to put you in the dark closet? Little Joe (equivocally)—Papa, what makes you ask me such questions?

"How did that case against you by the man who broke his leg on your sidewalk go?" "It met with the same fate the plaintiff did." "What was that?" "Slipped up on an appeal."

"You are not the young lady to whom I give lessons," said the piano teacher. "No. The young lady to whom you give lessons is sick, and she has sent me to practice for her."

"Here's an apple, Johnny." "Thanks, ma'am. Now please gimme one for my little sister." "Certainly. How good of you to think of your little sister." Yes'm; if I didn't, she'd keep a teasin' me for mine."

VON BÜLOW'S LETTER

After his Concert Tour, 1890.

To Wm Knabe, Esq., Baltimore.

Dear Sir,—My renewed and by more use—under aggravating circumstances, as bad health and intersome traveling—enlarged experience of your Pianos this present and last trans-atlantic season has throughout confirmed myself in the opinion I expressed last year, viz., that sound and touch of the Knabe Pianos are more sympathetic to my ears and hands than sound and touch of any other Pianos in the United States. As I met with frequent opportunities of establishing comparisons between the Knabe Pianos and instruments of rivalizing or would-rivalizing producers, I dare now add that I declare them the absolutely best in America. With sincere regards,

Yours truly,

DR. HANS VON BÜLOW.

BOVININE

WHY is the FAME and POPULARITY of BOVININE Daily growing in Every State in the Union, and Why Did 50,000 People in the United States Take if During Last Year? BECAUSE in disease ordinary foods are not assimilated, and thousands starve in the midst of plenty for want of a suitable food. BECAUSE Beef Tea and cooked Beef Extracts are by all authorities pronounced useless for food. BECAUSE BOVININE is the only raw meat food condensed by a cold process, by which ALL the nutritive elements of selected beef are preserved in a palatable form, ready for immediate use.

The McKinley Tariff.

I.

In all legislation, whatever the nation,
There's bound to be sometimes a tentative measure;
And so with McKinley — his tariff will soon be
Esteemed by the people a trip or a treasure;
But in legislature it's like human nature;
A man or a measure is judged by a trial;
And if in their action they give satisfaction,
The people will have them and take no denial.

II.

Now, some traders clever need only a lever
Like this of McKinley to get up a cry
That duties are rising — all commerce comprising;
And up goes their price of all that you buy!
But, friends, ere you pay for your wisdom,
it's safer
To visit the store of a fair dealing party —
A man who will treat you that again he can meet you,
And just such a man we know
John Moriarty.

III.

His Furniture Store on Avenue Four,
Whose number is One, is easy to see;
Its white colored frontage shows up to advantage,
Right opposite Sixth Street, as near as can be,
The stock he has there inspection will bear,
For quantity, quality, A Number One,
Of Carpets, of Hangings, of all Furnitures,
A choice you will find that is second to none.

IV.

And when you've been round the store and you've found
The very identical things that you want,
It lightens your heart to pay but a part,
And for the Time given not paying a cent!
Yes, thousands have said it, that here'n get Credit,
And Excellent Furniture by it in pure
And hail fellow hearty is John Moria,
You'll always be happy to meet him o.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

'Tis said that fair woman, God's fair gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—early began
To adorn and improve on divinity's plan,
By arts to enthrall.
She sought to preserve in creation her place
By ornamenta, charming attire, and grace—
But found a fair skin and a beautiful face
The best after all.
If impure blood has disordered some important function, producing obstructions, nerve failure,
dyspepsia, sallow skin, swollen eyelids, eczema,
pimples, etc., the Cactus Blood Cure is the only blood purifier and beautifier now recognized by science.
Vigorous circulation of healthy blood is the best
cosmetic.

A Texas railway track inspector, while officially traveling over the road in a stately palace car ballasted with several baskets of champagne, happening to look out of the rear window, was startled at the tapering appearance of the track which seemed to narrow away as it receded in the distance. He immediately ordered the train to be stopped, got out, cut a stick, and, after marking of the exact gauge, proceeded down the road for some distance, measuring the width of the gauge at various points. Presently he returned, saying it was all right, and that the track was of the same width all the way. The train then resumed its journey.

THEATRICAL PEOPLE

Ought always to use the best and purest of liquors. Those gratified by the Cooking Process Co. are the only ones rendered absolutely free from all poisonous elements. The following letter received from Wm. Hanlon of the renowned Hanlon Bros., whose company received its world-wide reputation in their fashions play "Pantasma":

GENTLEMEN:—I take pleasure in stating that, in my opinion, the Bourbon Whiskey I have had from you is pure, wholesome, and free from ill consequences as that article can be made. I have given it a mighty trial, and have sent to you for it from distant points, so no better proof could be furnished of my opinion of its excellence.

My attention was first drawn to your process by Dr. O. B. Stevens of Providence, R. I., to whom I had occasion to consult, and I can truly say that I feel indebted to him for it. Considering that "Good wine needs no bush," my praise of your liquor is almost superfluous, but there is no hesitation in recommending it to brother artists in the theatrical profession. Yours very truly, WM. HANLON.

NUTRITION is first in importance. Medication second, in all illness. Perfect nutrition is possible with BOVININE containing as it does every element necessary for making new and pure blood. BOVININE makes the flesh firm and rosy, gives color to the lips and cheeks, and brightens the eyes by its blood making and tissue building properties. No medication whatever enters into the composition, it being a food only, but the most effective as yet devised by human research and experiment.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

'Tis said that fair woman, God's last gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—early began
To study the effect on divinity's plan,
To earn an epithet.
She sought to preserve in creation her place
By ornaments, charming attire, and grace—
But found a fair skin and a beautiful face
The best after all.
If impure blood has disordered some important
function, producing obstructions, nerve failure,
dyspepsia, sallow skin, swollen eyelids, eczema, pimples, etc., the Cactus Blood Cure is the key. If blood purifier and breather now recognized by physicians.
Vigorous circulation of healthy blood is the best
cosmetic.

I have treated twelve very severe cases of Dyspepsia with Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir, all of which have been cured by its use. The first box of its pure standing, is worthy of special notice. We obliged to take to her bed in September, 1884. Given a teaspoonful of water, milk or beef tea, would cause everything pain for at least half an hour. Was called to see her Christmas eve. Administered Keith's Elixir. In hot water every four hours, or just after attempting to eat, and in less than two days she could take half a teacupful of beef tea without any inconvenience. In nervous dyspepsia I find it specially valuable.

Made by Some who have been There.

"It's the largest, handsomest and most complete establishment I have ever seen anywhere, and I have traveled all over the world. It's simply marvelous." "The decorations are of a character to excite admiration without doubt the finest in the world." "The music-room alone is larger by 75 cents in the head in New York." "The candelabra are pure Swan and most effective." "That the soda is made from pure fruit juices is self-evident." "The cooking and service are strictly first class, and the prices reasonable."

The names of these visitors are omitted for reasons of delicacy, but we will mention the hundreds of electric lights, in diamond cut glass globes; the $12,000 soda apparatus, the largest and handsomest in the world; the rich velvet carpets and draperies; the blanket of flowers; the several French plate mirrors, covering the entire wall and ceiling; the mosaics of floor, silk and polish; the grand Mosaic floors; the large and brilliant handsome Turkish parlors; the rooms and the comfortable garden; the magic cafe and smoking room; the elegant and comfortable lounging room. The establishment is at 1265 Broadway, 34th Street (Union Square), and known as "The Columbia."

A Texas railway track inspector, while officially traveling over the road in a stately palace car ballasted with several baskets of champagne, happening to look out of the rear window, was startled at the tapering appearance of the track which seemed to narrow away as it receded in the distance. He immediately ordered the train to be stopped, got out, cut a stick, and, after marking of the exact gauge, proceeded down the road for some distance, measuring the width of the gauge at various points. Presently he returned, saying it was all right, and that the track was of the same width all the way. The train then resumed its journey.

THEATRICAL PEOPLE

Ought always to use the best and purest of liquors. Those purified by the Cooling Process Co. are the only ones recommended absolutely free from all poisons. Testimonials from Mr. Joseph Jefferson received from Wm. Hunter of the Grand Union Hotel, whose company received its world's wide reputation in their famous play "Rip Van Winkle."

GENTLEMEN:—I take pleasure in stating that, in my opinion, the Rourbon Whiskey I have had from you is as pure, wholesome, and free from all consequences as that article can be made. I have given it a lengthy trial, and have sent to you for it from distant points, so no better proof could be furnished of my opinion of its excellence.

My attention was first drawn to your process by Dr. Sayre, Stevens of Providence, R. I., whom I had prescribed it to for Dyspepsia. I can truly say that I feel indebted to him for the introduction to a whiskey I can drink as much as I may desire without fear of evil consequences. Yours very truly,

WM. HANLON.

Newark, N. J.

I have treated twelve very severe cases of Dyspepsia with Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir, all of which have been cured by its use. The case of a lady of ten years' standing, is worthy of special notice. She was obliged to take to her bed in November, 1884, with a congestive chill, and was not able to walk across the room without assistance until the following spring. She commenced using Keith's Elixir in February, 1885, and in less than two days after beginning to use it, and before four bottles were used she could take half a teacupful of beef tea without any inconvenience. In three days she was able to walk across the room without any assistance, and in two weeks was able to do her own housework. In nervous dyspepsia I find it specially valuable.

Yours truly,
S. H. FRASER, M.D.

A Texas railway track inspector, while officially traveling over the road in a stately palace car ballasted with several baskets of champagne, happening to look out of the rear window, was startled at the tapering appearance of the track which seemed to narrow away as it receded in the distance. He immediately ordered the train to be stopped, got out, cut a stick, and, after marking of the exact gauge, proceeded down the road for some distance, measuring the width of the gauge at various points. Presently he returned, saying it was all right, and that the track was of the same width all the way. The train then resumed its journey.

THEATRICAL PEOPLE

(ought always to use the best and purest of liquors. Those purified by the Cumbing Process Co. are the only ones rendered absolutely free from all poisonous elements. The following is a letter received from Wm. Hanlon of the renowned Hanlon Bros., whose company received its world-wide reputation in their famous play "Fantasma"):

GENTLEMEN:—I take pleasure in stating that, in my opinion, the Bourbon Whiskey I have had from you is as pure, wholesome, and free from ill consequences as that article can be made. I have given it a lengthy trial, and have sent to you for it because I believe it to be what every user should be furnished of my opinion of its existence.

My attention was first drawn to your process by Dr. D. Stevens of Providence, R. I., whom I had occasion to consult, and I can truly say that I feel indebted to him for it. Considering that "Good wine needs no bush," my praise of your liquor is almost superfluous. I have no hesitation in recommending its use to brother artists in the theatrical profession. Yours very truly,

WM. HANLON.

BOVININE

NUTRITION is first in importance. Malnutrition second, in all illness. Perfect nutrition is possible with BOVININE containing as it does every element necessary for making new and pure blood. BOVININE makes the flesh firm and rosy, gives color to the lips and cheeks, and brightens the eyes by its blood making and tissue building properties. No medication whatever enters into the composition, it being a food only, but the most effective as yet devised by human research and experiment.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

"It said that fair woman, God's last gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—aptly began
To adorn and improve on divinity's plan,
By arts to entrall.
She sought to preserve in creation her place
By ornaments, charming alike, and grace—
But found a fair skin and a beautiful face
The best after all.

The best after all as discovered some important functions, producing obstructions, nerve failure, dyspepsia, sallow skin, swollen eyelids, eczema, pimples, etc., the Cactus Blood Cure is the only blood purifier and beautifier now recognized by science.

Vigorous circulation of healthy blood is the best cosmetic.

I have treated twelve very severe cases of Dyspepsia with Keith's Dyspepsia Elixir, all of which have been cured in the time. The cure in any of the worst cases, after a thorough trial of Keith's Elixir, is but twenty-four hours. One case in particular, that of a transporter of water, milk or beer tea, would cause me to take the pitcher at least half an hour. Was called to see her Christmas eve. Administered Keith's Elixir, in hot water every four hours, or just after attempting to eat, and in less than two days she could take half a teacupful of beer tea without any inconvenience. In nervous dyspepsia I find it specially valuable. Yours truly, S. H. PARKER, M. D.

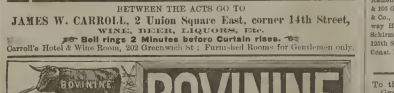
BOVININE



THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while on the bottles, calfsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

BOVININE holds in solution the albuminoidand salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process, containing the life sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

The J. F. Hunt Manufacturing Co.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting prostrating work, and supplies the body with a gentle stimulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with alcoholic beverages. MAURICE MORRISON.

To the EASTMAN Co.

GENTLEMEN:—I have one of your Kodaks, and must say that I would not be without one, as they are grand.

Who aids his fellow man to live,

Whose lives are honored by their labor,
He thinks the weak would never fall,
If every man would help his neighbor.

II.

Prosperous himself, he pities those
Who cant or use alone unaided,
And poverty a the least of woes,
If help'd we are not degraded,

Or forms a child could understand,
And thus he helps you win your battles.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

'Tis said that fair woman, God's last gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—early began
To adorn and improve on divinity's plan.
By arts so enlightened
She sought to procure in creation her place
By ornaments charming alike, and grace—
By beauty of skin and a beautiful face
The best after all.
If impure blood has disordered some important function, protecting countenance, nerve tumors, dyspepsia, sallow skin, swollen eyelids, eczema, pimples, etc., the Cactus Blood Cure is the only blood purifier and beautifier now recognized by science.
Vigorous circulation of healthy blood is the best cosmetic.

Park Place, New York, runs out of Broadway opposite the Post Office. Among its features is its largest bargain room in the world, that of the Rochester Lamp Company. Ladies often like to go down among the large wholesale houses, and buy of first hands. They will find at 49 Park Place the largest and most artistic display of lamps ever shown—over 4000 varieties. The house sells and is happy.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many Dress Shields, each represented to be "just as good as The Lily." THEY ARE NOT, but, like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. In buying Shields ask for the Lily Dress Shields and insist on getting them. Wide-awake dealers generally sell them; the sleepy ones soon will.

At the Standard Theatre, Manager J. M. Hill, will soon inaugurate a prolonged comedy season, and to this end has contemplated arrangements whereby Mr. George W. Lederer's Comic Physical Humor, featuring the inimitable Mr. Hill, will begin an extended run commencing about the 16th of March. A magnificent new production will introduce this wonderfully successful musical nature, headed by the famous comedians, Messrs. Cox, Williams and John P. Kelly, who need no introduction to New York audiences, for their long and prosperous career on the stage has endeared them to all lovers of laughing comedies.

At the head of the ladies of the company there is Miss Fanny West, who has been named by a number of prominent critics the "Dazzling Sunbeam." This petite little body is an importation of Mr. Lederer and to state that she has created a veritable furor is but putting it mildly. In fact, it is positively asserted by those who ought to know, that she fully equals the talents of our own Lotta in the minors pathetic lays. Miss Fanny Rice will be another attraction. Miss Gertrude Lederer, the charming girl, seventeen years old, who is a recent first prize graduate of the New York conservatory of Music. There is besides a host of pretty and clever ladies and gentlemen in the musical company.

As a comedy is being called for the author, Mr. Edgar Smith, a musical comedy is ready—it is a new one by him called the Merry Monarch, with much more thread than most farce comedies can boast of, with enough incidental situations that usually go to cover the plot, and a finale that is so called sake now before the public. As for the two masters of contrasted dialect parts, Mr. Gus Williams appears as Professor Oppenheim, a German music teacher who is a victim of circumstances, a lover of drinks and as of yore, his humor is easy, natural and pleasing. John P. Kelly as Octopus Jones, is entertainingly funny. The dialogue of this piece is sparkling and witty throughout and the whole is a genuine satire on the New York Flat-House system. While the last act "The Roof Garden Fete" is a genuine reproduction of New York's Circle Roof Garden.

Of course, there is the despotic ruler of the flat, the Janitor, a goodly representative of the necessity evil. "The Servant Girl," who with her other servants in the flat, that themselves together for the purpose of establishing a servant girls' Protective Union; the ice-man, grocer, butcher, coloured-man and typical paper and in fact, dozens of incidents that go to make up a most ingenious and consistent evening entertainment.

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beefteas, calfsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

BOVININE holds in solution the albumoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared only by a cold process, containing the life sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. F. BRIZ MANUFACTURING CO.

A wonderful remedy, indeed, have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting prostrating ware, and supplies the body with a gentle stimulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with alcoholic beverages. SEE JOHN MORIARTY.

I.

He is the hero in the strife
Who side his fellow man to live,
And shares the burdens of this life,
And hastens sympathy to give.
JOHN MORIARTY feels for all
Whose lives are honored by their labor,
He thinks the weak would never fall,
If every man would help his neighbor.

II.

Prosperous himself; he pities those
Who cannot rise alone unaided,
And poverty's the least of woes,
If ye folk we are not degraded,
As well put money in your hand,
As give you of his goods and chattels,
On terms a child could understand,
And thus he helps you win your battles.

III.

His Special Credit is the theme,
Dwelt on by rich and poor at present,
By this you may attain your dream
And make existence sweet and pleasant.
No house low priced or goods to show,
Beds, Carpets, Furniture and Pictures,
On terms you'll find extremely low,
Unmarred by hidden cost or strictures.

IV.

More, no man does than he will do
To aid you in this wise endeavor,
Start now that home, for loved ones true,
Your empire and domain forever.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

"He said that hair woman, God's last gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—early began
To adorn and improve on divinity's plan.
By arte to enthrall.
She sought to preserve in creation her place
By ornamenta, charming attire, and grace—
But found a fair skin and a beautiful face
The best after all.
If impure blood has disordered some important function producing constipation, nerve failure, dyspepsia, salt rheum, swollen eyelids, eczema, pimples, sallow skin, clarine Doetz is the only blood purifier and beautifier now recognized by science.
Vigorous circulation of healthy blood is the best cosmetic.

There are many Dress Shields, each represented to be "just as good as The Lily." THEY ARE NOT, but, like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. A Coy Correction.

"What think you of the play?" she said
And smiled into her lover's eye.
The young man gaily bent his head:
"I think you're perfect," still he cries.
"But tell me of the play?" she said:
"Think you 'tis beautiful and grand?"
"You're both-and-perfect, too," he said.

I've heard the words before, but in the sense

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beefteas, calfsfoot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

BOVININE holds in solution the albuminoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared instantly by a cold process, containing the life sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. F. ROSS MANUFACTURING CO.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used your Fluid Food Sovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting professional work, and supplies the body with a genial stimulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with alcoholic beverages. He is the hero in the strife
Who aids his fellow man to live,
And shares the burdens of this life,
And hastens sympathy to give.
JOHN MORIARTY feels for all
Whose lives are honored by their labor,
He thinks the weak would never fall,
If every man would help his neighbor.

II.

Prosperous himself, he pities those
Who cannot reach above unaided,
And poverty's the least of woes,
If by it we are not degraded.
As well put money in your hand,
As give you of his goods and chattels,
On terms a child could understand,
And thus he helps you win your battles.

BOVININE

THE ACUTELY SICK, as well as chronic invalids, are starved daily while using beefine, calfefot jelly and the various beef extracts made by application of heat. None of these things contain a particle of nutrition, nor do they contribute anything for the support of the vital processes, but act solely as stimulants, not restoratives.

BOVININE holds in solution the albumoids and salts of lean, raw meat, prepared by a cold process, containing the life sustaining and tissue-building properties of the meat itself. Consult your doctor about it.

THE J. F. SUSE MANUFACTURING CO.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used your Fluid Food Bovinine to great advantage in my own case, as it has a wonderful effect in restoring strength and tone to the system after exhausting protracted work, and supplies the body with a genuine sumulation from which there is no reaction, as is the case with Alcoholic beverages.

WOMAN'S CHARMS.

"Tis said one fair woman, God's last gift to man—
And the best—when we think of it—early began
To adorn and improve on divinity's plan.
By arts to enthrall,
She sought to preserve in creation her place
By ornaments, charming attire and grace—
But found a fair skin and a beautiful face.

The best after all.
Modern science has disordered some important functions, producing obstructions, nerve failure, dyspepsia, sallow skin, swollen eyelids, eczema, pimples, etc., the Cactus Blood Cure is the only blood purifier and beautifier now recognized by science.

FINE INSTRUMENTS ON FINE SHIPS.

As to music, the owners of the City of Paris, City of New York, Teutonic and Majestic have shown the same consideration for the comfort of their passengers that they have in everything else. The two former ships are each provided with an upright piano by Mason & Hamlin, furnished in a superb case of cherry inlaid in bird's-eye maple, the design harmonizing beautifully with the room itself. These pianos contain the improved mode of stringing invented and patented by Mason & Hamlin, which is said to peculiarly fit them for withstanding the ravages of the sea. The Paris, New York and Majestic are each provided with a two-manual pedal base organ, also by Mason & Hamlin, furnished in an exquisitely chaste case of white enamel. The salon of the Teutonic contains a piano and also one of those marvelously beautiful and artistic instruments, viz., the Liszt organ, by Mason & Hamlin. The case of this instrument is truly a work of art. It is of old oak, highly polished, with trimmings in gold and dark brown, the total effect harmonizing beautifully with the architecture of the room. It is to be regretted that America can boast no such ships as these, but it is some comfort to the patriotic that the magnificent instruments on these ships are all of American make.—*N. Y. Little Alice was crying bitterly, and, on being questioned, confessed to having received a slap from one of her playfellows. "You should have returned it," unwisely said the questioner. "Oh, I returned it before!" said the little girl.

A man went into a crowded store to buy some stockings for his wife. "I want striped ones," he said to the clerk. "We have very few stripes, sir," the clerk replied; "they are not so much worn now." "Are you sure?" "Oh, yes! quite sure? I will demonstrate the fact to you." Then he leaned over the counter and shouted: "Rats!" "See?" he added. "Yes," said the customer, "give me plain colors."

"Ah, I see," said an equestrian, meeting a one-legged man on the road, "you have had one of your limbs sawed off and are hopping about on one leg in fulfilment of a ridiculous election bet."

First Mate—"Well, sir, things are going smooth now, sir." Captain—"Yes. That is because several of the sailors have been ironed."

In Central Africa.—Emin (to his guide)—"Do you know where we are?" Guide (possitively)—"No, boss." Emin (with tears of joy)—"Thank heaven! lost again!"

Not the Suit He Meant.—Sweetam—"She smiled on my suit, Robbins, old boy." Robbins—"Well, I think, she might. The wonder is that she didn't go into hysterics."

The following simple and no doubt truthful fish story, is told by the New Orleans Picayune: "A bass weighing one pound in 1880 was returned to the Potomac with a small sleigh bell attached to its tail with a wire. A few days ago it was caught, with the bell still attached, the fish weighing six pounds. This may seem like a fish story, but some of our readers will remember that a one pound bass caught in the eastern branch five years ago, was returned to the water with a penny tin whistle attached to its tail. Three years later the bass was caught near the same spot. It still weighed a pound, but the whistle had grown into a fog horn."

THE

"NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW"

HE CELEBRATED

SOHMER

PIANOS:

"No one can fail to notice in them every good quality which can be realized or expected from a good instrument; mobility, elasticity and utmost clearness of tone, and an extent of power which never fails, added to which a perfect evenness of touch renders them as near perfection as has been thus far attained. Their touch unites with absolute precision a delicacy and pliability, and a most happy and responsive quality not found in the instruments of any other maker.

While the present firm of Sohmer & Co. was founded in 1872, its existence really extends further back than 1860. Its author and head, Mr. Hugo Sohmer, is a native of the Black Forest, in Germany, coming of a good family in comfortable circumstances, and was given a most finished scientific and literary education, at the same time acquiring a thorough knowledge of music and the pianoforte. At sixteen years of age he arrived in New York and was apprenticed to piano-making in the factory of Schuetze & Ludolph. Thoroughly learning his trade with this firm, he returned to Europe in 1858 and traveled in the various capitals, studying piano-making critically and scientifically from every possible standpoint. In 1859 he returned to New York, and in 1872 commenced embodying in practical form the ideas which his training and travel had brought. His partner was Mr. Joseph Kinder, who still continues in the firm; a piano-maker who studied the art and trade thoroughly in the Vienna Shops, and added considerable experience gained in the shops of prominent makers. At present the firm consists, in addition to Messrs. Sohmer and Kinder, of Mr. Charles Fahr and George Rehmann, each member of the firm being in charge of a special department, to which he devotes his entire energies. The concern now has, in addition to its extensive warehouse on Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue, a new factory at Astoria, which is the most magnificent and complete establishment in the country, and the advent of which has done much for Long Island in inducing other manufacturers to establish themselves there.

Even with the present average production of the firm, which is the high figure of forty pianos per week, it is yet insufficient to supply the extensive demand, the firm being to-day largely in arrears of its orders.

A widely-spread constituency demanding these celebrated instruments, they may be had not only at the principal warerooms, 149 to 155 East Fourteenth Street, New York, but at Montreal, Canada; 226 State Street, Chicago; Union Club Building, San Francisco; 1022 Oliver Street, St. Louis, Mo.; 1103 Main Street, Kansas City; as also of local dealers throughout the country.

The laurels of the firm of Sohmer & Co. have been hastily earned and cheerfully bestowed."

Oh, who is the victor who comes from the fray
So sparkling and glorious, so gallant and gay?
'T is SOHMER victorious, as always before.
His antagonist humbled and brought to the floor.

There 's a moral attached to th fight that's just fought—
That an honest success must be earned and not bought.
You may buy testimonials and such little things;
But the money is better put into the strings.

To buy all the artists that ever were known
Won't give a cheap instrument musical tone—
And the reason that SOHMER comes out in first place
Is this—'t is the instrument settles the case.

THE PRESENT REVIVAL.

The second production of the present Regular Season of the Union Square Theatre takes the form of a revival. The Union Square version of Clivot's "Locataires," under its happier title "French Flats," was produced five years ago. The amusing caricature sketches, falling into the hands of actors able to reflect their spirit and humorous satire, the play "took the town." For three consecutive months it kept the standing-room sign of the house exposed to the inclemency of a very bitter winter; and if the value of a play, like the merits of a candidate, is to be decided by the expressed opinions of a majority, French Flats is the best play ever played in this theatre. In justice to the majorities who applauded it here, we must say they paid for their opinions, and were not paid to express them.

In the present revival of this funny jeu-de-mot and d'esprit, the original cast has been, of course, as nearly effected as possible.

Mr. Parselle retains his position as landlord of the house; Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Polk retain their several flats; Miss Ida Vernon, Miss Jewett, and Miss Harrison still live, love and quarrel on the various floors, and have invegled a new lodger, Miss Nellie Howard, into the position of Miss Maud Harrison's Stepmother and Mr. Parselle's second wife. Mr. Owen Fawcett, Mr. Magnus occupy their due positions, and an innocent young actor from the Boston Museum, Mr. J. B. Mason, has obtained a clerkship, in Mr. Stoddard's law office, in the third story of these "French Flats. Mr Joseph B. Polk, the original tenor, who stood behind the original door in the original production of the original version of this original embroglio, has come all the way from Australia to re-rent his fourth story in these flats, to enjoy a repetition of the original drubbing he gave Mr. J. H. Stoddard for ninety-eight consecutive nights. When these flats were originally built, Mr. Richard Marston contracted for and executed the decorations, for which he was paid in weekly instalments. The furniture came from De Graaff & Taylor's, but the ornamentations were the handiwork of the firm of Winne & Henri. They, too, were duly paid in weekly sums, and the French Flats, No. 56 East 14th Street, are now as free from all indebtedness as their proprietor wishes they were from taxes. The very few changes made in the inhabitants of the house are certainly a certificate of how the house has been kept. It is now occupied by the following old tenants, who seem to have a lease à la Navarre on their several apartments:

Miss Sarah Jewett, a lady of the highest Society, Second Story.

Mr. J. H. Stoddart, a Democratic-Republican lawyer, who sleeps with judges elected by either party, Third Story.

Mr. J. B. Polk, a tenor with a strong temper, weak voice and weaker legs, still screams "Non ti scordar di mo," on the Fourth Story.

Of the character of the young persons who occupy the Fifth Story, the people below sneeringly assure us they know nothing—absolutely nothing. The landlord, Mr. John Parselle, with his amiable daughter, Miss Maud Harrison, and his new wife Miss Nellie Howard, still occupies the lower floor himself, from which floor he rules this "Home of Peace, Concord and Tranquility." Mrs. E. J. Phillips has renewed her claims on the heart of the voiceless tenor, and actually asserts that Mr. Mason of Boston, now occupies towards her that filial relation it was once Mr. Ramsay's pride to acknowledge. There will still be a few rooms to rent in these lovely flats till further notice.

Dupree & Son, Bankers and Brokers, a play in five acts, by Adolphe Dennery, author of Don Cesar de Bazan, Richelieu at sixteen, the Two Orphans, Celebrated Case, etc., is now in rehearsal at the Union Square Theatre and will follow the revival of "French Flats." The play is one of "modern contemporaneous interest" and in its cast will comprise all the leading actors and actresses of the Union Square Theatre Company. Dupree & Son will be followed by a new comedy.

FOURTEENTH REGULAR SEASON.

With the production of the Artist's Daughter, Messrs. Shook and Collier inaugurate the fourteenth Regular Season of the Union Square Theatre. As has been the custom, since the senior partner of the firm established this house, the management take this annual opportunity to make known to their patrons the names of the artist's selected by it for the coming season, and the staff they have retained at the heads of their several departments.

The Actresses of the Union Square Theatre will see from the list of the company that but little change has been made in its important members, and that only when death had made such change unavoidable. Mr. Shook has always believed that in an established stock theatre a certain rapport establishes itself between the actor and the audience alike pleasing and beneficial to both; and for the fourteen years of his proprietorship of the theatre has insisted upon the continuation of its personel as far as possible. In this policy his present associate, Mr. Collier, has most heartily agreed with him. The newcomers are: Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. J. B. Mason and Miss N lie Howard.

Mr. Barnes has been most favorably known as a leading actor in the principal theatres of London, and was the gentleman selected by Mr. Henry Irving and Mr. Henry Abbey, to play "the opposite parts" to Miss Mary Anderson during the initial engagement of that popular actress, at the Lyceum Theatre in London.

Mr. J. B. Mason is a young American actor who comes to us from the very excellent stock company of the Boston Museum, where he filled the position of jeune premier.

Miss Nellie Howard, a still younger aspirant for your approval, commenced her professional education under the able management of Mr. Augustin Daly. On leaving that stock company she played with several of Messrs. Shook and Collier's travelling organizations, and the talents she there evinced, has caused her transfer to the Regular Company of the Union Square Theatre.

The management entertain no doubt that the strangers will meet with the same hearty welcome that was extended in this house to the older members of the Company when they first appeared upon its stage.

In the staff no change has been made. Mr. Richard Marston continues as the scenic artist, Mr. Tissington, as the Musical Conductor. While the departments of Machinery and Properties are still under the respective management of Mr. Winne and Mr. Henry.

Of the play selected to open the present season, the management can only say, that their estimate of its merit is evinced by their production of it. It simply remains for them to bear the only verdict that can finally determine its value, the verdict of the public; and the management would fain believe that that usual, generous verdict will not be lessened in its kindness, from the pen of us American author.

The repertoire of the present season will comprise plays, by both foreign and native authors of established repution; and, should opportunity offer one play from a yet untried pen.

22 Union Square.

THREE WIVES TO ONE HUSBAND.

The comedy to be presented here this evening, is from the pen of M. Grenet-Dancourt, and was produced in Paris on January 11th, 1884. It is still being played to audiences which nightly tax the capacity of the enormous theatre. In producing this comedy for their holiday attraction, Messrs. Shook and Collier trust they have found a worthy successor to "Pink Dominoes" and "French Flats." The cast embraces the entire company to which the favorite actress Mrs. Germon has been added.

In "Le Temps" of September 1st, M. Francisque Sarcey, the most eminent of French critics, writes about this piece as follows: "The Cluny Theatre was the first to open the season. It had not taken the trouble to find a new piece. Why, indeed, should it? It had in the prescee of a full house, brought the last season to an end with the 270th representation of "Three Wives To One Husband;" it reopened with the 271st. representation, to an auditorium equally crowded.

I went (although the manager had not thought it necessary to invite the critics to spend their time on so well-known a play) because I had not seen M. Grenet-Dancourt's comedy since its first production, when the audience laughed till it cried, and I was anxious to see if the comedy effects remained as potent as before."

"The first act is excruciatingly funny; so much so, that it is wonderful that the others are able to maintain the interest. Last night the entire audience kept exploding with laughter, just as at the first performance. It was extremely curious to watch this audience. Mainly composed of people who knew the piece, and of many who had seen it so often that they had it almost by heart, one could see that they were waiting for well-known words and passages, and they laughed in anticipation before the speeches were given."

"The anticipatory laughter was often so great that the laughers could not hear, but they kept on just as if they had. When a piece has so completely colored Paris, there seems to be no reason why it should be withdrawn for an indefinite time, and if the management were not bound by previous contract, 'Three Wives to One Husband' would run all the winter."

"The end of the second act is so remarkable and side-splitting an idea that it keeps the house in one long roar of laughter. I know of nothing so droll as this scene, in which the bridegroom has taken by mistake, just before his wedding, a sleeping-draught, intended for his uncle, who was to be by that means groom sets as if in a dream. His eyes are wide open and swimming, his body is bent, ready for the fall it would it certainly take if no friend did not, from time to time, wake him up with a tremendous slap on the back. Then for a moment he recovers himself, but instantly falls back into his lethargy. The whole scene is a prodigious joke, and I defy anyone last night to have heard a word of the dialogue, which was drowned in loud and inextinguishable laughter and to which I certainly contributed my full share. During the Exposition at New Orleans, Messrs. Shook and Collier will fill seven weeks at the Grand Opera House with a specially selected company, including vini, J. C. Padgett, Belle Jackson, Netta Guion, etc. The repertoire will be:

"Storm Beaten,"
"French Flats,"
"Two Orphans,"
"Sea of Ice,"
"Child of the State,"
"Lights o' London."

In writing about "Three Wives to One Husband," Mr. Sarcey says: "The company playing at the Cluny is not a great one; it has no stars, but presents a fair ensemble. The great beauty of this play is, however, that it can be played effectively anywhere by any company."

NEWS NOTES.

The Storm Beaten Companies traveling under the management of Messrs. Shook and Collier are now the one in the Middle States, the other in the West. Their receipts were but little interfered with in either section by the election excitements save on special nights. The same may be said of the Lights o' London Companies traveling under the same management.

The cable says Miss Mary Anderson will not produce "Cymbeline" in London. The Lyceum is crowded nightly to see her performance of Juliet and "Romeo and Juliet" may now run until the end of the season.

The next matinee of the "Actors Fund" will be given at Daly's Theatre, January 2.

The new theatre in Chicago, corner of Clark and Washington streets, will be opened about September next. There will then be more theatres in Chicago than in any other city in the Union except New York. Chicago also possesses a very large number of Dime Museums.

Mrs. Langtry supported by Mr. Charles Coghlan will revisit the States in the fall of 1885.

M. Georges Ohnet, author of "Le Maitre de Forges," has been made a knight of the Legion of Honor.

The success of the present programme at the Union Square Theatre, "One Touch of Nature" and "Three Wives To One Husband," will do something to dispel the idea among New York managers that when they read a "broken bill" always means failure. It will be a good thing for actors, managers and the public when the system of long runs in vogue in our cities. To the actors of America it awards the one act piece affords admirable opportunities for gaining experience and confidence. Recent work in this line published in Harper's and the Century, by W. D. Howells, Julian Magnus and Brander Matthews, shows that the opportunity and not the ability is wanting.—N. Y. Herald, Dec. 21.

SOHMER & CO.

MESSRS. SOHMER & CO., the Pianoforte-makers, continue to make rapid strides in the popular favor. Wether the times be good or bad they are sure to have their reliance, and the result of their intelligible enterprise and of the great improvements they have introduced in the trade during the last few years is becoming apparent and only in the way of increasing their headquarters, but also in the way of "competing" as makers of the first class. It is but right we should regard their business was more or less confined to New York. To day it extends all over the United States, and even beyond to South America and the West Indies.

Mr. EDWARD SOHMER has been signified energetic and practical worker, ably controlling every branch of the establishment. Mr. J. KLEIN, Mr. SOHMER'S partner, is always on the alert for any new invention and improvement, and pays much of his attention to the factory, of which there are two.

The Messrs. SOHMER'S new Ware Rooms, Nos. 149 and 151 GEORGE RETHMANN'S, directly opposite Union Square, have recently been refitted with a decidedly tasteful and handsome fitting.

Of those who hold it their supreme pleasure to be well posted concerning all that is new and fashionable, these rooms and the instruments shown in them are a veritable Mecca. The most lavish display of floral designs, of the richest and rarest, and of the best coloring probably in the world, has, apparently, occupied all by the sweet stamp of its ownership between the hours of 9 and 5 p.m.

The fashionable proclivities of paying for a first-class instrument by the month—one has been introduced by the Hardman Piano, which are fashionable, and can be hired at a reasonable and moderate rate. The new Hardman Upright is the scene of much pleasurable gossiping. New Warerooms, 429 Fifth Avenue, above 39th St.

THE NEW PLAY.

After a successful run of seventy-seven performances, Mr. Buchanan's beautiful drama "Storm-Beaten" was withdrawn from the stage of the Union Square Theater, last Saturday evening, to make room for Mr. Bartley Campbell's new American comedy drama, entitled "Separation," This original picture of American life at home and abroad is divided into five acts; and its cast comprises all the leading members of the Union Square Theater. As the scenes of the play shift from the banks of the Hudson to the sands of Trouville, France, and thence to Florence, Italy, it affords ample opportunities to the brush of the scenic artist; and Mr. Richard Marston's illustrations of these several localities, so celebrated for their differing beauties, can scarce fail to equal the expectation of the warmest admirers of his skill. The period of the play being the present day, the characters created in it by Mr. Campbell's graceful and practiced pen possess an unusual living interest, as reflections of people we have met; and the lively and subtle dialogue so characteristic of our favorite dramatist can scarce fail to charm and amuse. The production of a play is the surest evidence the management can give of its own estimate of its merits. The correctness of that estimate can only be ascertained by the verdict of the Press and of that public which, for many years, has so generally and generously extended its patronage and patronage to the productions of the UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

STORM-BEATEN.

Mr. Buchanan's beautiful and powerful melodrama, "Storm-Beaten," the very successful run of which at this theater was closed with the performance of last Saturday evening, will in quick succession be produced with all the original scenery and a strong cast, comprising many members of the original one, in several of the leading cities of the United States, commencing at Haverly's Theater, in the city of Brooklyn.

The play will be produced with all the original scenery, costumes, properties and music, its every performance being, in all respect, a fac simile of that given in the Union Square Theater itself.

TWO NEW SONGS.

Two compositions, named "You, a Song From" and "The Alpine Rover," by Paul Steinhagen, have been sent to us, and we can conscientiously recommend them to our readers. The first, in E flat, is a very meritorious composition for tenor voice, and will undoubtedly become a favorite in the concert room; the latter, in G sharp, is of less pretentions, but very pretty. We compliment Mr. Paul Steinhagen and pronounce him a thorough musician.

"THE LIGHTS OF LONDON."

Simms' drama, the "Lights o' London," which was played for one whole season at the Union Square Theatre, and since then in every city and town in the United States with proportionately equal success, seems to preserve all its pristine popularity. Messrs. Shook & Collier have "on the road" at present four companies—fully equipped in point of costumes, properties, calciums, and the scenery by Mr. Richard Marston. The transportation of this large paraphernalia is effected in cars designed by the management and specially built for the purpose, by the Lehigh Car Company of Stainton, Pa., so that the piece is as perfectly presented in the smaller towns they visit as in New York itself. These several companies are entitled, the Western, the Southern, the Central and the Eastern Company; and each of them is under the management of an experienced agent. They are officered as follows:

Western Company, Walter Collier, Manager; W. H. Strickland, Representative in advance. Southern, Charles T. Atwood, Manager; Charles Melville, Representative in advance. Central, Fred A. Dubois, Manager; Charles H. Keeshin, Representative in advance; and Eastern, H. H. Butler, Manager; Edmund Gardiner, Representative in dvance.

"The Alpine Rover" is the name of the play to follow shortly "The Ralph" as the Madness by H. Belgium's success will be the first play written by Mr. Belgium's pen, and will be a comedy and a dramatic and popular novelist. The piece is in four acts.

Only the finest materials and workmanship employed in producing the new Straight Mesh Cigarette "Cloth of Gold."

NOTES.

Ladies should not think because the thermometer stands at zero, that "Button's Face Gloss Shoe Dressing" is not in constant demand. During this inclement weather it is absolutely necessary to keep your shoes look neat and clean, to dress them often.

Exception to the rule. In a certain cafe having a notice "Cigarette smoking not allowed," "Cloth of Gold" is not excluded.

Victor Hugo has been visited by a delegation of Mormons, who urged him to join their body and endeavored by appeals to his poetic sense to make a convert of him. Such, at least, is the story that is going the rounds of the German newspapers, which assert further that the aged poet's visitors introduced two Mormon girls to him and gave him to understand that he might have them both as wives, if he should conclude to become a follower of Brigham Young. The French journals pronounce the latter part of this report a sheer invention, prompted by Teutonic malice, but they admit that Hugo gave audience to a Mormon deputation, and that he had an extended conversation with them.

The young American actor, Mr. E. K. Collier, who made such a decided "hit" at the Union Square Theater in the role of Christian Christiansen in "Storm-Beaten," will play this leading part in the "Storm-Beaten" Company. Mr. E. K. Collier will be most pleasantly remembered in all the leading cities of the Union as the successful supporter of the great tragedian, Mr. John McCullough, from New York to San Francisco. Mr. E. K. Collier is the nephew of Mr. J. W. Collier, the manager of the Union Square Theater, and not his son as some papers have erroneously stated.

Mr. H. H. Boyesen, of Columbia College, will produce his first play, entitled, "The Alpine Rose," at the Madison Square Theater next Monday evening.

A new play is in rehearsal at Wallack's Theater.

The present will be the last week of Mrs. Langtry's engagement at the Fifth Avenue Theater.

Mr. Thomas W. Keene is the attraction at Niblo's Theater for the present week. He appears as "Richard III."

Mr. Wilson Barrett, the original English creator of the part of Harold Armitage in the popular play "The Lights o' London," will visit this country next season, and appear in the role of Christian in the play of that name.

"Love on Crutches" has been postponed at Daly's Theater; and "7-20-8" continues to run.

Mr. Edgar Fawcett has finished a five act play entitled "Christine." The style of the story is in the vein of Octave Feuillet It is admirably written and well constructed.

The most remarkable, if not the largest, collection of photographs in the United States is owned by Detective Henry Weyl, of Philadelphia. It contains 2,000 cartes of "crooks," and with them are newspaper clippings describing them and their exploits, reports of trials, and other memoranda.

Mr. W. P. Baird won Miss Frisca Haverfield of Cincinnati; but she is only fourteen, whereas the law in Ohio requires that the bride shall be over eighteen years of age. Her ingenuity, however, overcame this impediment in the way of her marriage. She put the figure 18 into her shoe, and as she stood to answer the clerk's question she replied, sweetly, "I am over eighteen." The marriage license was granted, and the pair are biding from an irate mother.

Got, the actor, being recently in a small town in the south of France, volunteered for a benefit for the poor. His name drew crowds. The Mayor turned over in the proud and pompous mind what he could do in acknowledgment. He invited the actor to a complimentary breakfast, and placed before him an egg in which ten golden louis were concealed. Got took a spoonful, and, discovering the contents, ceased eating. The other guests, who were in the secret, watched him attentively, and the hostess inquired why he did not finish the egg. "Madame," he replied, "I never touch the yolk." "Do you throw it away?" she asked with astonishment. "No, I always leave it for the poor."

In England the custom for the winner to give wine to a club is not uncommon, especially in the days of race meetings, but in this country it is not. It was, however, inaugurated at the Fall Meeting of the Louisville Jockey Club, by the house of Mess. Chandon. All those connected with the turf, along the line, had some time in the past these gentlemen have been the guests of the American turf. The Moet & Chandon Wines are the finest, purest and cheapest Champagnes imported in the United States, and no sportsman should be without them.—Knickerbocker.

The manufacturers of "Cloth of Gold" Straight Mesh, intend then to be the No plus ultra of cigarettes. Already the demand signifies success.

One of the most unique and attractive displays of rich and beautiful goods in this country, is conspired at present in variety now to be seen at Vantine & Co's new store, 859 Broadway. They seem to have ransacked Europe, Persia, Japan and China, with well-nigh unlimited means to offer their customers everything that can please the sight and taste of lovers of fine Bric-a-brac, Porcelain and Tapestries.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR.—Mme. Julian's Specific, the only unfailing remedy for removing radically and permanently all annoying disfigurements from the face, chin, neck, arms, breast, palms, destruction, or injury to the most delicate skin; does not burn off the superfluous hair, but kills and destroys the roots completely. Ladies who have in vain tried the various depilatories so extensively advertised by quacks, and were only disgusted, may accept, apple, with certainty of perfect success, in Mme. JULIAN, No. 48 East 20th St., New York. No acids, lime, or other injurious ingredients used. Hours, 10 to 3 daily.

One of the most attractive establishments in this city, is Clark's Restaurant on 23d Street, opposite the Fifth Ave. Hotel, formerly of Broadway, cor. 12th Street. It extends from 23d to 22nd St. In connection with it, there is a large Banquet Hall, also a Ball Room, and small Dining Rooms. Wedding Receptions, Dinners and private Balls may be given at this establishment. The Restaurant is open until midnight for the accommodation of theatre parties

THE NEW PLAY.
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The new drama, presented for the first time in America this season, has for its object the placing before the auditor of a series of realistic pictures of the struggles and sufferings of the poor. While its hero is of the gentry, all the other characters, save his and that of his father, are photographs of the humbler classes of a great, indeed of the greatest and most populous, city of Christendom, if not of the world. The work, therefore, has its uses, and its place in art—a place just as distinctive and just as honorable as that of "The Cotter's Saturday Night" in poesy, or the street pictures of Murillo in painting. The Spanish boy depopulating his garments under a Moorish portico is but the forerunner and type of the benumbed urchin who, in "The Lights o' London," begs to be sent to prison that he may get an honest meal, under the false pretence of being a thief; and Mr. Sims' "Philosopher Jack" is but Victor Hugo's "Gavroche" Saxonized and aged. If "The Lights o' London" be less picturesque than the "Two Orphans," it is simply because, as Dickens tells us in his preface to "Oliver Twist," even poverty which is delightful in the costumes of the past, loses its attractive colors in the dress of the present.

The aim of the author imperatively determined the scenes of his play; and they will be found to consist, not of the mysterious holes and corners of London where crime seeks its hiding places, but of those legal and illegal public localities and institutions where, in London as in New York, utter destitution tries to steal an hour's fitful forgetfulness in sleep. The cold parks, the shadows of the bridges, the casual wards of the asylums for the poor, and the finally almost inevitable police station.

The story of such a play, if it only possesses continuity and consecutiveness, is, of course, of minor importance. Its use is larger than that of a constructive literary puzzle, its chief endeavor being to interest the charity of the heart, rather than to merely entertain the analyses of the intellect.

It is this character in the play which determined its acceptance in this theatre. The Manager has spared neither trouble nor expense in the production of the work, and it is for the public to determine whether that trouble and that expense have been guided by a proper taste, and used by adequate skill.

The cast comprises no less than thirty-one speaking characters, and embraces every member of the Union Square Theatre Company except one. There are eleven different scenes in the play—all of which were designed and painted by Mr. Richard Marston, and are correct pictures of the localities they severally represent.

"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The way was long and weary,
But gallantly they strode.
A country lad and lassie,
Along the heavy road.
The night was dark and stormy.
But blithe of heart were they,
For shining in the distance
The lights of London lay!

O gleaming lamps of London, that gem of the City's crown,
What fortunes lie within you, O Lights of London Town.

With faces worn and weary,
That told of sorrow's load,
One day a man and woman
Crept down a country road.
They sought their native village,
Heart-broken from the fray;
Yet shining still behind them
The Lights of London lay.

O cruel lamps of London, if tears your light could drown,
Your victim's eyes would weep them, O Lights of London Town.

THE COMPANY.

The Union Square Theatre Company for the season of 1881-2 is substantially that of 1880-1. During the past season it has lost none of its regular members; and if it has been increased in numbers the manager believes that in their several spheres the new figures will not be found out of keeping with the general group. The Company now consists of—

Mr. C. R. Thorne, Jr.	Miss Sarah Jewett.
Mr. F. De Belleville.	Miss Maud Harrison.
Mr John Parselle.	Miss Eleanor Carey.
Mr. J. H. Stoddart.	Miss Ida Vernon.
Mr. Walden Ramsey.	Mrs. E. J. Phillips.
Mr. Owen Fawcett.	Miss Estelle Clayton.
Mr. Julian Magnus.	Miss Netta Guion.
Mr. J. W. Thorpe.	Miss Eloise Willis.
Mr. W. S. Quigley.	Miss Nellie Wetherell.

Little Eva French.

Mr. Richard Marston will remain the Scenic Artist, and Mr. Henry Tissington the Musical Director of the Company, while the Machinery and Properties will continue in charge of Mr. Winnie and Mr. Henry.

GRAND REVIVALS AT NIBLO'S THEATRE.

A SERIES of revivals of the successes of the Union Square Theatre will be inaugurated at Niblo's Theatre, on the 30th instant, by a production of the "Banker's Daughter." The series will probably also comprise "Rose Michel," "The False Friend," "The Geneva Cross," the "Celebrated Case," etc.

These admirable dramas will be cast by Mr. A M. Palmer, from a special company, which will include Mr. James O'Neill, Mr. Walden Ramsay, Mr. Owen Fawcett, Mr. M. Lingham, Mr. Mose Fiske, Mr. Julian Magnus, Miss Maud Granger, Miss Virginia Buchanan, Miss Netta Guion, Mr. James Dunn, etc. The scenery will be from the pencil of Mr. Richard Marston, and the original incidental music of Mr. Henry Tissington will be used with each play. The season will extend only over five weeks.

MISS CLARA MORRIS AS MERCY MERRICK.

Miss Clara Morris, who, last week commenced a series of Extra Matinees at the Union Square Theatre, has won for her performance of Mercy Merrick, in the "New Magdalen," the following

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The most suggestive and dramatic scenes in the play are those in the fourth and fifth acts; and throughout these scenes, Miss Morris performed with sustained vigor and spontaneous ease, and especially with a mastery of that secret, irresistible pathos which she, incomparably above all actresses of our time, knows so well how to use with genuine effect.—New York Times.

She lived the life suggested by the lines and words of the author, swayed the spectators, and made them suffer, exult, love, hate and be contrite with her. —Evening Telegram.

Clara Morris is Sui generis. She has absorbed the character and affiliated it so completely with her own personality, that her acting of Mercy Merrick attained the greatest pitch of which acting is capable.—Boston Herald.

WOMAN.—Of all other views a man may, in time, grow tired, but in the countenance of woman there is a variety which sets weariness at defiance. "The divine right of beauty," says Junius, "is the only divine right a man can acknowledge, and a pretty woman the only tyrant he is not authorized to resist."

IN the voyage of life every man is provided with a scull, with which to paddle his own canoe.

GAY.—For his second part of the Newgate pastoral, "Polly" (which, however, the Lord Chamberlain refused to license), Gay received by a subscription nearly thrice as much as the profit of the "Beggar's Opera." Soon after this he was taken into the house of the Duke and Duchess of Queensbury, with whom he passed the remainder of his life. "Sdre," as Lavinia Fenton (Duchess of Bolton) said of him, "of a clean shirt and a shoulder of mutton every day." What poet could want more?—Dutton Cooke.

A CLOWN'S TRICK.

Auriol, the celebrated French clown, whose death was recorded a few days ago in the columns of the Parisian press, was a man of remarkable courage, coolness, and ready wit. During one of his professional tours in Russia he got into a terrible scrape, from which, however, his presence of mind enabled him to extricate himself triumphantly. He had been engaged, while at St. Petersburg, to perform at a private entertainment given by a wealthy nobleman resident in the Basil Island. It was in the depth of winter, and the Neva was frozen hard. Auriol dressed himself in his clown's costume at his lodgings, wrapped himself up in furs, hired a sledge, and started for his destination, instructing his driver to take the short cut across the river. Probably tempted by Auriol's easily pelisse, the istvostchik, a tall, powerful fellow, pulled up suddenly when about half-way across, jumped down from his perch, and letting fall the reins, turned toward his fare with menacing gestures. A moment's hesitation would in all likelihood have cost Auriol his life; but he proved equal to the emergency. Throwing off his furs, and revealing himself to his would-be assailant, in the motley garb of his profession, he sprang out of the sledge and proceeded to execute some of his most amazing gambols on the ice. Paralyzed with terror by so terrific an apparition, the istvostchik made one ineffectual attempt to cross himself, staggered forward, and with an agonized cry of "The fiend himself!" fell flat and motionless upon his face. Without further loss of time Auriol slipped on his furs, picked up the reins, jumped into the sledge, and drove off, safe and sound, to fulfil his engagement. Next morning the istvostchik's corpse was found, stiff and stark, lying face downward on the frozen breast of the Neva.

HERE is the pithiest sermon ever preached: "Our ingress into life is naked and bare; our progress through life is trouble and care; our egress out of it we know not where; but doing well here, we shall do well there: I could not tell more by preaching a year."

TRULY and beautifully has it been said, that the veil which covers futurity has been woven by the hand of mercy.

IN the bottle, discontent seeks for comfort, cowardice for courage, and bashfulness for confidence.

UP to the death of the late Emperor Nicholas, Jews in Russia were not allowed to possess land, to give evidence in civil suits, to have synagogues, nor to inhabit the holy cities of Kiew and Moscow. They were obliged to wear a particular dress, and out of every Jewish family one child was always taken by the State, to be educated as a Christian at the parents cost.

THE NEW PLAY.

"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The new drama, presented for the first time in America this season, has for its object the placing before the auditor of a series of realistic pictures of the struggles and sufferings of the poor. While its hero is of the gentry, all the other characters, save his and that of his father, are photographs of the humbler classes of a great, indeed of the greatest and most populous, city of Christendom, if not of the world. The work, therefore, has its uses, and its place in art—a place just as distinctive and just as honorable as that of "The Cotter's Saturday Night" in poesy, or the street pictures of Murillo in painting. The Spanish boy depopulating his garments under a Moorish portico is but the forerunner and type of the benumbed urchin who, in "The Lights o' London," begs to be sent to prison that he may get an honest meal, under the false pretence of being a thief, and Mr. Sims' "Philosopher Jack" is but Victor Hugo's "Gavroche" Saxonized and aged. If "The Lights o' London" be less picturesque than the "Two Orphans," it is simply because, as Dickens tells us in his preface to "Oliver Twist," even poverty which is delightful in the costumes of the past, loses its attractive colors in the dress of the present.

The aim of the author imperatively determined the scenes of his play; and they will be found to consist, not of the mysterious holes and corners of London where crime seeks its hiding places, but of those legal and illegal public localities and institutions where, in London as in New York, utter destitution tries to steal an hour's fitful forgetfulness in sleep. The cold parks, the shadows of the bridges, the casual wards of the asylums for the poor, and the finally almost inevitable police station.

The story of such a play, if it only possesses continuity and consecutiveness, is, of course, of minor importance. Its use is larger than that of a constructive literary puzzle, its chief endeavor being to interest the charity of the heart, rather than to merely entertain the analyses of the intellect.

It is this character in the play which determined its acceptance in this theatre. The Manager has spared neither trouble nor expense in the production of the work, and it is for the public to determine whether that trouble and that expense have been guided by a proper taste, and used by adequate skill.

The cast comprises no less than thirty-one speaking characters, and embraces every member of the Union Square Theatre Company except one. There are eleven different scenes in the play—all of which were designed and painted by Mr. Richard Marston, and are correct pictures of the localities they severally represent.

"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The way was long and weary,
But gallantly they strode,
A country lad and lassie,
Along the heavy road.
The night was dark and stormy,
But blithe of heart were they,
For shining in the distance
The lights of London lay!

O gleaming lamps of London, that gem of the City's crown,
What fortunes lie within you, O Lights of London Town.

With faces worn and weary,
That told of sorrow's load,
One day a man and woman
Crept down a country road.
They sought their native village,
Heart-broken from the fray;
Yet shining still behind them
The Lights of London lay.

O cruel lamps of London, if tears your light could drown,
Your victim's eyes would weep them, O Lights of London Town.

THE COMPANY.

The Union Square Theatre Company for the season of 1881-2 is substantially that of 1880-1. During the past season it has lost none of its regular members; and if it has been increased in numbers the manager believes that in their several spheres the new figures will not be found out of keeping with the general group. The Company now consists of—

Mr. C. R. Thorne, Jr.	Miss Sarah Jewett.
Mr. F. De Belleville.	Miss Maud Harrison.
Mr John Parselle.	Miss Eleanor Carey.
Mr. J. H. Stoddart.	Miss Ida Vernon.
Mr. Walden Ramsey.	Mrs. E. J. Phillips.
Mr. Owen Fawcett.	Miss Estelle Clayton.
Mr. Julius Magnus.	Miss Nina Guion.
Mr. J. W. Thorpe.	Miss Eloise Willis.
Mr. W. S. Quigley.	Miss Nellie Wetherell.
	Little Eva French.

Mr. Richard Marston will remain the Scenic Artist, and Mr Henry Tissington the Musical Director of the Company, while the Machinery and Properties will continue in charge of Mr. Winnie and Mr. Henry.

THE REPERTOIRE, 1881-2.

Mr. Palmer is able to announce for the coming season an ample variety of new plays, illustrative of almost every school of modern dramatic composition, from the pathetic Melodrama now so successfully running in England, entitled to a High Comedy from the classic stage of the Theatre Francais, and a domestic American drama from the pen of Mr. A. R. Cazauran.

"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON,"

He has also in hand an original American play by one of the most distinguished jurists in our state, which he hopes will see the light before the close of the season. The play is aptly called "The Romance of a Villa." It is purely American in its character, its incidents and its moral; and, as a literary production, out-ranks any native work Mr. Palmer has yet presented to the public.

WHEN is a candle like a tombstone? When it is put up for a late husband.

THE art of living easily as to money is to pitch your scale of living one degree below your means. Comfort and enjoyment are more dependent upon easiness in the detail of expenditure than upon one degree's difference in the scale.

MEN are frequently like tea—the real strength and goodness is not properly drawn out of them till they have been for a short time in hot water.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY.—I scarcely ever knew a man who could not do another man's work much better than him, however decidedly that other man might have been fitted, by station, talent, or merit, to do the work the best of the two.

An exchange says, "the first American wine was made in Florida, in 1564." We don't know anything about that, but we'd like to bet a dollar it was all gone the next day.—Burlington Hawkeye.

WOMAN.—Of all other views a man may, in time, grow tired, but in the countenance of woman there is a variety which sets weariness at defiance. "The divine right of beauty," says Junius, "is the only divine right a man can acknowledge, and a pretty woman the only tyrant he is not authorized to resist."

THE USES OF ADVERSITY.

The path of sorrow, and that path alone,
Leads to the land where sorrow is unknown.

SIR THOMAS OVERBURY said of a man who boasted of his ancestry that he was like a potatoe—the best thing belonging to him was underground.

HOWARD METHOD of VOCAL TRAINING

Mr. Jno. Howard, whose name is high authority in musical circles, is meeting with great success in applying his method of vocal training. A private viewing of his correspondence shows that teachers of singing and elocution, many of them prominent principals of conservatories and seminaries, besides many amateurs, testify without reserve to their extraordinary advancement. We gather from these letters that Mr. Howard discards all treatment of "registers" or of "ground," or other artificial qualities, but aims to develope the natural or functional voice. This he secures by combatting all false muscular action by opposing movements of the vocal parts, removing all faults by the powerful corrective force of actual physical efforts, so clearly taught that a child can learn to make them. His pamphlets contain a great deal of valuable information, and those who desire to communicate with him may call or address him at 15 East 14th Street.

UP to the death of the late Emperor Nicholas, Jews in Russia were not allowed to possess land, to give evidence in civil suits, to have synagogues, nor to inhabit the holy cities of Kiew and Moscow. They were obliged to wear a particular dress, and out of every Jewish family one child was always taken by the State, to be educated as a Christian at the parents' cost.

"Those?" replied the young man, solemnly taking up one in his fingers, "those are beans." "There!" shouted the boy, turning to his sister, who was just coming in, "I knew you lied. You said he didn't know beans, and he does, too." The young man's stay was not what you call a prolonged one that evening.

THE NEW PLAY.
"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON."

The new drama, presented for the first time in America this evening, has for its object the placing before the auditor of a series of realistic pictures of the struggles and sufferings of the poor. While its hero is of the gentry, all the other characters, save his and that of his father, are photographs of the humbler classes of a great, indeed of the greatest and most populous, city of Christendom, if not of the world. The work, therefore, has its uses, and its place in art—a place just as distinctive and just as honorable as that of "The Cotter's Saturday Night" in poesy, or the street pictures of Murillo in painting. The Spanish boy depopulating his garments under a Moorish portico is but the forerunner and type of the benumbed urchin who, in "The Lights o' London," begs to be sent to prison that he may get an honest meal, under the false pretence of being a thief; and Mr. Sims' "Philosopher Jack" is but Victor Hugo's "Gavroche" Saxonized and aged. If "The Lights o' London" be less picturesque than the "Two Orphans," it is simply because, as Dickens tells us in his preface to "Oliver Twist," even poverty which is delightful in the costumes of the past, loses its attractive colors in the dress of the present.

The aim of the author imperatively determined the scenes of his play; and they will be found to consist, not of the mysterious holes and corners of London where crime seeks its hiding places, but of those legal and illegal public localities and institutions where, in London as in New York, utter destitution tries to steal an hour's fitful forgetfulness in sleep. The cold parks, the shadows of the bridges, the casual wards of the asylums for the poor, and the finally almost inevitable police station.

The story of such a play, if it only possesses continuity and consecutiveness, is, of course, of minor importance. Its use is larger than that of a constructive literary puzzle, its chief endeavor being to interest the charity of the heart, rather than to merely entertain the analyses of the intellect.

It is this character in the play which determined its acceptance in this theatre. The Manager has spared neither trouble nor expense in the production of the work, and it is for the public to determine whether that trouble and that expense have been guided by a proper taste, and used by adequate skill.

The cast comprises no less than thirty-one speaking characters, and embraces every member of the Union Square Theatre Company except one. There are eleven different scenes in the play—all of which were designed and painted by Mr. Richard Marston, and are correct pictures of the localities they severally represent.

But gallantly they strode,
A country lad and lassie,

THE REPERTOIRE, 1881–2.

Mr. Palmer is able to announce for the coming season an ample variety of new plays, illustrative of almost every school of modern dramatic composition, from the pathetic Melodrama now so successfully running in England, entitled to a High Comedy from the classic stage of the Theatre Francais, and a domestic American drama from the pen of Mr. A. R. Cazauran.

"THE LIGHTS O' LONDON,"

He has also in hand an original American play by one of the most distinguished jurists in our state, which he hopes will see the light before the close of the season. The play is aptly called "The Romance of a Villa." It is purely American in its character, its incidents and its moral; and, as a literary production, out-ranks any native work Mr. Palmer has yet presented to the public.

WHEN is a candle like a tombstone? When it is put up for a late husband.

THE art of living easily as to money is to pitch your scale of living one degree below your means. Comfort and enjoyment are more dependent upon easiness in the detail of expenditure than upon one degree's difference in the scale.

MEN are frequently like tea—the real strength and goodness is not properly drawn out of them till they have been for a short time in hot water.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY.—I scarcely ever knew a man who could not do another man's work much better than him, however decidedly that other man might have been fitted, by station, talent, or merit, to do the work the best of the two.

AN exchange says, "the first American wine was made in Florida, in 1564." We don't know anything about that, but we'd like to bet a dollar it was all gone the next day.—Burlington Hawkeye.

WOMAN.—Of all other views a man may, in time, grow tired, but in the countenance of woman there is a variety which sets weariness at defiance. "The divine right of beauty," says Junius, "is the only divine right a man can acknowledge, and a pretty woman the only tyrant he is not authorized to resist."

HOWARD METHOD of VOCAL TRAINING

Mr. Jno. Howard, whose name is high authority in musical circles, is meeting with great success in applying his method of vocal training. A private viewing of his correspondence shows that teachers of singing and elocution, many of them prominent principals of conservatories and seminaries, besides many amateurs, testify without reserve to their extraordinary advancement. We gather from these letters that Mr. Howard discards all treatment of "registers" or of "postured" or other artificial qualities, but aims to develope the natural or functional voice. This he secures by combatting all false muscular action by opposing movements of the vocal parts, removing all faults by the powerful corrective force of actual physical efforts, so clearly taught that a child can learn to make them. His pamphlets contain a great deal of valuable information, and those who desire to communicate with him may call or address him at 15 East 14th Street.

THE NEW PLAY.

"Raymonde," a new adaptation of the "Monsieur Alphonse" of Dumas, fils, will be presented every evening this week. With these performances the 10th regular season of the Union Square Theatre will close. The cast of this peculiar play will include Miss Clara Morris, Mr. James O'Neill, Miss Effie Germon, Mr. F. de Belleville, Mr. W. J. Lemoyne, Mr. T. E. Morris, and little Eva French. This version of "M. Alphonse" was made in California, and produced at Baldwin's Theatre with great success. The cast there included as here, Miss Clara Morris in the title role, and Mr. James O'Neill in that of the Commander. The play is in three acts, as in the original French; but the Californian adopter has elaborated the minor characters with evident care, and has increased the part of Raymonde.

The supplementary season will be devoted to the Vokes Family, who, after an absence of several years, return to the stage of their first triumphs in America.

The regular Boston season of the Union Square Theatre Company will commence Monday, May 2d, at the Park Theatre, with the presentation of "Felicia."

A. DELPIT, the author of the "Fils de Coralie," is, by birth, an American, having been born in New Orleans. He is one of the most promising young writers of France, and seems to be marching straight to a fauteuil at the Academy.

Notwithstanding Dickens' preface to "Oliver Twist," Nancy Sykes gives way on the stage of the present to "Forget-Me-Nots" and "Felicias."

ROSE EYTINGE, the Mme. Dumont in "Felicia"; or, Woman's Love," has not appeared on the stage of the Union Square Theatre since she played "Rose Michel" five years ago.

THE VOKES RETURN.

The celebrated Vokes Family, so popular in New York a few years ago, have returned to the United States, and have made their appearance at the Globe Theatre, in Boston, under the management of Mr. John Stetson

We append extracts from the comments of the Boston papers upon their performance. It will be seen that the new member of the company, Miss Bessie Sauson, who has replaced Rosina Vokes, has already made herself a great favorite with the public:

Boston Herald.

"The Vokes Family return to this country under the most favorable circumstances, and resume with more than their old vigor their very successful career. The old-time life and sparkle of the entertainment babbled up most advantageously. The new-comer, Miss Bessie Sauson, was altogether successful. She has a bright face and vivacious manner; she had a hard task before her, coming in comparison with Miss Rosina, whom she succeeded, but she faced the ordeal bravely and with complete success. The performance roused the audience to old-time enthusiasm, encores were very frequent, and it could not be doubted that this talented company has resumed its old place in the regard of Boston play-goers."

Advertiser.

"A crowded and enthusiastic audience greeted the Vokes Family last night. Certainly no heartier reception could have been accorded or wished, and no higher appreciation could be shown than continuous laughter and applause for three hours. "The Belle of the Kitchen" is the same hilarious extravaganza, bubbling over with mirth and frolic as when first produced here years ago. There may possibly have been a little new business introduced, but if so it was lost sight of last night in the uproarious merriment. Miss Rosina's place is filled by Miss Bessie Sauson, and, to say that the substitution is not unacceptable, is perhaps according as high praise as could be given. The rippling laughis musical, is as hearty and spontaneous, and contagious, and there is the same perfect abandon as in the days of Miss Rosina. The piece is nonsensical and whimsical of course, and not excessively intellectual, but it justifies and compels honest, decent, hearty, abundant mirth, and is therefore to be commended."

Traveller.

"The Vokes present the liveliest kind of fun without the slightest attempt toward broadness and deserve the hearty recognition which they have received in Boston."

Transcript:

"The Vokes were welcomed back to Boston last night by an audience worthy of them both in numbers and character. "The Belles of the Kitchen" is the same delicious fooling as when it first captivated the town half a dozen years ago. The entire company work as pat as ever into the inimitable patchwork of the Vokes' entertainment, which remains the one refreshing oasis in the arid waste of debased extravaganza and burlesque.

Journal:

"A large audience was present last evening to welcome the Vokes Family, —the house being crowded literally to overflowing—in the well-remembered extravaganza 'The Belles of the Kitchen.' The five members of the company exerted themselves so well that no opportunity was given the audience to reflect that they had witnessed the same comical situations, laughed at the same jokes, and enjoyed the same music before, the piece having lost none of its freshness.

Post:

"The Belles of the Kitchen' was the attraction last evening, and it was as mirth-provoking as ever. New songs have been introduced and new business surprises the spectators at intervals, and one laughs until the buttons fly at the queer conceits and curious antics."

The Vokes will appear in this house Monday evening, May 2d.

Letters left at the Box Office of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

QUESTION for actors—Can a man be said to work when he plays?

WHY is the top of a bald man's head like the North Pole?—Because it is a bare place.

LIGHT wines sometimes make a heavy head.

OPPOSITE.—A gentleman in want of a house for the summer months in a little town on the west coast of Ireland, found a commodious residence close to the beach. On consulting the house-agent's board he read: "House to let, apply opposite." "Opposite?" cried he, "Why, the house faces the sea!" On making inquiry he found that the house belonged to a New Yorker, who was open to receive offers.

THE superintendent of a Sunday school in the country is an undertaker, and there is some talk of asking him to resign, not only because he makes the children sing "I would not live always" regular every Sunday, but because on the back of the reward cards that are given to good children he has printed a gilt coffin with a list of his rates for funerals.

Miss Emily R. Spader, the talented young artist and soprano of Dr. Chapin's Church, will have a benefit concert at Steinway Hall, April 29th, prior to her departure for Europe. Tickets, with reserved seats, $1; to be had at the following Music Stores: Schirmer's, 701 Broadway; Schuberth's, 23 Union Square; Ditson's, 843 Broadway; Pond's 25 Union Square.

ANOTHER NEW (K)NIGHT—To-morrow evening.

REVENGE.—"Thee you will not lend me your velocipede, hey?" inquired one boy of another. "No, I will not." "Very well, then, the next time our chimney catches fire you shan't come into our back yard sad holler."

THE LAST BULL.—A gentleman observing a servant girl, who was left-handed, placing the knives and forks on the dinner table in the same awkward position, remarked to her that she was laying them left-handed. "Oh, indade!" said she, "so I have. Be plonsed, sir, to help me turn the table round!"

On Monday, April 25th, a short season of opera will commence at the Academy of Music, lasting only two weeks. The company is a very strong one, and has just finished a season of four months in New Orleans, the most critical city in the United States, with great success, both financially as well as in an artistic sense. The repertoire is a grand one, comprising such operas as "The Huguenots," "Jewess," "Africaine," "Aida," "Romeo et Juliette," "Robert le Diable," "Paul et Virginia," "Faust," (with the grand ballet), "Rigoletto," etc., etc.

The sale of seats will commence on Monday, April 18th, at box office of the Academy of Music, under the direction of Mr. Perry.

A LIKENESS.—The French tramp resembles his American cousin. Met with the response that there was nothing for him to do, he answered, "Oh, Madame, if you only knew how little work would occupy me."

The printing press is said to make a good impression wherever it goes.

SHORT COURTSHIP.—It takes but one letter to make Mary marry.

PET NAMES.—A young citizen calls his sweetheart Revenge, because she is sweet. And the young married man opposite calls his mother-in-law Delay because she is dangerous.

TREBLE X.—A gentleman in addressing the charming lady X, who had just remarried in Paris for the third time, said, reproachfully, "You do not come to London any longer?" "Oh, yes," she replied, in a most natural manner, always pass my widowhoods there."

ONE TOO MANY FOR HIM.—A Yankee woman recently married a Chinese laundryman, and in three days thereafter the unhappy Celestial appeared at a barber's shop and ordered his pigtail to be cut off, saying, in explanation: "Too muchee yank."

NO ONE is more profoundly sad than he who laughs too much.

FALSE PROVERB.—Speaking of the sentiment, "She who rocks the cradle rules the world," a Southern paper says: "In this section she is generally a colored girl, and we don't believe a word of it."

A SWINDLE.—A young man married a deaf and dumb girl, but soon afterwards she recovered both speech and hearing, and he has applied for a divorce. He says it is an outrageous swindle

REGARD FOR HIS WORD.—The most astonishing instance of a man's regard for his word was recently given by a man who killed his wife, whom he did not like. When asked why he didn't go off and leave her instead of killing her, he replied, jocosely, that he had promised on the wedding-day to live with her until death should part them, and that he wasn't the man to break his word.

EXTRAORDINARY FACT.—A couple lived two weeks on whiskey and bread. She ate the bread, and he drank the whiskey.

The Thurbers claim that they changed the imitation "Snide of the Kitchen" as soon as they bought it, so that it was dissimilar to SAPOLIO. The sworn evidence shows that they did not do so, "because it would be voluntarily admitting the fraud." They waited until convicted by the Supreme Court, which ordered them to change its appearance at once. They obeyed. SAPOLIO, standing upon its recognized merits as the best cleaning and scouring soap in the market, is used by all housekeepers.

The following letter has been received by Mr. Gayler in reference to the revival of "The Connie Soogah:"

NEW YORK, April 5, 1881.

MY DEAR MR. GAYLER:

I take much pleasure in sending to you for your exclusive use, the prompt copy of "The Connie Soogah," as written by you and performed by Mr. Williams and myself for several seasons with unvarying success in America, England, Ireland and Scotland.

I have received many applications for the use of "The Connie Soogah," which I have declined, as I felt that if ever revived, it should be under the direction of its author. With best wishes for your success, I remain yours sincerely.

A FLORAL swell—The dandelion.

ABSENT MINDED.—We often hear cases of absent-mindedness spoken of but here is one that takes the cake. A man on one of our railways takes out his knife to eat an apple and after finishing, he opened the window, threw the knife out, and calmly put the apple-core in his pocket, and leaned back in the seat for a quiet think. He did not discover his mishap until some time afterwards, when he attempted to pare his finger-nails.

DO NOT WAIT.—Nothing is more trying to the house mistress in any grade of life than to "wait dinner" for the convenience of tardy guests, to say nothing of the discomfort inflicted on other visitors. The busy people of the world are the punctual people; the man whose every moment is worth money to himself and to others may manage to bank time. It is, indeed, hard that such persons as these should be compelled to waste a long time in waiting dinner for the arrival of some man or woman whose unpunctuality is merely the result of an impertinent want of forethought. The proper mode of treating such unpunctual persons would be to ignore them altogether. If, when the dinner hour arrived, dinner was served, and the dawdlers were compelled by their late arrival either to go without dinner or to sit down in the middle of the feast—no going back to earlier dishes being allowed—this evil of an impertinent lateness would be soon found to be remedied. "So sorry to be late," would be met by "So sorry that we could not wait, but glad to see you even at this stage." We hope that the ladies will soon take this matter fairly into their hands, and try to put down the habit of impertinent unpunctuality which is really nothing less than a social evil.

A WORD ON FLOWERS.—Flower culture is the poetry of horticulture. All pools are fond of flowers, and the fair sex take to them as naturally as to sentiment. But however fond one may be of beautiful blossoms, the admiration of them and their actual cultivation are two different things. Those who have educated themselves to the culture of flowers know the difficulty they have often experienced in getting them to germinate; yet florists find no trouble, even with the most delicate. They know from education and experience, just the conditions necessary to germination and growth. However well read the amateur may be, he is only practice and experience that can perfect one in this work. A rule especially applicable to seeds is that they should be sown no deeper than four times their diameter; thus it will be seen that such minute seeds as calceolaria, cineraria, poppy, &c., should be only just covered. But, then, if so, the sun is so hot at times it will not do to sow the seed of such tender plants, as it is difficult to get the requisite moisture. To insure this, sow, and sift the least possible soil over them, water from a fine rose waterpot, and then cover with moss, or even a board until they germinate. Afterwards shade them until they get some strength.

SAGEY.—Never tell the boys that it is a waste of time to play marbles. Who knows what advantage that accuracy of aim and steadiness of nerve may be when they get older and play billiards?

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

THE New York Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force and after frequent consultations, reached the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Knox, leaving it to his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from nine different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled. —From December Trade Journal.

The Ushers of this Theatre are engaged and paid by this Management to serve its patrons in a polite, respectful and gentlemanly manner, and they are not allowed, under any circumstances, to applaud performances upon this stage. Members of the audience will oblige the Management by reporting to the office any violation of this rule.

Felicia; or, Woman's Love.

The play now presented at this Theatre is a dramatization of A. Delpit's novel, "Le Fils de Coralie." It was made for this Theatre by Mr. A. R. Cazaurau. It is in four acts; and its cast comprises nine characters, selected from the leading artists of the Union Square Theatre Company. The scenery is from the pencil of Mr. Richard Marston. The action of the drama, following that of the novel, differs little from that of the play which the original author himself made from his own narrative. The chief difference is to be found in the milieu made for the leading female character by the American dramatist, in the structure of the last act, and in the more vivid the new status given to "Coralie" under her new name, "Felicia." As usual, the Manager can only say that his presentation of the piece best evinces his own opinion of its merits. He can only hope the public will endorse that opinion.

ON TRIAL.—A client is never certain about a lawyer, and generally takes him on trial.

A. DELPIT, the author of the "Fils de Coralie," is, by birth, an American, having been born in New Orleans. He is one of the most promising young writers of France, and seems to be marching straight to a fauteuil at the Academy.

Notwithstanding Dickens' preface to "Oliver Twist," Nancy Sykes gives way on the stage of the present to "Forget-Me-Nots" and "Felicias."

The Boston engagement of the Union Square Theatre Company will commence this season at the Park Theatre May 2d.

Rose Eytinge, the Mme. Dumont in "Felicia; or, Woman's Love," has not appeared on the stage of the Union Square Theatre since she played "Rose Michel" five years ago.

The season of Italian Opera at the Academy of Music, by Mr. Mapleson, has been, so far, (notwithstanding it is during Lent), the most successful ever given in New York. The public seem to demand the old familiar operas, as shown by the box office receipts. But to satisfy everybody, Col. Mapleson has, and will bring out, novelties in the way of such operas as "Il Barbiere Di Siviglia," "Il Flauto Magico," "Mignon," "Lohengrin," and "Roberto." The musical public must bear in mind that there remains two more weeks of the, only too short, season of opera.

Letters left at the Box Office of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

were married. said he, "she used to say by-e-bye so sweetly as I went down the steps!" "And what does she say now?" asked his friend. "Oh, just the same—buy, buy." "Oh, I see; she only exercises a different spell over you."

SCIENCE is too lofty for measurement by the yard of utility; too inestimable for expression by a money standard These grovelling ideas of the objects of science, which constantly jar in its intercourse with the world, ought to find no response in the breast of any devotee who would draw inspiration from its shrine.

"I DIDN'T think you would be so hard with me," as the shark said when he bit the anchor.

BEER AND BOOTBLACKS.—The little busy bee and the little bootblack emulate each other in improving the "shining hour."

THE doctor thinks the lawyer get his living by plunder, while the lawyer thinks the doctor gets his by pill-age.

THE WIDOW'S MIGHT.—A man broke into the house of a widow. She pitched him out of doors. A striking evidence of the power of the widow's might.

A CELTIC CONUNDRUM.—Why is a storm, when it is clearing up, like a castigation? Sure, an' isn't it abating.

HOW OBTAINED.—A person looking at some skeletons the other day asked a young doctor present where he got them. He replied "We raised them."

CURRAN was once asked by one of his brother counsellors, "Do you see anything ridiculous in this wig?" "Nothing but the head," was the reply.

RASHER.—A man who commits suicide takes a rash step; but he who eats bacon for breakfast takes a rasher.

CONSCIENCE AN AVENGER.—Conscience is an avenger. It stands at its post ready to vindicate the majesty of broken law; it rebukes sin with stern voice, and passes its sentence on the transgressor; it is man's best friend or his dreadful enemy. There is a torture of regret felt for evil deeds, neglected duties, corrupted minds, and wasted lives, which, in depth and keenness, surpasses all other suffering. It haunts a man everywhere. It is a flame kindled within his soul, which inwardly torments and consumes him. It is an eternal fact that he cannot reject the guardian care of conscience, or escape the pains of its avenging lash. It is a gnawing worm, which secretly preys on his vitals. Though it be sleeping, though we may sin and seem to prosper, and be absorbed in the engrossing excitements of the world, despise demands upon us until we think we have conquered conscience, it will come and have its debt of us, and it will claim its prerogative; it will rake over the ashes of our indifference, and rekindle the extinguished fire. In some season of thoughtfulness, in some day of disappointment and trouble, when our vanities and pride are thrown down—in some restless hour, when sleep flies from the pillow, when gain and ambition must fail to excite and satisfy the heart, that outraged friend will rise up and do its office, and lift its avenging hand.

WHY is the top of a bald man's head like the North Pole?—Because it is a bare place.

LIGHT wines sometimes make a heavy head.

CAN you spell consent in three letters?—Y-o-u.

OPPOSITE.—A gentleman in want of a house for the summer months in a little town on the west coast of Ireland, found a commodious residence close to the beach. On consulting the housesgent's board he read: "House to be let, apply opposite." "Opposite?" cried he, "Why, the house faces the sea!" On making inquiry he found that the house belonged to a New Yorker, who was open to receive offers.

WHAT is sloth?—it's snow matter.

A PATIENT waiter.—a young physician.

THE superintendent of a Sunday school in the country is an undertaker, and there is some talk of asking him to resign, not only because he makes the children sing "I would not live always" regular every Sunday, but because on the back of the reward cards that are given to good children he has print-d a gilt coffin with a list of his rates for funerals.

A PLUCKY PAT.—At the close of one of the battles in the Peninsula war, an officer, seeing an Irish private of his regiment bringing in three French prisoners, asked him how he had managed, unassisted, to make such a capture. "Be jabers, yer honor," replied the man, proudly, "I surrounded them!"

A GENTLE HINT.—"You may come again next Sunday evening, Horace dear, but——" and she hesitated. "What is it, darling? Have I given you pain?" he asked anxiously. "You didn't mean to, I'm sure," she responded, "but next time don't wear one of those collars with the points turned outwards: they scratch so."

DOUBLE X.—A gentleman in addressing the charming lady X, who had just remarried in Paris for the third time, said, reproachfully.. "You do not come to London any longer?" "Oh, yes," she replied, in a most natural manner, "I always pass my widowhoods there."

ENDURANCE.—A small boy was secu to stand in front of a hand organ for twenty minutes the other day while the operator was at work upon it, without manifesting the least evidence of fatigue. It is wonderful what a small boy can endure when he makes up his mind to it.

REGARD FOR HIS WORD.—The most astonishing instance of a man's regard for his word was recently given by a man who killed his wife, whom he did not like. THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend, as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing out here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the sententious answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," gruffly replied the sleepy philosopher.

A MOURNER.—A man remarked to a friend of his the day after the funeral of his wife, that he never saw a man take anything so hard, and weep so bitterly, as he had at the house. The mourner responded: "Oh, pshaw! you'd oughter a seen me at the grave!"

CONVENIENT MEMORY.—There was an actor married in Paris the other day, whose name was M. Jaurequiscbeabidhere. There's a mouthful for you. It reminds one of the story of a French princess, the Princess de Moon, who married a Hungarian general with a frightfully long and unpronounceable name. When she went shopping she used to say to the shop-keeper, in giving her address, "I was (née) born Princess de Leon, but as to my married name, I never could learn it. Ask my servant, and he will tell you what it is."

A FLORAL swell—The dandelion.

ABSENT MINDED.—We often hear cases of absent-mindedness spoken of, but here is one that takes the cake: A man on one of our railways takes out his knife to eat an apple and after finishing, he opened the window, threw the knife out, and calmly put the apple-core in his pocket, and leaned back in the seat for a quiet think. He did not discover his mishap until some time afterwards, when he attempted to pare his finger-nails.

A MAN made application recently for insurance on a building situate in a village where there was no fire engine. In answer to the question, "What are the facilities for extinguishing fires?" he wrote, "It rains sometimes."

DO NOT WAIT.—Nothing is more trying to the house mistress in any grade of life than to "wait dinner" for the convenience of tardy guests, to say nothing of the discomfort inflicted on other visitors. The busy people of the world are the punctual people; the man whose every moment is worth money to himself and to others always manages to be in time. It is, indeed, hard that such persons as these should be compelled to waste a long time in walking dinner for the arrival of some man or woman whose unpunctuality is merely the result of an impertinent want of forethought. The proper mode of treating such unpunctual persons would be to ignore them altogether. If, when the dinner hour arrived, dinner was served, and the dawdlers were compelled by their late arrival either to go without dinner or to sit down in the middle of the feast—no going back to earlier dishes being allowed—this evil of an impertinent lateness would be soon found to be remedied. "So sorry to be late," would be met by "So sorry that we could not wait, but glad to see you even at this stage." We hope that the ladies will soon take this matter into their own hands, and try to put down the habit of impertinent unpunctuality which is really nothing less than a social evil.

A WORD ON FLOWERS.—Flower culture is the poetry of horticulture. All poets are fond of flowers, and the fair sex take to them as naturally as to sentiment. But however fond one may be of beautiful blossoms, the admiration of them and their actual cultivation are two different things. Those who have educated themselves to the culture of flowers know the difficulty they have often experienced in getting them to germinate; yet florists have no trouble, even with the most delicate. They know from education and experience, just the conditions necessary to germination and growth. However well read the amateur may be, it is only practice and experience that can perfect one in this work. A rule especially applicable to seeds is that they should be sown no deeper than four times their diameter; thus they will be seen that such minute seeds as calceolaris, cineraria, poppy, &c., should be only just covered. But, the, if so, the sun is so hot at times it will not do to sow the seed of such tender plants, as it is difficult to get the requisite moisture to the soil over them, water from a fine rose waterpot, and then cover with moss, or even a board until they germinate. Afterwards shade them until they get some strength.

AN OUNCE ONLY.—An old Highlander rather fond of his toddy was ordered by his physician during a temporary illness not to exceed one ounce of a bottle daily. The old gentleman was dubious about the amount, and asked his son, a schoolboy, how much an ounce was. "Sixteen drachms," was the reply. "Sixteen drams! An excellent doctor!" replied the delighted Highlander. "Run and tell Donald M'Tavish and Big John to come down the nicht."

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

The New York Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force and after frequent consultation, resolved the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Knox, leaving it to his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from nine different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled. —From The Leather Trades Journal.

DIAMOND CUT DIAMOND.—Mrs. Mccarthy: "Faith, and I don't want the things at all at all, Biddy O'Brady, though it's yourself will your plaint tongue, I'd rather have than anyone else to stain me." "McCarthy, sir" sure I don't know anyone else in the wide world I'd be half so pleazed to chate."

VERY BIG SNAKE.—An Indian came to a certain agent in the northern part of Iowa to procure some whiskey for a younger warrior who had been bitten by a rattlesnake. "Four quarts!" replied the agent, with surprise; "as much as that?" "Yes," replied the Indian, "four quarts—snake very big."

A CHALLENGE.—An anatomical observer asserted a few days ago that there were 49,881 feathers on the wings of a butterfly. "I don't believe it," said the hearer. "Then count them for yourself," was the quick reply.

The Ushers of this Theatre are engaged and paid by the Management to serve its patrons in a polite, respectful and gentlemanly manner, and they are not allowed, under any circumstances, to applaud performances upon this stage. Members of the audience will oblige the Management by reporting to the office any violation of this rule.

Felicia; or, Woman's Love.

The play now presented at this Theatre is a dramatization of A. Delpit's novel, "Le Fils de Coralie." It was made for this Theatre by Mr. A. R. Cazauran. It is in four acts; and its cast comprises nine characters, selected from the leading artists of the Union Square Theatre Company. The scenery is from the pencil of Mr. Richard Marston. The action of the drama, following that of the novel, differs little from that of the play which the original author himself made from his own narrative. The chief difference is to be found in the milieu made for the leading female character by the American dramatist, in the structure of the last act, and in the many portions of the dialogue that develop the new status given to "Coralie" under her new name, "Felicia." As usual, the Manager can only say that his presentation of the piece best evinces his own opinion of its merits. He can only hope the public will endorse that opinion.

Mr. Julian Magnus will play Thurler in "Daniel Rochat" in the Philadelphia cast of the piece.

DANIEL ROCHAT IN PHILADELPHIA.—Sardon's admirable work, "Daniel Rochat," will be played at the Chestnut Street Theatre, in Philadelphia, the week of the 14th proximo by a strong cast, comprising many artists from the Union Square Theatre.—Mr. Whiting, Mr. Lemoyne, Mr. Ramsay, Mr. Collins, Mr. Morris, Miss Maud Harrison, Miss Eleanor Carey, Miss Florence White, Miss Nettie Guion. The original scenery, painted for the work here by Mr. Marston, will also be used in this representation.

A. DELPIT, the author of the "Fils de Coralie," is, by birth, an American, having been born in New Orleans. He is one of the most promising young writers of France, and seems to be marching straight to a fauteuil at the Academy.

Notwithstanding Dickens' preface to "Oliver Twist," Nancy Sykes gives way on the stage of the present to "Forget-Me-Nots" and "Felicias."

The Boston engagement of the Union Square Theatre Company will commence this season at the Park Theatre May 2d.

Rose Eytinge, the Mme. Dumont in "Felicia; or, Woman's Love," has not appeared on the stage of the Union Square Theatre since she played "Rose Michel" five years ago.

The season of Italian Opera at the Academy of Music, by Mr. Mapleson, has been so far, notwithstanding it is during Lent, the most successful ever given in New York. The public seem to demand the old familiar operas, as shown by the box office receipts. But to satisfy everybody, Col. Mapleson has, and will bring out, novelties in the way of such operas as "Il Barbiere," "Di Sevigila," "Il Flauto Magico," "Mignon," "Lohengrin," and "Robcrto." The musical public must bear in mind that there remains three more weeks of the, only too short, season of opera.

WHY is a doctor better taken care of than his patients?—Because, when he goes to bed somebody is sure to rap him up.

FIT TO DIE.—keetor: "Those pigs of yours are in fine condition, Jarvis."—Jarvis. "Yes, sur, they be. Ah, sur, if we was all on us on'y as fit to die as them are, we'd do."

MOST men love little women, and little women love most men.

Letters left at the Box Office of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

VILE PUN.—In Spain at a dinner party the oldest lady is always seated first. In other words, she is the senior eater of the room.

SILENCE is not always golden. The oyster is continually getting into broils and stews, and he is quiet enough.

SNORING is now politely described as indulging in sheet music.

WHY are actors like Arabs?—Because, previous to taking the road, they invariably look to their dates.

WHEN is a mother a father?—When she's a sigher.

YOUNG MEN should take pattern by pianos—be square, upright, grand.

NO CONSOLATION.—The man who comes to the station two minutes behind time, and sees the train scudding out at the other end, derives no satisfaction from the proverb, "Better late than never."

POLICEMAN.—"Now then, move on. There's nothing the matter here."—Sarcastic Boy: "Of course there isn't. If there was, you wouldn't be here!"

NOT QUITE.—A woman being told that some tables in the Russian Department to the French Exhibition were made of Malachite, exclaimed, "My goodness! I thought Malachite was one of the prophets."

A BOY'S FIRST BET.—Alpha-bet.

PLAIN BUT KIND.—A devoted wife will always speak plainly, though kindly, to her husband. Here is a case in point: "When I die," said a married man, "I want to go where there is no snow to shovel." His wife said that she presumed that he would.

TALL TALK.—A Yankee lawyer, who wanted a postponement, appealed to the judge to "let the broad axe of justice be swung by the hand of mercy." It was swung.

OLD bells can be made as good as new. Old Belles can't.

INDUSTRIOUS.—Boasting of her industrious habits, an Irish housemaid said she rose at four, made her fire, put on the kettle, prepared the breakfast, and made all the beds before anyone was up in the house.

AT THE AQUARIUM.—Juvenile Physiologist: "And was that where the poor whale lived, papa? Did he blubber much before he died, papa?"

WHEN Apollo dipped the god Pan into the sea, what did he come out?—A dripping Pan.

LETTER CARRIER.—"I won't carry this child another step," said a postman to his wife. "Then give it to me," she replied. He letter-carrier her own baby after that.

THOUGHTLESS.—A new song is called "Always Keep a Smile for Mother." Some young men will drink every drop that is in the bottle without giving a thought to their parents.

RATHER COOL.—A lady witness in a scandal case declined to answer a question. The counsel pressed her. "Why will you not answer?" he asked at last, in despair. "Because it is not fit to tell decent people." "Well, then," said the lawyer, with impenetrable calmness, "step up and whisper it to the judge."

NOT MUCH OF A DEFENCE.—The mother-in-law finds a defender in the San Francisco Mail, which says: "If old Adam had had a mother-in-law to look after him and his wife, it is more than probable that to this very day we might have been able to caper about in the light and airy costume of our first parents."

DUBIOUS COMPLIMENT.—A barber who was measuring a lawyer for a wig, exclaimed: "Why, how long your head is!" "Yes," said the legal gentleman, much pleased, "we lawyers must have long heads." A moment later the barber exclaimed: "Why, your head's as thick as it is long!" The lawyer didn't respond that time.

THE LAST BULL.—A gentleman observing a servant girl, who was left-handed, placing the knives and forks on the dinner table in the same awkward position, remarked to her that she was laying them left handed. "Oh, indade!" said she, "so I have. Be pleased, sir, to help me turn the table round!"

"A SOFT ANSWER," ETC.—Nervous Old Gentleman to Watchmaker: "No, none of them will do. I want a watch that won't go tick! tack! tick! tack! all night long. I hate to hear a watch tick; it keeps me awake." Watchmaker. "Ah! I see, sir. You want one of the silent watches of the night. I don't keep 'em."

ANSWERING THE BELLE.—A beautiful girl said to a wit: "Why don't you talk smart things to me? You're as dull as a footman when in my company. Don't you know anything to say to me?" "Oh," he replied, gazing upon her with admiration, "even a footman can always answer the belle."

VERY CARELESS.—It was very careless, leaving the parrot in the parlor on Sunday evening; but she never thought anything about it until Monday morning, when he roused the whole house by making a smacking noise and crying, "Darling Susie! darling Susie!" He kept it up all day, too, and the old folks are much interested in the case.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.—A lady who was in the habit of spending much of her time in the society of her neighbors, happened one day to be taken suddenly ill, and sent her husband in great haste for the physician. THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend, as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing out here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the sentention answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," gruffly replied the sleepy philosopher.

EXAMPLE.—What a beautiful example of simplicity in dress is shown some of the followers of fashion by that domestic animal, the cat, which rises in the morning, washes its face with its right hand, gives its tail three jerks, and is ready dressed for the day!

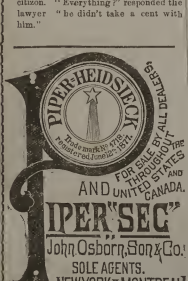
HOW IT IS MANAGED.—French lady to family physician: "Doctor, I want my husband to take me to Nice for the winter. Now, what is the matter with me?"

BEFORE AND AFTER.—"Before we were married," said he, "she used to say by-by-se so sweetly as I went down the steps!" "And what does she say now?" asked his friend. "Oh, just the same—buy, buy." "Oh, I see; she only exercises a different spell over you."

THE REASON.—"I tell you, sir," said a dogmatic moralist, "that the times is surely coming when stealing will be a thing of the past." "How so?" asked a bystander. "Because there will be nothing left to steal," answered the dogmatic moralist.

ONE OR THE OTHER.—A young man at a party called the attention of his bachelor uncle to a young lady he fancied, and said, "How charmingly native she is, uncle?" "Knave!" growled the old man, gazing at her through his spectacles; "I should say more fool!"

"How much did he leave?" said a lady, on learning the death of a wealthy citizen. "Everything?" responded the lawyer "he didn't take a cent with him."



ORDERLY HABITS.—It would not be easy to detail in all its force the misery which is caused by the early neglect of orderly habits. It is a source not only of frightful unhappiness in families, but of great public vice; for after all, the world is made up of those whose characters have been formed for good or for evil by the early training and example of mothers.

CENSURE of a man's self is generally oblique praise; it is in order to show how much he can spare.—Dr. Johnson.

SCIENCE is too lofty for measurement by the yard of utility; too inestimable for expression by a money standard. These grovelling ideas of the objects of science, which constantly jar in its intercourse with the world, ought to find no response in the breast of any devotee who would draw inspiration from its shrine.

A MAN fooled into buying a bad watch called it Faith, because he was without works, and therefore dead.

A COUNTRY youth who desired to know how to become rich, sent twenty-five cents in answer to an advertisement, and received the following valuable receipe: "Increase your receipts, and decrease your expenditures. Work eighteen hours a day, and live on hash and oatmeal gruel."

NOT ONE OF THOSE.—During the session of a country court a witness was asked if he was not a husbandman, when he coolly replied, amidst the laughter of the court, "No, sir, I's not married."

FALSE PROVERB.—Speaking of the sentiment, "She who rocks the cradle rules the world," a Southern paper says: "In this section she is generally a colored girl, and we don't believe a word of it."

GETTING FUN.—"Bob, lower yourself into the well and holler for help." "What for?" "To frighten daddy, and have some fun." Bob did as he was desired, but got more fun than he bargained for. It was administered with a hickory sapling. Distance five and a half feet.

A PERFECT CURE.—"Got the 'phoky, have ye? Can't swallow any liquid, eh?" she observed to her husband, who had refused water for two days. "Well, we'll see;" and the good old woman drew the cork from the whiskey bottle and placed the nozzle near her liege's mouth. Mike's face emerged from its gloom like a full moon from behind a cloud, and guarding at his wife with a quizzical expression, he said: "Come to think of it, Jane, I don't believe that dog had any teeth"

HIS PART.—A wit once asked a peasant what part he performed in the great drama of life. "I mind my own business," was the reply.

WITTY AND POETIC.—The Rev. Sydney Smith being asked by a lady why it was reported that there were more women in the world than men, he replied. "It is in conformity with the arrangements of nature, madame; we always see more of heaven than earth."

ARTFUL URCHIN.—"Do you want to kill the child?" exclaimed a gentleman, as he saw a boy tip the baby out of its carriage on the walk. "No, not quite," replied the boy; "but if I can get him to lay his head enough, mother will take care of him while I go and wade in the ditch with Johnny Bruce!"

SAGEY.—Never tell the boys that it is a waste of time to play marbles. Who knows what advantage that accuracy of aim and steadiness of nerve may be when they get older and play billiards?

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

THE NEW YORK Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force and after frequent consultations, reached the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Knox, leaving it to his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought here. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction the Knox orders have been received from nine different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled.—From Jeweller Trade Journal.

CONVERSATIONAL.—A countryman went to see his ladylove, and wishing to be conversational, observed, "The thermomokron is twenty degrees above zero this evening." "Yes," innocently replied the maiden, "such kinds of birds do fly higher some seasons of the year than others."

REVENGE.—"Then you will not lend me your velocipede, hey?" loquired one boy of another; "No, I will not." "Very well, then, the next time our chimney catches fire you sha'n't come into our back yard sod holler."

PLANTING HAIR.—A five-year old girl had her hair cut a few days ago, and was seen digging a hole in the garden, and on being asked what she was doing, said: "I'm planting this hair to make a little child grow."

The Ushers of this Theatre are engaged and paid by this Management to serve its patrons in a polite, respectful and gentlemanly manner, and they are not allowed, under any circumstances, to applaud performances upon this stage. Members of the audience will oblige the Management by reporting to the office any violation of this rule.

Felicia; or, Woman's Love.

The play now presented at this Theatre is a dramatization of A. Delpit's novel, "Le Fils de Coralie." It was made for this Theatre by Mr. A. R. Cazauran. It is in four acts; and its cast comprises nine characters, selected from the leading artists of the Union Square Theatre Company. The scenery is from the pencil of Mr. Richard Marston. The action of the drama, following that of the novel, differs little from that of the play which the original author himself made from his own narrative. The chief difference is to be found in the suite made for the leading female character by the American dramatist, in the structure of the last act, and in the many portions of the dialogue that develop the new status given to "Coralie" under her new name, "Felicia." As usual, the Manager can only say that his presentation of the piece best evinces his own opinion of its merits. He can only hope the public will endorse that opinion.

Mr. Julian Magnus will play Thurler in "Daniel Rochat" in the Philadelphia cast of the piece.

"CAMILLE."

Miss Clara Morris, Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Miss Eleanor Carey, Mr. F. de Belleville, Miss Maud Harrison, etc., will continue to appear in "Camille" at the extra matinees given at the Union Square Theatre Tuesdays and Thursdays.

DANIEL ROCHAT IN PHILADELPHIA.—Sardou's admirable work, "Daniel Rochat," will be played at the Chestnut Street Theatre, in Philadelphia, the week of the 14th proximo by a strong cast, comprising many artists from the Union Square Theatre.—Mr Whiting, Mr. Lemoyne, Mr. Ramsay, Mr. Collins, Mr Morris, Miss Maud Harrison, Miss Eleanor Carey, Miss Florence White, Miss Nettie Guion. The original scenery, painted for the work here by Mr. Marston, will also be used in this representation.

A. DELPIT, the author of the "Fils de Coralie," is, by birth, an American, having been born in New Orleans. He is one of the most promising young writers of France, and seems to be marching straight to a fauteuil at the Academy.

Notwithstanding Dickens' preface to "Oliver Twist," Nancy Sykes gives way on the stage of the present to "Forget-Me-Nots" and "Felicias."

The "Banker's Daughter" was played at the Grand Opera House last week to the largest receipts ever made in that popular Theatre.

The Boston engagement of the Union Square Theatre Company will commence this season at the Park Theatre May 2d.

Rose Eytinge, the Mme. Dumont in "Felicia; or, Woman's Love," has not appeared on the stage of the Union Square Theatre since she played "Rose Michel" five years ago.

FIT TO DIE.—Rector: "Those pigs of yours are in fine condition, Jarvis."—Jarvis. "Yes, sur, they be. Ah, sur, if we wos all on us on'y as fit to die as them are, we'd do."

MOST men love little women, and little women love most men.

Letters left at the BOX OFFICE of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

VILE PUN.—In Spain at a dinner party the oldest lady is always seated first. In other words, she is the senior eater of the room.

SILENCE is not always golden. The oyster is continually getting into broils and stews, and he is quiet enough.

SNORING is now politely described as indulging in sheet music.

WHY are actors like Arabs?—Because, previous to taking the road, they invariably look to their dates.

WHEN is a mother a father?—When she's a sigher.

YOUNG MEN should take pattern by pianos—be square, upright, grand.

NO CONSOLATION.—"I be man who comes to the station two minutes behind time, and sees the train scudding out at the other end, derives no satisfaction from the proverb, "Better late than never."

POLICEMAN:—"Now then, move on. There's nothing the matter here."—Sarcastic Boy: "Of course there isn't. If there was, you wouldn't be here!"

NOT QUITE.—A woman being told that some tables in the Russian Department to the French Exhibition were made of Malachite, exclaimed, "My goodness! I thought Malachite was one of the prophets."

A BOY'S FIRST BET.—Alpha-bet.

PLAIN BUT KIND.—A devoted wife will always speak plainly, though kindly, to her husband. Here is a case in point: "When I die," said a married man, "I want to go where there is no snow to shovel." His wife said that she presumed that he would.

TALL TALK.—A Yankee lawyer, who wanted a postponement, appealed to the judge to "let the broad axe of justice be swung by the hand of mercy." It was swung.

OLD bells can be made as good as new. Old Belles can't.

INDUSTRIOUS.—Boasting of her industrious habits, an Irish housemaid said she rose at four, made her fire, put on the kettle, prepared the breakfast, and made all the beds before anyone was up in the house.

AT THE AQUARIUM.—Juvenile Physiologist: "And was that where the poor whale lived, papa? Did he blubber much before he died, papa?"

WHEN Apollo dipped the god Pan into the sea, what did he come out?—A dripping Pan.

LETTER CARRIER.—"I won't carry this child another step," said a postman to his wife. "Then give it to me," she replied. He letter-carrier her own baby after that.

THOUGHTLESS.—A new song is called "Always Keep a Smile for Mother." Some young men will drink every drop that is in the bottle without giving a thought to their parents.

RATHER COOL.—A lady witness in a scandal case declined to answer a question. The counsel pressed her. "Why will you not answer?" he asked at last, in despair. "Because it is not fit to tell decent people." "Well, then," said the lawyer, with impenetrable calmness, "step up and whisper it to the judge."

NOT MUCH OF A DEFENCE.—The mother-in-law finds a defender in the San Francisco Mail, which says: "If old Adam had had a mother-in-law to look after him and his wife, it is more than probable that to this very day we might have been able to caper about in the light and airy costume of our first parents."

DUBIOUS COMPLIMENT.—A barber who was measuring a lawyer for a wig, exclaimed: "Why, how long your head is!" "Yes," said the legal gentleman, much pleased, "we lawyers must have long heads." A moment later the barber exclaimed: "Why, your head's as thick as it is long!" The lawyer didn't respond that time.

THE LAST BULL.—A gentleman observing a servant girl, who was left-handed, placing the knives and forks on the dinner table in the same awkward position, remarked to her that she was laying them left handed. "Oh, indade I" said she, "so I have. Be pleased, sir, to help me turn the table round!"

"A SOFT ANSWER," ETC.—Nervous Old Gentleman to Watchmaker: "No, none of them will do. I want a watch that won't go tick! tack! tick! tack! all night long. I hate to hear a watch tick; it keeps me awake." Watchmaker. "Ah! I see, sir. You want one of the silent watches of the night. I don't keep 'em."

ANSWERING THE BELLE.—A beautiful girl said to a wit: "Why don't you talk smart things to me? You're as dull as a footman when in my company. Don't you know anything to say to me?" "Oh," he replied, gazing upon her with admiration, "even a footman can always answer the belle."

VERY CAREless.—It was very careless, leaving the parrot in the parlor on Sunday evening; but she never thought anything about it until Monday morning, when he roused the whole house by making a smacking noise and crying, 'Darling Susie! darling Susie!' He kept it up all day, too, and the old folks are much interested in the case.

"What are you doing?" asked his friend. "You see well enough I am dyeing the hair an ash-blonde, because this color is much worn now. I wish the hair of my 'sainted Maria' to be always in fashion."

THE FORCE OF HABIT.—A lady who was in the habit of spending much of her time in the society of her neighbors, happened one day to be taken suddenly ill, and sent her husband in great haste for the physician. The husband ran a few yards, but soon returned, exclaiming, "My dear, where shall I find you when I get back?"

TAKING THE RISK.—Nowadays it is the buyers of silk goods who must "stand the hazard of the dye."

UNGRATEFUL.—A lady asked a theatrical manager, whom she knew, for a box, which the latter, the free list being "entirely suspended," was compelled to refuse. The lady was much vexed by the refusal. "You may remember, madam," timidly remarked the manager, "that I have sent you twelve boxes during the last three months." THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend, as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing out here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the sentencious answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," gruffly replied the sleepy philosopher.

EXAMPLE.—What a beautiful example of simplicity in dress is shown some of the followers of fashion by that domestic animal, the cat, which rises in the morning, washes its face with its right hand, gives its tail three jerks, and is ready dressed for the day!

HOW IT IS MANAGED.—French lady to family physician: "Doctor, I want my husband to take me to Nice for the winter. Now, what is the matter with me?"

BEFORE AND AFTER.—"Before we were married," said he, "she used to say bye-bye so sweetly as I went down the steps!" "And what does she say now?" asked his friend. "Oh, just the same—buy, buy." "Oh, I see; she only exercises a different spell over you."

THE REASON.—"I tell you, sir," said a dogmatic moralist, "that the time is surely coming when stealing will be a thing of the past." "How so?" asked a bystander. "Because there will be nothing left to steal," answered the dogmatic moralist.

ONE OR THE OTHER.—A young man at a party called the attention of his bachelor uncle to a young lady he fancied, and said, "How charmingly naive she is, uncle?" "Knave!" growled the old man, gazing at her through his spectacles; "I should say more fool!"

"How much did he leave?" said a lady, on learning the death of a wealthy citizen. "Everything?" responded the lawyer; "he didn't take a cent with him."

ORDERLY HABITS.—It would not be easy to detail in all its forces the misery which is caused by the early neglect of orderly habits. CENSURE of a man's self is generally oblique praise; it is in order to show how much he can spare.—Dr. Johnson.

SCIENCE is too lofty for measurement by the yard of utility; too inestimable for expression by a money standard. There grovelling ideas at the objects of science, which constantly jar in its intercourse with the world, ought to find no response in the breast of any devotee who would draw inspiration from its shrine.

A MAN fooled into buying a bad watch called it Faith, because it was without works, and therefore dead.

A COUNTRY youth who desired to know how to become rich, sent twenty-five cents in answer to an advertisement, and received the following valuable receipt: "Increase your receipts, and decrease your expenditures. Work eighteen hours a day, and live on hash and oatmeal gruel."

NOT ONE OF THOSE.—During the session of a country court a witness was asked if he was not a husbandman, when he coolly replied, amidst the laughter of the court, "No, sir, I'm not married."

FALSE PROVERB.—Speaking of the sentiment, "She who rocks the cradle rules the world," a Southern paper says: "In this section she is generally a colored girl, and we don't believe a word of it."

GETTING FOR.—"Bob, lower yourself into the well and holler for help." "What for?" "To frighten daddy, and have some fun." Bob did as he was desired, but got more fun than he bargained for. It was administered with a hickory sapling. Distance five and a half feet.

A PERFECT CURE.—"Got the 'phohy, have ye? Can't swallow any liquid, eh?" she observed to her husband, who had refused water for two days. "Well, we'll see;" and the good old woman drew the cork from the whiskey bottle and placed the nozzle near her liege's mouth. Mike's face emerged from its gloom like a full moon from behind a cloud, and glancing at his wife with a quizzical expression, he said: "Come to think of it, Jane, I don't believe that dog had any teeth."

HIS PART.—A wit once asked a peasant what part he performed in the great drama of life. "I mind my own business," was the reply.

The Ushers of this Theatre are engaged and paid by the Management to serve its patrons in a polite, respectful and gentlemanly manner, and they are not allowed, under any circumstances, to applaud performances upon this stage. Members of the audience will oblige the Management by reporting to the office any violation of this rule.

Felicia; or, Woman's Love.

The play now presented at this Theatre is a dramatization of A. Delpit's novel, "Le Fils de Coralie." It was made for this Theatre by Mr. A. R. Cazauran. It is in four acts; and its cast comprises nine characters, selected from the leading artists of the Union Square Theatre Company. The scenery is from the pencil of Mr. Richard Marston. The action of the drama, following that of the novel, differs little from that of the play which the original author himself made from his own narrative. The chief difference is to be found in the milieu made for the leading female character by the American dramatist, in the structure of the last act, and in the many portions of the dialogue that develop the new status given to "Coralie" under her new name, "Felicia." As usual, the Manager can only say that his presentation of the piece best evinces his own opinion of its merits. He can only hope the public will endorse that opinion.

Mr. Julian Magnus will play Thurler in "Daniel Rochat" in the Philadelphia cast of the piece.

"CAMILLE."

Miss Clara Morris, Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Miss Eleanor Carey, Mr. F. de Belleville, Miss Maud Harrison, etc., will continue to appear in "Camille" at the extra matinees given at the Union Square Theatre Tuesdays and Thursdays.

DANIEL ROCHAT IN PHILADELPHIA.—Sardou's admirable work, "Daniel Rochat," will be played at the Chestnut Street Theatre, in Philadelphia, the week of the 14th proximo by a strong cast, comprising many artists from the Union Square Theatre.—Mr Whiting, Mr. Lemoyne, Mr. Ramsay, Mr. Collins, Mr Morris, Miss Maud Harrison, Miss Eleanor Carey, Miss Florence White, Miss Nettie Guion. The original scenery, painted for the work here by Mr. Marston, will also be used in this representation.

A. DELPIT, the author of the "Fils de Coralie," is, by birth, an American, having been born in New Orleans. He is one of the most promising young writers of France, and seems to be marching straight to a fauteuil at the Academy.

Notwithstanding Dickens' preface to "Oliver Twist," Nancy Sykes gives way on the stage of the present to "Forget-Me-Nots" and "Felicias."

The "Banker's Daughter" was played at the Grand Opera House last week to the largest receipts ever made in that popular Theatre.

The Boston engagement of the Union Square Theatre Company will commence this season at the Park Theatre May 2d.

Rose Eytinge, the Mme. Dumont in "Felicia; or, Woman's Love," has not appeared on the stage of the Union Square Theatre since she played "Rose Michel" five years ago.

FIT TO DIE.—Keeter: "Those pigs of yours are in fine condition, Jarvis."—Jarvis. "Yes, sir, they be. Ah, sir, if we was all on us on'y as fit to die as them are, we'd do."

MOST men love little women, and little women love most men.

LETTERS left at the Box Office of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

VILE PUN.—In Spain at a dinner party the oldest lady is always seated first. In other words, she is the senior eater of the room.

SILENCE is not always golden. The oyster is continually getting into broils and stews, and he is quiet enough.

SNORING is now politely described as indulging in sheet music.

WHY are actors like Arabs?—Because, previous to taking the road, they invariably look to their dates.

WHEN is a mother a father?—When she's a sigher.

YOUNG MEN should take pattern by pianos—be square, upright, grand.

NO CONSOLATION.—"The man who comes to the station two minutes behind time, and sees the train scudding out at the other end, derives no satisfaction from the proverb, "Better late than never."

POLICEMAN:—"Now then, move on. There's nothing the matter here."—Sarcastic Boy: "Of course there isn't. If there was, you wouldn't be here!"

NOT QUITE.—A woman being told that some tables in the Russian Department to the French Exhibition were made of Malachite, exclaimed, "My goodness! I thought Malachite was one of the prophets."

A BOY'S FIRST BET—Alpha-bet.

PLAIN BUT KIND.—A devoted wife will always speak plainly, though kindly, to her husband. Here is a case in point: "When I die," said a married man, "I want to go where there is no snow to shovel." His wife said that she presumed that he would.

TALL TALK.—A Yankee lawyer, who wanted a postponement, appealed to the judge to "let the broad axe of justice be swung by the hand of mercy." It was swung.

OLD bells can be made as good as new. Old Belles can't.

INDUSTRIOUS.—Boasting of her industrious habits, an Irish housemaid said she rose at four, made her fire, put on the kettle, prepared the breakfast, and made all the beds before anyone was up in the house.

AT THE AQUARIUM.—Juvenile Physiologist: "And was that where the poor whale lived, papa? Did he blubber much before he died, papa?"

WHEN Apollo dipped the god Pan into the sea, what did he come out?—A dripping Pan.

LETTER CARRIER.—"I won't carry this child another step," said a postman to his wife. "Then give it to me," she replied. He letter-carried her own baby after that.

THOUGHTLESS.—A new song is called "Always Keep a Smile for Mother." Some young men will drink every drop that is in the bottle without giving a thought to their parents.

RATHER COOL.—A lady witness in a scandal case declined to answer a question. The counsel pressed her. "Why will you not answer?" he asked at last, in despair. "Because it is not fit to tell decent people." "Well, then," said the lawyer, with impenetrable calmness, "step up and whisper it to the judge."

NOT MUCH OF A DEFENCE.—The mother-in-law finds a defender in the San Francisco Mail, which says: "If old Adam had had a mother-in law to look after him and his wife, it is more than probable that to this very day we might have been able to caper about in the light and airy costume of our first parents."

DEBIOUS COMPLIMENT.—A barber who was measuring a lawyer for a wig, exclaimed: "Why, how long your head is!" "Yes," said the legal gentleman, much pleased, "we lawyers must have long heads." A moment later the barber exclaimed: "Why, your head's as thick as it is long!" The lawyer didn't respond that time.

THE LAST BULL.—A gentleman observing a servant girl, who was left-handed, placing the knives and forks on the dinner table in the same awkward position, remarked to her that she was laying them left-handed. "Oh, indade!" said she, "so I have. Be pleased, sir, to help me turn the table round!"

"A SOFT ANSWER," ETC.—Nervous Old Gentleman to Watchmaker: "No, none of them will do. I want a watch that won't go tick! tack! tick! tack! all night long. I hate to hear a watch tick; it keeps me awake." Watchmaker: "Ah! I see, sir. You want one of the silent watches of the night. I don't keep 'em."

ANSWERING THE BELLE.—A beautiful girl said to a wit: "Why don't you talk smart things to me? You're as dull as a footman when in my company. Don't you know anything to say to me?" "Oh," he replied, gazing upon her with admiration, "even a footman can always answer the belle."

VERY CARELESS.—It was very careless, leaving the parrot in the parlor on Sunday evening; but she never thought anything about it until Monday morning, when he roused the whole house by making a smacking noise and crying, "Darling Sussel darling Susie!" He kept it up all day, too, and the old folks are much interested in the case.

ODD FORESIGHT.—Lady Margaret Herbert asked somebody for a pretty pattern for a nightcap. "Well," said the person, "what signifies the pattern of a nighteap?" "Oh, child," said she, "but, you know, in case of fire!"

A LIKENESS.—The French tramp resembles his American cousin. Met with the response that there was nothing for him to do, he answered, "Oh, Madame, if you only knew how little work would occupy me."

IMPORTANT QUERY.—Mrs. Partington is anxious to know, if the compass has a needle and thirty-two points, how long it will take a woman, with such a needle, to make a shirt.

NOT SO IGNORANT.—Our schoolcrs, the monkeys, wouldn't have been so ignorant, after all. They were all educated in the higher branches.

MATRIMONY.—"Tom, what in the world put matrimony into your head?"—"Well the fact is, Joe, I was getting short of shirts."

MIDDLE AGES.—Probably the happiest period in life most frequently is in middle age, when the eager passions of youth are cooled, and the infirmities of age not yet begun, as we see that the shadows, which are at morning and evening so large, almost entirely disappear at midday.—Dr. Arnold.

HOPE.—It seldom lives frugally who lives by chance. Hope is always liberal, and they that trust her promises make little scruple of reveiling to-day the profits of to-morrow.

ALWAYS IN FASHION.—Mr. X—— is a widower. Since the time he lost his wife, whom he adored, five years ago, he has not left off looking every day at the locket containing the hair of his dear and austere companion, and the other day he had a visit from a friend at the moment when he was eyeing the lock of hair of the much-loved one. "What are you doing?" asked his friend. "You see well enough I am dyeing the hair an ash-blonde, because this color is much worn now. I wish the hair of my 'sainted Maria' to be always in fashion.'

SEALSKIN SACQUES and DOLMANS, Fur-Lined Circulars and Wraps, are the leading fashionable furs this season. The shapes introduced by C. C. A large stock, finished too late for holiday wear and trade, is now offered at retail. Splendid opportunity to secure strictly reliable fashionable garments cheap.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.—A lady who was in the habit of spending much of her time in the society of her neighbors, happened one day to be taken suddenly ill, and sent her husband in great haste for the physician. The husband ran a few yards, but soon returned, exclaiming, "My dear, where shall I find you when I get back?"

UNGRATEFUL.—A lady asked a theatrical manager, whom she knew, for a box, which the latter, the free list being "entirely suspended," was compelled to refuse. The lady was much vexed by the refusal. "You may remember, madam," timidly remarked the manager, "that I have sent you twelve boxes during the last three months." THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing on here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the sententious answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," gruffly replied the sleepy philosopher.

SHOT.—"Mother," said a little five-year-old, "have you heard that Uncle John got shot yesterday?" "Why, no! Dear me! How did he get shot?" "Oh, he bought 'em."

THE SPARK.—"Who's that gentleman walking with Miss Flint?" said a wag to his companion, as they sauntered along.—"Oh," replied the other, "that is a spark which she has struck."

SHINING LIGHT.—A Chinese lawyer, it is said, has been admitted to the Bar. He will, no doubt, be able to Chin-cesly when the proper time comes.

EXAMPLE.—What a beautiful example of simplicity in dress is shown some of the followers of fashion by that do mestic animal, the cat, which rises in the morning, washes its face with its right hand, gives its tail three jerks, and is ready dressed for the day!

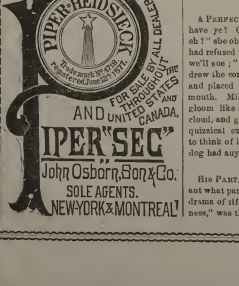
HOW IT IS MANAGED.—French lady to family physician: "Doctor, I want my husband to take me to Nice for the winter. Now, what is the matter with me?"

BEFORE AND AFTER.—"Before we were married," said he, "she used to say by-the-bye so sweetly as I went down the st-pairs!" "And what does she say now?" asked his friend. "Oh, just the same:—buy, buy." "Oh, I see; she only exercises a different spell over you."

THE REASON.—"I tell you, sir," said a dogmatic moralist, "that the time is surely coming when stealing will be a thing of the past." "How so?" asked a bystander. "Because there will be nothing left to steal," answered the dogmatic moralist.

ONE OR THE OTHER.—A young man at a party called the attention of his bachelor uncle to a young lady he fancied, and said, "How charmingly naive she is, uncle!" "Knave!" growled the old man, gazing at her through his spectacles; "I should say more fool!"

"How much did he leave?" said a lady, on learning the death of a wealthy citizen. "Everything?" responded the lawyer; "he didn't take a cent with him."



ORDERLY HABITS.—It would not be easy to detail in all its force the misery which is caused by the early neglect of orderly habits. It is a source not only of frightful unhappiness in families, but of great public vice; for after all, the world is made up of those whose characters have been formed for good or for evil by the early training and example of mothers.

CENSURE of a man's self is generally oblique praise; it is in order to show how much he can spare.—Dr. Johnson.

SCIENCE is too lofty for measurement by the yard of utility; too inestimable for expression by a money standard. These grovelling ideas of the objects of science, which constantly jar in its intercourse with the world, ought to find no response in the breast of any devotee who would draw inspiration from its shrine.

A MAN fooled into buying a bad watch called it Faith, because it was without works, and therefore dead.

A COUNTRY youth who desired to know how to become rich, sent twenty-five cents in answer to an advertisement, and received the following valuable receips: "Increase your receipts, and decrease your expenditures. Work eighteen hours a day, and live on hash and oatmeal gruel."

NOT ONE OF THOSE.—During the session of a country court a witness was asked if he was not a husbandman, when he coolly replied, amidst the laughter of the court, "No, sir, I'm not married."

FALSE PROVERB.—Speaking of the sentiment, "She who rocks the cradle rules the world," a Southern paper says: "In this section she is generally a colored girl, and we don't believe a word of it."

GETTING FUN.—"Bob, lower yourself into the well and holler for help." "What for?" "To frighten daddy, and have some fun." Bob did as he was desired, but got more fun than he bargained for. It was administered with a hickory sapling. Distance five and a half feet.

A PERFECT CURE.—"Got the 'phoby, have ye? Can't swallow any liquid, eh?" she observed to her husband, who had refused water for two days. "Well, we'll see;" and the good old woman drew the cork from the whiskey bottle and placed the nozzle near her liege's mouth. Mike's face emerged from its gloom like a full moon from behind a cloud, and glancing at his wife with a quizzical expression, he said: "Come to think of it, Jane, I don't believe that dog had any teeth"

HIS PART.—A wit once asked a peasant what part he performed in the great drama of life. "I mind my own business," was the reply.

WITTY AND POETIC.—The Rev. Sydney Smith being asked by a lady why it was reported that there were more women in the world than men, he replied, "It is in conformity with the arrangements of nature, madame; we always see more of heaven than earth."

ARTFUL URCHIN.—"Do you want to kill the child?" exclaimed a gentleman, as he saw a boy tip the belly out of its carriage on the walk. "No, not quite," replied the boy; "but if I can get him to bawl loud enough, mother will take care of him while I go and wade in the ditch with Johnny Bracer!"

SAGELY.—Never tell the boys that it is a waste of time to play marbles. Who knows what advantage that accuracy of aim and steadiness of nerve may be when they get older and play billiards?

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

THE NEW YORK POLICE COMMISSIONERS in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force and after frequent consultations, reached the determination to have a Derby departure. They therefore gave their order for 4000, leaving it to his taste and judgment to choose such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from nine different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled. —From Hatter Trade Journal.

CONVERSATIONAL.—A countryman went to see his ladylove, and wishing to be conversational, observed, "The thermonokron is twenty degrees above zero this evening." "Yes," innocently replied the maiden, "such kinds of birds do fly higher some seasons of the year than others."

REVENGE.—"Then you will not lend me your velocipede, hey?" quired one boy of another; "No. I will not." "Very well, then, the next time our chimney catches fire you shan't come into our back yard and holler."

PLANTING HAIR.—A five-year old girl had her hair cut a few days ago, and was seen digging a hole in the garden, and on being asked what she was doing, said: "I'm planting this hair to make a little child grow."

The Ushers of this Theatre are engaged and paid by this Management to serve its patrons in a polite, respectful and gentlemanly manner, and they are not allowed, under any circumstances, to applaud performances upon this stage. Members of the audience will oblige the Management by reporting to the office any violation of this rule.

Felicia; or, Woman's Love.

The play now presented at this Theatre is a dramatization of A. Delpit's novel, "Le Fils de Coralie." It was made for this Theatre by Mr. A. R. Cazaurau. It is in four acts; and its cast comprises nine characters, selected from the leading artists of the Union Square Theatre Company. The scenery is from the pencil of Mr. Richard Marston. The action of the drama, following that of the novel, differs little from that of the play which the original author himself made from his own narrative. The chief difference is to be found in the milieu made for the leading female character by the American dramatist, in the structure of the last act, and in the many portions of the dialogue that develop the few status given to "Coralie" under her new name, "Felicia." As usual, the Manager can only say that his presentation of the piece best evinces his own opinion of its merits. He can only hope the public will endorse that opinion.

Mr. Julian Magnus will play Thurlor in "Daniel Rochat" in the Philadelphia cast of the piece.

"CAMILLE."

Miss Clara Morris, Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Miss Eleanor Carey, Mr. F. de Belleville, Miss Maud Harrison, etc., will continue to appear in "Camille" at the extra matinees given at the Union Square Theatre Tuesdays and Thursdays.

DANIEL ROCHAT IN PHILADELPHIA.—Sardou's admirable work, "Daniel Rochat," will be played at the Chestnut Street Theatre, in Philadelphia, the week of the 14th proximo by a strong cast, comprising many artists from the Union Square Theatre.—Mr Whiting, Mr. Lemoyne, Mr. Ramsay, Mr. Collins, Mr Morris, Miss Maud Harrison, Miss Eleanor Carey, Miss Florence White, Miss Nettie Guion. The original scenery, painted for the work here by Mr. Marston, will also be used in this representation.

A. DELPIT, the author of the "Fils de Coralie," is, by birth, an American, having been born in New Orleans. He is one of the most promising young writers of France, and seems to be marching straight to a fauteuil at the Academy.

Notwithstanding Dickens' preface to "Oliver Twist," Nancy Sykes gives way on the stage of the present to "Forget-Me-Nots" and "Felicias."

The "Banker's Daughter" was played at the Grand Opera House last week to the largest receipts ever made in that popular Theatre.

The Boston engagement of the Union Square Theatre Company will commence this season at the Park Theatre May 2d.

Rose Eytinge, the Mme. Dumont in "Felicia; or, Woman's Love," has not appeared on the stage of the Union Square Theatre since she played "Rose Michel" five years ago.

FIT TO DIE.—Rector: "Those pigs of yours are in fine condition, Jarvis."—Jarvis, "Yes, sur, they be. Ah, sur, if we wos all on us on'y as fit to die as them are, we'd do."

MOST men love little women, and little women love most men.

Letters left at the Box Office of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

VILE PUN.—In Spain at a dinner party the oldest lady is always seated first. In other words, she is the senior eater of the room.

SILENCE is not always golden. The oyster is continually getting into broils and stews, and he is quiet enough.

SNORING is now politely described as indulging in sheet music.

WHY are actors like Arabs?—Because, previous to taking the road, they invariably look to their dates.

WHEN is a mother a father?—When she's a sigher.

YOUNG MEN should take pattern by pianos—be square, upright, grand.

NO CONSOLATION.—The man who comes to the station two minutes behind time, and sees the train scudding out at the other end, derives no satisfaction from the proverb, "Better late than never."

POLICEMAN 2—"Now then, move on. There's nothing the matter here."—Sarcastic Boy: "Of course there isn't. If there was, you wouldn't be here!"

NOT QUITE.—A woman being told that some tables in the Russian Department to the French Exhibition were made of Malachite, exclaimed, "My goodness! I thought Malachite was one of the prophets."

A BOY'S FIRST BET—Alpha-bet.

PLAIN BUT KIND.—A devoted wife will always speak plainly, though kindly, to her husband. Here is a case in point: "When I die," said a married man, "I want to go where there is no snow to shovel." His wife said that she presumed that he would.

TALL TALK.—A Yankee lawyer, who wanted a postponement, appealed to the judge to "let the broad axe of justice be swung by the hand of mercy." It was swung.

OLD bells can be made as good as new. Old Belles can't.

INDUSTRIOUS.—Boasting of her industrious habits, an Irish housemaid said she rose at four, made her fire, put on the kettle, prepared the breakfast, and made all the beds before anyone was up in the house.

AT THE AQUARIUM.—[Juvenile Physiologist: "And was that where the poor whale lived, papa? Did he blubber much before he died, papa?"

WHEN Apollo dipped the god Pan into the sea, what did he come out?—A dripping Pan.

LETTER CARRIER.—"I won't carry this child another step," said a postman to his wife. "Then give it to me," she replied. He letter-carrier her own baby after that.

THOUGHTLESS.—A new song is called "Always Keep a Smile for Mother." Some young men will drink every drop they can in the bottle without giving a thought to their parents.

RATHER COOL.—A lady witness in a scandal case declined to answer a question. The counsel pressed her. "Why will you not answer?" he asked at last, in despair. "Because it is not fit to tell decent people." "Well, then," said the lawyer, with unpenetrable calmness, "step up and whisper it to the judge."

NOT MUCH OF A DEFENCE.—The mother-in-law finds a defender in the San Francisco Mail, which says: "If old Adam had had a mother-in law to look after him and his wife, it is more than probable that to this very day we might have been able to caper about in the light and airy costume of our first parents."

DERICUS COMPLIMENT.—A barber who was measuring a lawyer for a wig, exclaimed: "Why, how long your head is!" "Yes," said the legal gentleman, much pleased, "we lawyers must have long heads." A moment later the barber exclaimed: "Why, your head's as thick as it is long!" The lawyer didn't respond that time.

THE LAST BULL.—A gentleman observing a servant girl, who was left-handed, placing the knives and forks on the dinner table in the same awkward position, remarked to her that she was laying them left handed. "Oh, indade!" said she, "so I have. Be pleased, sir, to help me turn the table round!"

A "SOFT ANSWER," ETC.—Nervous Old Gentleman to Watchmaker: "No, none of them will do. I want a watch that won't go tick! tack! tick! tack! all night long. I hate to hear a watch tick; it keeps me awake." Watchmaker: "Ah! I see, sir. You want one of the silent watches of the night. I don't keep 'em."

ANSWERING THE BELLE.—A beautiful girl said to a wit: "Why don't you talk smart things to me? You're as dull as a footman when in my company. Don't you know anything to say to me?" "Oh," he replied, gazing upon her with admiration, "even a footman can always answer the belle."

VERY CARELESS.—It was very careless, leaving the parrot in the parlor on Sunday evening; but she never thought anything about it until Monday morning, when he roused the whole house by making a smacking noise and crying, 'Darling Susie! darling Susie!" He kept it up all day, too, and the old folks are much interested in the case.

ODD FORESIGHT.—Lady Margaret Herbert asked somebody for a pretty pattern for a nightcap. "Well," said the person, "what signifies the pattern of a nightcap?" "Oh, child," said she, "but, you know, in case of fire!"

THE printing press is said to make a good impression wherever it goes.

ALWAYS IN FASHION.—Mr. X—— is a widower. Since the time he lost his wife, whom he adored, five years ago, he has not left off looking every day at the locket containing the hair of his dear and austere companion, and the other day he had a visit from a friend at the moment when he was dyeing the lock of hair of the much-loved one. "What are you doing?" asked his friend. "You see well enough I am dyeing the hair an ash-blonde, because this color is much worn now. I wish the hair of my 'sainted Maria' to be always in fashion."

Sealskin Sacques and Dolmans, Fur-lined Circulars and Wraps, are the leading fashionable furs this season. The shapes introduced by C. C. SHAYNE, Wholesale Fur Manufacturer, 105 Prince Street, (formerly Broadway, opp. Stewart's, are the most popular. A large stock, finished too late for holiday wholesale trade, is now offered at retail. Splendid opportunity to secure strictly reliable fashionable garments cheap.

THE FORCE OF HABIT.—A lady who was in the habit of spending much of her time in the society of her neighbors, happened one day to be taken suddenly ill, and sent her husband in great haste for the physician. The husband ran a few yards, but soon returned, exclaiming, "My dear, where shall I find you when I get back?"

TAKING THE RISK.—Nowadays it is the buyers of silk goods who must "stand the hazard of the dye."

UNGRATEFUL.—A lady asked a theatrical manager, whom she knew, for a box, which the latter, the free list being "entirely suspended," was compelled to refuse. The lady was much vexed by the refusal. "You may remember, madam," timidly remarked the manager, "that I have sent you twelve boxes during the last three months." "Yes," she promptly replied, with a little sneer, "and every one of them upper boxes." There is no pleasing some people.

IMPORTANT QUERY.—Mrs. Partington is anxious to know, if the compass has a needle and thirty-two points, how long it will take a woman, with such a needle, to make a shirt.

NOT SO IGNORANT.—Our ancestors, the monkeys, couldn't have been so ignorant, after all. They were all educated in the higher branches.

MATRIMONY.—"Tom, what in the world put matrimony into your head?"—"Well the fact is, Joe, I was getting short of shirts."

MIDDLE AGES.—Probably the happiest period in life most frequently is in middle age, when the eager passions of youth are cooled, and the infirmities of age not yet begun, as we see that the shadows, which are at morning and evening so large, almost entirely disappear at midday.—Dr. Arnold.

GENTLEMEN.—Amongst young Sheridan's schoolfellows was the son of a physician, who boasted that his father was a gentleman professionally attending the nobility. "And so is my father, and as good as yours any day," said Sheridan. "Ah, but your father is only an author, Tom," said the doctor's son; therefore it is impossible that he can be a gentleman." "You may think so," replied Sheridan, "but I don't; for your father kills people, while mine only amuses them."

HOPE.—He seldom lives frugally who lives by chance. Hope is always liberal, and they that trust her promises make little scruple of reveiling to-day the profits of to-morrow.

THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend, as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing out here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the sententious answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," gruffly replied the sleepy philosopher.

SHOT.—"Mother," said a little five-year-old, "have you heard that Uncle John got shot yesterday?" "Why, no! Dear me! How did he get shot?" "Oh, he bought 'em."

THE SPARK.—"Who's that gentleman walking with Miss Flim?" said a wag to his companion, as they sauntered along.—"Oh," replied the other, "that is a spark which she has struck."

SHINING LIGHT.—A Chinese lawyer, it is said, has been admitted to the Bar. He will, no doubt, be able to Chin-esely when the proper time comes.

EXAMPLE.—What a beautiful example of simplicity in dress is shown some of the followers of fashion by that domestic animal, the cat, which rises in the morning, washes its face with its right hand, gives its tail three jerks, and is ready dressed for the day!

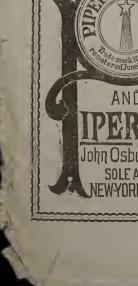
HOW IT IS MANAGED.—French lady to family physician: "Doctor, I want my husband to take me to Nice for the winter. Now, what is the matter with me?"

BEFORE AND AFTER.—"Before we were married," said he, "she used to say by-bye so sweetly as I went down the st pa!" "And what does she say now?" asked his friend. "Oh, just the same—buy, buy." "Oh, I see; she only exercises a different spell over you."

THE REASON.—"I tell you, sir," said a dogmatic moralist, "that the time is surely coming when stealing will be a thing of the past." "How so?" asked a bystander. "Because there will be nothing left to steal," answered the dogmatic moralist.

ONE OF THE OTHER.—A young man at a party called the attention of his bachelor uncle to a young lady he fancied, and said, "How charmingly native she is, uncle?" "Knave!" growled the old man, gazing at her through his spectacles; "I should say more fool!"

"How much did he leave?" said a lady, on learning the death of a wealthy citizen. "Everything?" responded the lawyer; "he didn't take a cent with him."



ORDERLY HABITS.—It would not be easy to detail in all its force the misery which is caused by the early neglect of orderly habits. It is a source not only of frightful unhappiness in families, but of great public vice; for, after all, the world is made up of those whose characters have been formed for good or for evil by the early training and example of mothers.

CENSURE of a man's self is generally oblique praise; it is in order to show how much he can spare.—Dr. Johnson.

SCIENCE is too lofty for measurement by the yard of utility; too inestimable for expression by a money standard. These grovelling ideas of the objects of science, which constantly jar in its intercourse with the world, ought to find no response in the breast of any devotee who would draw inspiration from its shrine.

A MAN fooled into buying a bad watch called it Faith, because it was without works, and therefore dead.

A COUNTRY youth who desired to know how to become rich, sent twenty-five cents in answer to an advertisement, and received the following valuable receipt: "Increase your receipts, and decrease your expenditures. Work eighteen hours a day, and live on bash and oatmeal gruel."

NOT ONE OF THOSE.—During the session of a country court a witness was asked if he was not a husbandman, when he coolly replied, amidst the laughter of the court, "No, sir, I'm not married."

FALSE PROVERB.—Speaking of the sentiment, "She who rocks the cradle rules the world," a Southern paper says: "In this section she is generally a colored girl, and we don't believe a word of it."

GETTING FUN.—"Bob, lower yourself into the well and holler for help." "What for?" "To frighten daddy, and have some fun." Bob did as he was desired, but got more fun than he bargained for. It was administered with a hickory sapling. Distance five and a half feet.

A PERFECT CURE.—"Got the 'pholy, have ye? Can't swallow any liquid, eh?" she observed to her husband, who had refused water for two days. "Well, we'll see;" and the good old woman drew the cork from the whiskey bottle and placed the nozzle near her liege's mouth. Mike's face emerged from its gloom like a full moon from behind a cloud, and glancing at his wife with a quizzical expression, he said: "Come to think of it, Jane, I don't believe that dog had any teeth."

HIS PART.—A wit once asked a peasant what part he performed in the great drama of life. "I mind my own business," was the reply.

WITTY AND POETIC.—The Rev. Sydney Smith being asked by a lady why it was reported that there were more women in the world than men, he replied, "It is in conformity with the arrangements of nature, madame; we always see more of heaven than earth."

ARTFUL URCHIN.—"Do you want to kill the child?" exclaimed a gentleman, as he saw a boy tip the baby out of its carriage on the walk. "No, not quite," replied the boy; "but if I can get him to bawl loud enough, mother will take care of him while I go and wade in the ditch with Johnny Brace!"

SAGEY.—Never tell the boys that it is a waste of time to play marbles. Who knows what advantage that accuracy of aim and steadiness of nerve may be when they get older and play billiards?

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

The New York Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force and after frequent consultations, resolved the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Knox, leaving it to his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from nine different cities, for those hats, which have been promptly filled.—From D ember Trade Journal.

CONVERSATIONAL.—A countryman went to see his ladylove, and wishing to be conversational, observed, "The thermomokn is twenty degrees above zero this evening." "Yes," innocently replied the maiden, "such kinds of birds do fly higher some seasons of the year than others."

REVENGE.—"Then you will not lend me your velocipede, hey?" inquired one boy of another; "No, I will not." "Then, well, then, the next time our chimney catches fire you shan't come into our back yard and holler."

PLANTING HAIR.—A five-year old girl had her hair cut a few days ago, and was seen digging a hole in the garden, and on being asked what she was doing, said: "I'm planting this hair to make a little child grow."

The LADIES of this Theatre are engaged and paid by this Management to serve its patrons in a polite, respectful and gentlemanly manner, and they are not allowed, under any circumstances, to applaud performances upon this stage. Members of the audience will oblige the Management by reporting to the office any violation of this rule.

"THE CREOLE."

The new play presented this evening, under the title of "The Creole," is from the pen of M. Denery, the author of the "Two Orphans," and that of M. Brézil, that great dramatist's frequent collaborateur This play was presented in Paris in the early part of the present season under the title of "Diana." On its success there, it was purchased by the manager of this theatre, and was adapted for its stage by Mr. A. R. Cazauran. The manager flatters himself that the reputation of this theatre is a sufficient guarantee of the manner of the presentation of the work, in which neither care nor expence has been spared, either in costuming, scenery or other accessories. The cast has been carefully selected from the leading members of the company of the Union Square Theatre; and it only remains for the manager to wait the verdict of the critic that is never wrong—the public.

THE FIRST THING.—A little girl was listening with much interest to the story of Jonah. When the question was asked, "What would you suppose would be the first thing Jonah would do after the great fish threw him upon the land?" she answered, promptly: "I shid fink he'd go home quick as he could and get cleaned up."

CAMILLE REDIVIVUS.

The second of the promised Matinee revivals of the present season at the Union Square Theatre will be presented next Tuesday afternoon. The exertion of continuous night performances being forbidden, Miss Clara Morris, who, in the original productions of such works as "Miss Multon" and "Camille," played of the leading female roles, it became necessary to give several of the promised revivals at extra matinees. The second of these revivals, as already announced, will be the perennial "Camille" of Alexandre Dumas, fils. This great play will be produced with a cast including Miss Clara Morris, Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Miss Eleanor Cary, Mr. John Parselle, Miss Maud Harrison, Mr. F. de Belleville, Miss Eldridge, Mr. W. Ramsay, Miss Gayon, Mr. Owen Fawcett, etc., etc.

The run of "Camille" will necessarily be limited to a few of the extra matinees, as other revivals of a similar nature are promised.

Mr. Dennery, the author of "The Creole," in his play of "The Celebrated Case," found the germ of his story in the records of a French law court. He evidently found the suggestion of the story of "The Creole" in the medical records of Auvergne.

The Signor Salvini has achieved a genuine financial and artistic success by his wonderful Shakespeareanacting in Boston. It is to the credit of the city's taste.

Miss Eleanor Cary, who plays Mme. de La Tour in "Miss Multon," so effectively, plays Diana in "The Creole." Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Jr., Messrs. Parselle, Stoddart, Ramsay, Davy and De Belleville are included in the cast, as well as Miss Maud Harrison and Mrs. E. J. Phillips.

Mr. Adolphe Blume's strong drama, "Rose Michel," so successful at this theatre four years ago, has been revived at the Amerique, in Paris, with evident success.

"Daniel Rochat" is to have its first revival at the Francais in February.

MISTAKES.—No man ever acknowledges a mistake so quickly as when he puts the lighted end of a cigar in his mouth.

THE LAST MAN.—Among the many surmises as to what will become of the last man, it is queer that nobody has yet discovered that he is destined to be talked to death by the last woman.

There are five stage sets in the new play "The Creole." The principal ones are: the Bank of the Chateau de Maillepre, the Library and Vision Tableau of the Somnambulistic Noblemanthe Pavillion of Diana, and the Grand Feudal Hall of Justice of the house of Maillepre.

Letters left at the BOX OFFICE of this Theatre inquiring into the age, circumstances, relationships, etc., of members of this Company will not be answered. When asked for useful purposes such questions must be directed to the artists themselves.

The scum floats on top the healthiest soup, so the vicious float in the highest pulpits in Heaven's houses and make most noise on the stage.

SAUER KRAUT.—A contemporary says "sauer kraut is healthy." And this is the truth. You never hear sauer kraut complaining of feeling weak. On the contrary, it never loses its strength; and the older it gets, the stronger it becomes.

TURNED.—A stranger entered a pump and blacksmith's shop a few days since, and, as the proprietor was turning a piece of wood in his lathe, the visitor asked what would turn the quickest and easiest, "Milk," was the reply. The stranger gave a look at the turner, and then quietly left.

DUNNED.—"Let me see," said a desperately dunned debtor; "this is the fifth time you have called within four days, is it not? Regret to disappoint you, young man, but step in next Saturday before three o'clock, and I will positively settle—in my mind when you may call again," he added to himself, as the visitor left.

MISS KATHERINE ROGERS announces that she will receive pupils for the stage. There is no actress whom we can more highly recommend as an instructress. She knows the profession thoroughly and has the rarer art of imparting her knowledge to others. The professionals who usually advertise for pupils are actors who ought to go to school themselves. Miss Rogers is an exception to the rule and has graduated with the highest honors at the best theatres in England and America.—Spirit of the Times.

PARADISE.—"Papa," asked a boy, "what is meant by Paradise?" "Paradise, my son," replied the father, "is the latter part of summer when your mother goes on a visit to your grandfather."

HER REASON.—The young lady who married Mr. Shilling, when brought before the justice on a charge of assault and battery, excused herself by saying she only hit him to see if he was good.

CANDID.—"Well, may I hope then, dear, that at some future time I may have the happiness of making you my wife?" "Yes, I hope so, I'm sure," she replied, "for I'm getting tired of suing fellows for breach of promise."

THE first thing in a boot is the last.

TAKING THE RISK.—Nowadays it is the buyers of silk goods who must "stand the hazard of the dye."

HOME AND CLUB.—A man was telling his wife about "a club with home comforts," when she sighed, "Ah! I wish I had a home with club comforts!"

BOTH WAYS.—"It's a poor rule that will not work both ways," as the scholar said when he sent it back at the teacher's head.

So dear and yet so fur—a sealskin sacque.

How to make a catfish.—Leave her alone in a room with an aquarium.

SLIGHT CHANGE.—When the officials of a banking institution commence to use the funds for their own benefit, they say, "Let's speculate." Pretty soon this suggestion is slightly changed to "Let's peculate"—and they "pec."

GOOD WAR STEED.—An irrepressible joker, in selling a horse, said, "He's a good war steed; he'd sooner die than run."

BE CAREFUL.—One of our young friends at —— sat down the other day and wrote on the back of a couple of postal cards. Then he turned them over and directed them; but some mischance placed the address on the wrong cards. The result was, a shirt factory in —— got a very polite invitation to go carriage riding, while the young man's girl was made frantic by receiving the following: "Please send me a sample of the stuff your shirts are made of."

LAST WORDS.—"And above all, Nellie, my love," were the parting words of a lady to her daughter as the cab to convey the newly-wedded pair to the terminus drew up at the door, "above all Nellie, if you should quarrel—for Reginald is but a man, and life is full of thorns—remember that your first duty is to yourself as a lady and a housekeeper. Never hit your husband with a rolling-pin or a potato-masher. You could never forgive yourself if the result of such a blow were to be the appearance of a hair at the table in a dish of mashed potatoes or a pie crust, when you had company at dinner. The poker will do quite as well, and is infinitely more ladylike. Good bye. Write every day, and don't forget your poor old ma! Boo hoo!"

THE OLD OLD STORY.—A man went into a house last night and picked up a gun. Of course, he didn't know it was loaded. It went off. So did the man. And the man who owns, or, rather, who owned the gun, would give fifty dollars to know where they went.

PRIDE'S FALL.—Poor young thing! She fainted away at the washtub, and her nose went kerslop into the soapsuds. Some said it was overwork; others, however, whispered that her beau had peeped over the back fence and called out, "Hullo, there, Mary, is Miss Allec at home?"

THE "FITTER."—On the theory of the survival of the fittest, the tailor and the dressmaker ought ere long to possess the earth.

ALWAYS IN FASHION.—Mr. X—— is a widower. Since the time he lost his wife, whom he adored, five years ago, he has not left off looking every day at the locket containing the hair of his dear and austere companion, and the other day he had a visit from a friend at the moment when he was drying the lock of hair of the much-loved one. "What are you doing?" asked his friend. "You see well enough I am dyeing the hair an ash-blonde, becauseIthis color is much worn now. I wish the hair of my departed Maria 'to be always in fashion.'

THE printing press is said to make a good impression wherever it goes.

PLAIN BUT KIND.—A devoted wife will always speak plainly, though kindly, to her husband. Here is a case in point: "When I die," said a married man, "I want to go where there is no snow to shovel." His wife said that he presumed that he would.

PATRONIZING.—A resident who reached home by a noon train, after an absence of two weeks, was met at the station by his eight-year-old son, who loudly welcomed him.—"And is everybody well, Willie?" asked his father.—"The school kind," replied the boy.—"And nothing has happened?"—"Nothing at all. I've been good, Jennie's been, and I never saw ma behave herself so well as she has this time."

NO PRACTICE.—A young lawyer, who had been "admitted" about a year was asked by a friend, "How do you like your new profession?"—The reply was accompanied by a brief sigh to suit the occasion: "My profession is much better than my practice."

FUEL CRITICISM.—"A critic, in speaking of a young actor who holds the leading part in a new comedy, says that the author has fanned him into a pink dolichonaus like a raspberry ice, and that so soon as under twenty can look at him without an irresistible desire to stick a spoon into him.

A MODEL HAT AND ITS POPULAR APPRECIATION.

THE NEW YORK Police Commissioners in their effort to procure a suitable hat for the members of the force and after frequent consultations, reached the determination to take a new departure. They therefore gave their order to Ed. A. Keating & Co. for his taste and judgment to produce such an article as they sought for. The result has proved entirely satisfactory. The Commissioners have expressed their approval and satisfaction, and the men are delighted with their new, comfortable and becoming winter hats. Since their introduction here, orders have been received from the different cities, for these hats, which have been promptly filled. —From Brooklyn Trade Journal.

BADLY MIXED.—Two teachers are disputing about the pronunciation of barrel. One said it was bare-el, and the other said it was how-rel. They referred the matter to an old cooper, pointing to a thing made to hold beer, by way of explaining what they meant. He said, "it's keg." And now the two preceptors are more badly mixed than ever.

TENTH REGULAR SEASON OF THE UNION SQUARE THEATER.

The Regular season of the Union Square Theater for 1880-81 commenced last Saturday evening, October the sixteenth, with a five-act comedy-drama from the pen of Victorien Sardou, entitled "Daniel Rochat." This play is presented with entirely new scenery by Mr. Richard Marston, and music by Mr. Henry Tissington. Its cast will include Mr. Charles R. Thorne, Jr., Mr. J. H. Stoddart, Mr. John Parselle, Mr. Joseph Whiting, Mr. Walden Ramsay, Mr. Owen Fawcett, Mr. H. F. Daly, Mr. Thomas E. Morris, Miss Sara Jewett, Miss Maud Harrison, Mrs. E. J. Phillips, Miss Florence White, Miss Nettie Union, etc.

The repertoire selected for the coming season will comprise, besides "Daniel Rochat," several plays by foreign and native authors. Plays by MM. Marot, Phillips, Dennery, and by American authors are now in consideration, and due notice will be given of the selection made to follow "Daniel Rochat."

The manager can only reiterate his thanks to the Public for the support they have so kindly extended to him in the past, and hopes that support will only incite him to stronger endeavor to merit its continuance in the future.

THE PLAYWRIGHTS' OPPORTUNITY.

During the last twenty-five years, a knot of writers in Paris have enjoyed unchallenged preeminence in the domain of dramatic literature. The names of Sardou, D'Ennery and Dumas are almost as familiar to English, Italian, American and German playgoers as the names of Shakespeare, Alfieri or Benedict. In Paris itself, however, there is a growing doubt as to who are to succeed the great triumvirate If we except the "Daniel Rochat" of Sardou, there has been no great distinctive dramatic success achieved there, in the past three years, save the "Celebrated Case," of D'Ennery. M. D'Ennery is waxing old. M. Dumas has become exceedingly wealthy, and seems to have allowed wealth's indifference to work, to grow upon him. The coming American dramatist could therefore find no better opportunity than is now afforded him by the limited rivalry he would have to contend with. Managers of regular theatres, star actors are all more or less nervously anxious in regard to future material; and the writer of a really good play would not need to cool his ardor by ten minutes in the anti-room of any theater in New York.

Notes.

A play entitled the "Casque en Fer," by Mr. Phillips, was successfully produced at the Chateau d'Eau, in Paris, on the 24th ult. It is a powerful melo drama of the school of the "Celebrated Case."

Mr. Joseph Whiting will make his first appearance as a member of the regular Union Square Theater Company in the cast of "Daniel Rochat"

Sardou is at work on a new play entitled "Impulse."

GRAND ITALIAN OPERA.—The season will open at the Academy of Music, on Monday, October 18, with Donizetti's opera "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Madame Fielka Gerster, Signoris Gelassi, Monti and Ravelli (his first appearance). Wednesday, October 20, Donizetti's opera "La Favorita," in which Miss Annie Louise Cary and Signor Campanini will make their first appearance this season, and the new Basso, Signor Franco Novara will make his debut to an American audience. On Friday, October 22d, Gounod's opera, "Faust." First appearance of Mlle. Valleria. The season will be the most brilliant one that New York has had for many years. Every box has been sold for the entire season, and many of the seats in the parquette and balcony. The sale of seats for single performances will open at the Box-office of the Academy of Music, on Wednesday, October 13th.

"An American Girl" continues at the Fifth Avenue Theatre to be the centre of fashionable attraction, and Fanny Davenport's bewildering profusion of gorgeous costumes are an unshaded source of interest in society quarters The business at this theatre is enormous and the engagement has been extended two weeks longer.

MISS BLANCHE ROOSEVELT will shortly appear in Boston in Longfellow's "Masque of Pandora," the Music for which has been written by Mr. Alfred Cellier The Opera will be mounted with great magnificence, and the poet and composer will personally superintend its production.

Miss Kate Claxton opens at the Boston Opera House, on Wednesday October 13th.

MADAME MARIE ROZE, after her many triumphs in Europe, has returned to America to again delight her many friends and admirers. Madame Roze is to appear in Grand Opera in English under the management of Strakosch & Hess, and will sing in "Carmen," "Trovatore," "Faust," "Aida," "Lohengrin" and "Mefistofele;" all of which operas have been specially translated for her by Josiah Pitman, and revised by Dion Boucicault. Her appearance in New York will undoubtedly be anxiously awaited, for Marie Roze is a universal favorite.

A FACT ABOUT POSTAL CARDS.—The main objection most people have to sending communications on postal cards is that the writing is, of course, open to general perusal. A good way of avoiding this difficulty is to use sympathetic ink A solution of ten grains of hyposulphate of soda in sixteen teaspoonfuls of water is the simplest fluid for the purpose. Use a perfectly clean pen, and after writing go over the letters with a smooth papercutter to remove all traces of the salt. Exposure to the heat of a bright coal fire turns the writing black.

WHAT HE WEIGHED.—"Tom, you seem to gain flesh every day; the grocery business must agree with you. What did you weigh last?" "Well, Jim, I really forget now; but it strikes me it was a pound of butter."

"MEASURE FOR MEASURE," as the chemist said when he took a bad six pence for a black draught

COWS AND CHRISTIANS.—A minister who had been reproving one of his elders for over-indulgence, observed a cow go down to a stream, take a drink, and then turn away. "There," said he to his offending elder, "is an example for you; the cow has quenched its thirst, and has retired." "Yes," replied the other, "that is very true. But suppose another cow had come to the other side of the stream, and had said, 'Here's to you,' there's no saying how long they might have gone on!"

"THE FAVORITES" and Alice Oates have caught the public taste and have been very successful. The absurdity by Willie Seymour is highly spoken of by the press, as is also the music and the company.

Their business at the Martin Opera House, Albany, is very large.

MISS SARA VON LEER, who is to make her debut in this season to a high place in "dramatic art, has been known for some years in the amateur dramatic and social world of New York, and made her first appearance as an actress with the Murray Hill Dramatic Association, in 1875. It was soon evident that she meant to make the profession her life-work, and she has since studied with that end in view. Her specialty is the "emotional" drama. She inherits a large portion of her talent from her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Duff, an actress of great ability, and well remembered by the old theatre-goers of Boston, who speak of her now as the greatest actress of her time. Miss von Leer is young—was born in Mobile, in 1855—pretty, graceful and charmingly natural in her manners. She has played many roles at various times, mostly for charitable objects, and last season she made a short tour of the Eastern States as leading lady of a regular company, under the name of Blanche Schuyler. This will be Miss von Leer's first professional season under her own name, and she will be ably managed by Mr. Thomas C. Lombard, who last year brought out Miss Kate Field in her "Monologue."—Boston "Evening Transcript" of August 30, 1880.

THE EXCUSE.—An inhabitant of a suburban town, after spending a convivial evening, was discovered among the carrots and cabbages of his humble garden wrapped in slumber. "Well, Bill," said an admiring friend as he shook the prostrate youth, "what are you doing out here?" "Watching for a hen that's stole her nest," was the unanswered answer. "But what are your eyes closed for, Bill?" "Don't want the old hen to see me," grimly replied the sleepy philosopher.

Fanny Davenport appears every evening at Haverly's Fifth Avenue Theatre in the new play, "An American Girl," written for her by Anna Dickinson. There are probably no two women better fitted—the one as author and the other as the interpreter—for this dual effort. Miss Davenport's dressing is magnificent and bewilderingly abundant.

ONE TOO MANY FOR HIM.—A Yankee woman recently married a Chinese laundryman, and in three days thereafter the unhappy Celestial appeared at a barber's shop and ordered his pigtail to be cut off, saying, in explanation; "Too muchee yauk."

THE WAY TO TREAT INJURIES.—If a bee stings you, will you go to the hive and destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? If you receive a trifling injury do not go about the streets proclaiming it and be anxious to avenge it. Let it drop. It is wisdom to say little respecting the injuries you may have received.

TIME.—As every thread of gold is valuable, so is every minute of time; and as it would be great folly to shoe horses—as Nero did—with gold, so it is to spend time in trifles.

MATURE LOVE.—Perhaps love is never so potent as when it seizes upon those who passed their first youth, or even those who have passed the prime of life. The choice made is then likely to be thoroughly suited to the nature of the man; and any intelligent girls on the part of the woman are likely to be more attractive to a man of this age than to a younger person.

SWORE OFF.—Co lectors report that a great many people sworn off on the 1st of January—from paying bills.

MR. C. C. SHAYNE, for a number of years Leading Fashionable Fur Manufacturer Broadway cor. 40th St., now at Factory, 103 Prince St., offers Sealskin Dolman, Sleighing and Fur lined Garments made from selected skins, styles and elegant in every particular—at lowest Prices, owing to cheap rent and small expenses.

HONESTY AND POLICY.—The man who is only honest when honesty is the best policy is not really an honest man. Honesty is not an average policy, nor a safable principle. An honest man is honest from his utmost soul, nor does he stoop to aught that is mean, though great results hang on the petty fraud.

WHAT YOU WISH TO DO, DO THOU QUICKLY.—If you wish to do good, do good; if you wish to assist people, assist people. The only way to learn to do a thing is to do it, and that implies before you learn to do right you will do wrong—you will make blunders; you will have failures—but persevere, and in the end you will learn your lesson, and many other lessons by the way.

A MAN fooled into buying a bad watch called it Faith, because it was without works, and therefore dead.

A GOOD word is an easy obligation; but not to speak ill requires only our silence, which costs us nothing.

A MIDDLE.—A grocer in a certain town keeps a little brown jug near his cider barrel, and when he wants to do the fair thing by a customer, he mingles some of the contents of the aforesaid jug with the cider. He made a mingle the other day for an old farmer, but got in a good deal of benzine and a very little cider. About an hour after drinking the farmer was observed leaning against a fence, and was heard to soliloquize: "It's too early for sunstroke, and too late to freeze to death, and I reckon it's a touch of the shakin' ager."

FORGETFUL.—There is a story going about of a man who resolved to give up drinking, and went to a temperance office to draw him up an affidavit to that effect. The document was drawn, read, and proved; the party held up his hand and murmured the usual promise. The paper was then properly sealed and delivered. "What is to pay?" asked the pledge maker. "To pay—to pay?" exclaimed the attorney. "Nothing, of course—this is a labor of love." "Nothing to pay!" returned the grateful but very forgetful pledge-taker. "You are a brick. Let's take a drink."

BE JUST AND TRUTHFUL.—Let those be the ruling and predominating principles of your life, and the reward will be certain, either in the happiness they bring to your own bosom, or the success which will attend upon all your business operations in life, or both.

CURIOUS ECONOMY.—"George, dear, don't you think it is rather extravagant of you to eat butter with that delicious jam?" "No I.ve—economical! Same pieces of bread does for both!"

MODES OF DYING.—Augustus Cæsar chose to die in a standing position, and was careful in arranging his person and dress for the occasion. Julius Cæsar, when slain by the conspirators in the Capitol, concealed his face beneath the folds of his toga, so that his enemies might not see the death pang upon his countenance. Siward, Earl of Northumberland, when at the point of death, quitted his bed and put on his armor, saying, "It becomes not a man to die like a beast." Maria Louisa, of Austria, a short time before she breathed her last, had fallen into an apparent slight slumber, and one of the ladies in attendance remarked that her Majesty seemed to be asleep. "No," replied she, "I could sleep if I would indulge repose, but I am sensible of the near approach of death, and I would not allow myself to be surprised by him in my sleep; I wish to meet him wide awake." Lord Nelson, on receiving the fatal shot, said to Captain Hardy: "They have done for me at last, Hardy; my backbone is shot through," and had the presence of mind, while being carried below, to take out his handkerchief and cover his face and stars, to be concealed from the gaze of the crew. And last of all, the great Bonaparte died in his field marshal's uniform and boots, which he had ordered to be put on a short time previous to his dissolution.

PROBABLE.—One of the surest ways for a man to be robbed of his good name is to put it on his umbrella.

DYING FOR DINNER.—A good old farmer found himself one day with his boy at the extreme end of the row, when the dinner bell sounded. Anxious to make every step count he commenced to hoe like mad, saying, to the boy as he did so, "Thomas, do you ever think about dying?" "Yes, 'said Tom "I think I shall die pretty soon if I don't have some dinner."

VENGEANCE DIRE.—After the circus two small boys met in the street. One of them, his face glowing with excitement, said, "Oh, Johnny, did you see that fellow with the snake round his neck?" No word from Johnny. "Yer seen the man in the lion's cage, un course?" No word or sign from Johnny, save and except a cloud upon his brow. "Well, yer seen the ponies with the red blankets on, didn't yer?" "Nixy!" said Johnny at last, bursting into tears. "I had to stay at home and mind our baby; but I bin lick the stuffin out of you!"

THE CHAMPION LITTLE ONE.—A paper tells of a champion little baby this time, "its face being so small that its parents have to kiss it through a pipestem." Well now, if the practice of kissing growing-up babies through a pipe-stem, or a ten-foot gaspipe, had always been indulged in, we shouldn't be called upon to use our pocket-handkerchief for sopping up tears so much as we now do

RURAL CREDITY OF THOUGHT.—Having recently gone on a visit to some friends in the country during the hottest term, a lady had the following delightful experience of the credity of thought and deficiency of tact in rural life: The lock of her dressing case got out of order, and it was sent to the village blacksmith to be opened. It chanced that during a summer through the village with her hostess they passed the blacksmith's shop, when that lady stopped and asked the blacksmith if he had got Miss Blank's dressing-case opened? "Yes, ma'am," said the ingenuous villager; "but I'm sorry to say that in doing it I broke one of the bottles of brandy."—Tableau!

"They say thine eyes, like sunny skies,

They take me all by storm."

A SHOCKING BELL.—A gentleman challenged a renowned pedestrian and runner to a race of a considerable distance with him, simply stipulating that the champion of the "footcourse" should carry ten pounds weight of any article his challenger might choose to select. In all the pride of well-tested powers, the champion cried "Done" to the bargain, when, lo and behold! his opponent selected—not only for the effectual impediment, but the most grotesque adornment of his competitor—ten pound-weight of full blown bladders! It is needless to add that the man with speed of foot lost his wager to the man with deeds of wit

MATE AND DRINK.—Poor Leech's last sketch represented an Irishman and his wife. The man had lost his hat, his hair looked as if it had been pulled and twisted in all directions, his eyes were black and swollen, his nose was broken, and his clothes were in more than their natural tatters. His wife was reproaching him for his folly in running into a fight, and, by way of reply, he says, "Whist, Biddy, whist—it's mate and drink to me."

THE TENTH SEASON OF THE UNION SQUARE THEATRE.

The preliminary season at this theatre opened August 16th with the production of a play written by Mr. A. C. Gunter, and entitled "Two Nights in Rome." The play is owned by and is produced under the managerial direction of Messrs. Butler and Follin, who have rented the theatre from Mr. A. M. Palmer for a period of four weeks. A very strong cast has been engaged for the presentation of this work, and it has been placed upon the stage with as much care and attention to details as though it was produced in the regular season of the Union Square Theatre Company.

Following this, and commencing on September 16th, the theatre will be occupied by the Blanche Roosevelt Combination, under the direction of Mr. Joseph D. Murphy, lately of the Arch Street Theatre, Philadelphia. Miss Roosevelt will inaugurate her season by the production of a new opera by Alfred Cellier, entitled "The Sultan of Mocha."

The regular season will commence on October 11th with the presentation of a new play. Meanwhile the Union Square Theatre Company are filling an enormously successful engagement at Haverly's Theatre, Chicago. They are engaged to open Goodwin's splendid new Chestnut Street Opera House, Philadelphia, on the 20th of September, where they will remain for two weeks, presenting "The Danicheffs" and "The Two Orphans."

THE BLANCHE ROOSEVELT OPERA.

An event of unusual interest to the musical world will occur at this theatre on Monday, September 18th, in the production, for the first time in New York, of Mr. Alfred Cellier's charming opera, "The Sultan of Mocha," by the Blanche Roosevelt Opera Company. This work was originally produced at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, England, and was cordially recognized and accepted as among the best of English operatic efforts. It subsequently enjoyed a prolonged "run" at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, in London. A strong cast, full chorus, ballet, and a large orchestra, have been engaged for the initial representation of "The Sultan of Mocha" in New York, and the opera will be mounted in a style of much splendor as to scenery and accessories. The composer will personally direct the music. He is already well known and esteemed in America, and the valuable collaboration which the authors of "H. M. S. Pinafore" received from his genius and ability, is generally acknowledged. Associated with so favorite and accomplished an artiste as Miss Blanche Roosevelt, he cannot fail to reap much honor and glory and substantial reward during the coming musical season. Miss Roosevelt ranks as the handsomest and most graceful singer on the lyric stage, and her voice is one of perfect melody, combining a freshness, agility and power of sustained effort rarely found united in the same individual. She is a born artist; and having the advantage of a fine physique and an attractive personal appearance, added to singular intelligence and rare culture, she may confidently look forward to a career of uninterrupted triumphs.

Miss Roosevelt will appear later in Auber's opera, "L'Ambassadoire," singing Madame Cinti Damoreau's rôle of Helen, and the score as rendered at the Opera Comique in Paris. "Nell Gwynne," one of Alfred Cellier's best works, is also in preparation, and will be given for the first time in America, Miss Roosevelt assuming the title rôle. A prominent feature of her season will be the presentation of Longfellow's idyllic work, the "Masque of Pandora," which, at the request of the poet, has been set to music for the young American diva by Mr. Cellier. Several additional songs have been written for the production by Mr. Longfellow, at whose Summer residence at Nahant Miss Roosevelt passed a part of the summer with the object of becoming imbued with the poet's ideas of his work. The scenery and costumes, after the Greek models, have been designed by the great painter, Alma Tadema, in London. The work is full of spectacular effect, and is expected to create a profound impression.

The following are the words of the song of Pandora on awaking into existence after her fashioning by Hephæstus:

What place is this? Oh, tell me, Implore,
Tell me what I am feeling, hearing, seeing.
If this be life, oh, give me more and more,
Till I am filled with the delight of being.

What forms mysterious people this dark space!
What voices and what sounds of music great me!
And who are these, so fair in form and face,
That with such gracious welcome come to meet me?

CHORUS.

Blow, bellows blow! and keep the flame from dying.
Till from the iron on our anvils lying
We forge the thunderbolts of Zeus supreme,
Whose smothered lightnings in the ashes gleam.

The Cambridge bard is much interested in the creation of the part of Pandora by Miss Roosevelt; and there is little doubt that it will add another laurel to the wreath he has long worn, and still further endear him to the hearts of the American people and the world at large.

THE NEW OPERA.

"La Fille du Tambour Major," the present reigning musical sensation in Europe, will be produced for the first time in America in this city on the 13th inst., at the pretty Standard Theatre, by Mr. Maurice Grau's newly organized French Opera Co.

The magnificence with which Mr. Grau will place this opera on the stage promises to surpass anything of the kind ever seen in this country. There will be 150 people on the stage, including a grand military band. The costumes, accessories, and mise-en-scene will be as near perfect as is possible, and the grand distribution of characters employed for the occasion, will guarantee a rendering of this opera that perhaps Paris itself cannot equal.

FANNY DAVENPORT appears Monday, September 20th, at Haverly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, in the new play written for her by Anna Dickenson, entitled "An American Girl." The play is to be elegantly mounted. Four new scenes are being prepared, and the return of Miss Davenport to the scene of her early triumphs will be extensively welcomed.

A GOOD PATIENT.—A lady called upon a physician for advice, stating that her health was "completely broken," and that she was "afflicted with a frightful collection of maladies," but as she did not specify them particularly, the doctor began to interrogate her about the condition of her nervous system, when she replied promptly that he need not trouble himself to inquire into that matter, as she had consulted Dr. Brown Sequard, and, under his advice, was taking strychnine and iron and phosphorus to build up her nerves. The doctor then suggested that he would like to examine her head.

"Oh!" said she, "that is in a very bad condition, but Dr. Clark is giving me aconite, belladonna and digitalis to lower its action."

"Your lungs?" said the doctor, inquiringly.

"Doctor Mattheson has examined my lungs," was the ready reply, "and I do not care for any other advice in that matter. He is giving me several cough mixtures."

"But I notice," said the doctor, hoping that he had now hit upon the weak point, and the one which she proposed to entrust to his special guardianship; "I observe that you have still some cough, and perhaps the trouble is in your throat rather than your lungs."

"Doctor Mattheson thought this might be so," said she, "and he sent me to Dr. Ehberg, who says there is trouble there also, and he is applying daily iodiform spray and other things."

"You wear glasses?"

"Yes, my sight was a little affected, but Doctor Noyes thinks they will be cured if I wear glasses and take his medicines long enough."

"Pray, madam," exclaimed the doctor, completely baffled in his attempt to find an unprotected point in this splendid line of defences, "will you kindly inform me what organ, or fragment of an organ, or tissue, you will not place under my charge, or consult me about?"

"Yes, doctor, if you please. I have consulted a good many specialists, as I am abundantly able to do so, and as health is more value than money, I propose to consult them all. I know you by reputation very well, and I felt sure you could tell me better than anyone else who makes a specialty of warts, and I would thank you to give me a letter of introduction to whoever you think is best. I have a wart on the back of my neck, and as I would not like to leave a scar, you will please recommend me to some one who will cure it without cutting."

"Luck" has again followed Mr. Haverly; this time to the Fifth Avenue Theatre, where "The Tourists" are playing a preliminary season to packed houses nightly. Following them, on September 20, Fanny Davenport will appear in her new play, "An American Girl," written for her by Anna Dickinson.

ROBERTSON.—Agnes Robertson (Mrs. Dion Boucicault), supported by Mr. Charles Wheatleigh and a strong dramatic company, under the direction of Max Strakosch, will commence her starring tour on September 13th at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia. Her first appearance will be in her celebrated role of Jessie Brown, the heroine in the play of "The Siege of Lucknow," in which character she has created the greatest enthusiasm, having played Jessie Brown over eight hundred times. Later in the season she will appear at one of our metropolitan theatres in a new piece written expressly for her.

When a man speaks of a very pretty girl he says she is a duck. But a woman is not to say of a very pretty girl, "She is no chicken."

ALL THE DIFFERENCE.—A contemporary takes half a column to tell "What we drink," whereas some folks have simply to wink at the bartender.

WHAT HE MADE.—A man who recently went into stock speculation was met by a friend the other day, who asked him if he had made anything? "Yes," said he, "I made an assignment this morning."

ARCTIC ICE.—A school-boy wrote:—"When people write about arctic ice it is said that they refer to ice up North, which is as old as the ark."

The Fifth Avenue Theatre, under Mr. Haverly's management, is undergoing a thorough overhauling and refurbishing, and will open on Monday, August 23, with a preliminary season given by "The Tourists," who have been so successful on previous occasions.

THE WAY TO TREAT INJURIES.—If a bee stings you, will you go to the hive and destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? If you receive a trifling injury do not go about the streets proclaiming it and be anxious to avenge it, Let it drop. It is a idiom to say little respecting the injuries you may have received.

TIME.—As every thread of gold is valuable, so is every minute of time; and as it would be great folly to shoe horses—as Nero did—with gold, so it is to spend time in trifles.

MATURE LOVE.—Perhaps love is never so potent as when it seizes upon those who passed their first youth, or even those who have passed the prime of life. The choice made is then likely to be thoroughly suited to the nature of the man; and any intelligent gifts on the part of the woman are likely to be more attractive to a man of this age than to a younger person.

WHAT HE WEIGHED.—"Tom, you seem to gain flesh every day; the grocery business must agree with you. What did you weigh last?" "Well, Jim, I really forget now; but it strikes me it was a pound of butter."

THE young ladies question: "Is he married?"

GRAVITY.—Too much gravity argues a shallow mind.

NO ONE is more profoundly sad than he who laughs too much.

THE first and worst of all frauds is to cheat oneself. All sin is easy after that.

TIMID WOMAN.—An officer in the regular army laughed at a timid woman because she was alarmed at the noise of a cannon when a salute was fired. He subsequently married that timid woman, and six months afterwards he took off his boots in the hall when he came in late at night.

ORDERLY HABITS.—It would not be easy to detail in all its force the misery which is caused by the early neglect of orderly habits. It is a source not only of frightful unhappiness in families, but of great public vice; for, after all, the world is made up of those whose characters have been formed for good or for evil by the early training and example of mothers.

ENTERTAINING COMPANY.—In winter, it is pleasant for young folk to give and attend social parties, if they are not made too expensive for people of moderate means. The custom of preparing an extravagant supper, particularly when there are no servants to perform the drudgery, is a foolish one. Now, if we will have parties; if we are to enjoy this life, and derive pleasure and profit from society while we may, let us adopt a simpler method of entertainment, and during the evening our friends spend with us, pass round fruit and cake in an informal way. That will cost comparatively little, but will prove that we are hospitably inclined, and is a sufficient evidence of welcome.

HONESTY AND POLICY.—The man who is only honest when honesty is the best policy is not really an honest man. Honesty is not swerving policy, but stable principle. An honest man is honest from his inmost soul, nor designs to stoop to aught that is mean, though great results hang on the petty fraud.

WHAT YOU WISH TO DO, DO THOROUGHLY.—If you wish to do good, do good; if you wish to assist people, assist people. The only way to learn to do a thing is to do it, and that implies before you learn to do right you will do wrong—you will make blunders, you will have failures—but persevere, and in the end you will learn your lesson, and many other lessons by the way.

A MAN fooled into buying a bad watch called it Faith, because it was without works, and therefore dead.

SWORE OFF.—Collectors report that a great many people swore off on the 1st of January—from paying bills.

A "TALE OF A LAMB."—Farmer Hall, a short time ago, bought a pet lamb for his little children to play with. It was a pretty good sized lamb, and strong and vigorous; but old Hall said he preferred that kind, because the children would be less likely to hurt it. On the day that it came home, they turned it out in the front yard, where it strayed about nibbling the grass, while the farmer tied up his geraniums. Mrs. Hall had the children in the house, and she was reading to them from a book a description of the characteristics of lambs. The account said: "The lamb is one of the most playful and innocent of animals. So kind and meek is it that its name has for centuries been the synonym of gentleness and sweetness of disposition. It never injures any one; and when it is attacked it always suffers humbly and in silence. There is something so beautiful about the gentle little animal that——" Just at this point Mrs. Hall was interrupted by the voice of her husband coming from the yard. It sounded as if he were in distress of some kind. The whole family flew out upon the porch, and there they saw that pet lamb, whose name was the synonym of gentleness, engaged in butting the "old man." It would butt him in the ribs and knock him over, and then it would butt him in the legs, and butter him on the side, and plunge its head into his stomach, and jam its head against his chest. When he rose he butted his shins, and when he stooped over to rub them it butted his head. Then it butted him generally wherever a chance presented itself, and when it had doubled him all up under the old Norway maple, it butted down three rose bushes butted a pleasure garden vase to fragments, butted two palings off the fence, and danced off down the road, butting at the tree-boxes, the hitching-posts, and the northwest wind. But dear, kind old Mr. Thompson finally knocked it on the head with a club and brought it home to Mr. Hall's farm; and subsequently, when they had the kind leg for dinner, the "injured party" observed to Mrs. Hall that from the manner in which the lamb cut, he should believe that it was born during the late Rebellion, and that it was, in fact, a terrific old ram. Then he said he should go down and see the man who sold it to him for a lamb, and bang him on the left ear.

A GOOD word is an easy obligation; but not to speak ill requires only our silence, which costs us nothing.

"THEY GOGO."—An old lady read in her paper:—"Another African explorer recently died in Ugogo." "And still they'll go, go to that wretched land," she said.

JEALOUSY.—No passion is more banner one which seeks to hide itself more than jealousy. It is really ashamed of itself; if it appears, it carries its stain and disgrace on the forehead.

THE TONGUE'S POWER.—It is observed in the course of worldly things that men's fortunes are oftener made by their tongues than by their virtues. Ease and comfort are natural desires of the human heart, and there are thorns, real or imaginary, in everyone's pathway. But sitting down and brooding will never bring power to overcome them. Rather "be up and doing," thankful for the blessings still remaining.

ABSURD QUESTION.—A German lately applied for a situation as a sailor on board a vessel lying in the North river "Have you ever been to sea?" asked the captain. The German stared a moment, and then said, "Does you s'pose I come over from Germany in a balloon?"

DRINKRIGHT.—Some mischievous boys at a country academy, seeing a sign over a grocery which read "Arnold Drinkright," painted out the first three letters, leaving it "Old Drink right.' The sign was soon restored to its former condition, and then the boys painted a D before the first name, making it "Darnold Drinkright." And then the grocer in despair painted his name out.

MODES OF DYING.—Augustus Cæsar chose to die in a standing position, and was careful in arranging his person and dress for the occasion. Julius Cæsar, when slain by the conspirators in the Capitol, concealed his face beneath the folds of his toga, so that his enemies might not see the death pang upon his countenance. Siward, Earl of Northumberland, when at the point of death, quitted his bed and put on his armor, saying. "It becomes not a man to die like a beast." Louis, of Austria, a short time before she breathed her last, had fallen into an apparent slight slumber, and one of the ladies in attendance remarked that her Majesty seemed to be asleep. "No," replied she' "I could sleep if I would indulge repose, but I am sensible of the near approach of death, and I would not allow myself to be surprised by him in my sleep; I wish to meet him wide awake." Lord Nelson, on receiving the fatal shot, said to Captain Hardy: "They have done for me at last, Hardy; my backbone is shot through;" and has the presence of mind, while being carried below, to take out his handkerchief and cover his face and stars, to be concealed from the gaze of the crew. And last all, the great Bonaparte died in his field marshal's uniform and boots, which he had ordered to be put on a short time previous to his dissolutos.

NEVER INTERFERE.—Recently a man, at the earnest solicitation of a neighbor, undertook to pacify the latter's wife. He entered the house with a brave heart and a firm step, but when he came out three minutes later his hair was perfectly white, and he limped

NOT THE SAME EVERYWHERE.—"The milkmaid is not the same everywhere," says a moral philosopher. To which an Irish man responds: "That's so. The milk made in the city is quite different from the milk made in the country

MOTTO by a Communist.—Order in heaven's worst law

DYING FOR DINNER.—A good old farmer found himself one day with his boy at the extreme end of the row, when the dinner bell sounded. Anxious to make every step count he commenced to hoe his way back, saying to the boy as he did so, "Thomas, do you ever like a boot dying?" "Yes," said Tom "I think I shall die pretty soon if I don't have some dinner.'

VENGEANCE DIRE.—After the circus two small boys met in the street. One of them, his face glowing with excitement, said, "Oh, Johnny, did you see that fellow with the snakes round his neck?" No word from Johnny. "Yer seen the man in the lion's cage, un course?" No word or sign from Johnny, save and except a cloud upon his brow. "Well, yer seen the ponies with the red blankets on, didn't yer?" "Nixy!" said Johnny at last, bursting into tears. "I had to stay at home and mind our baby; but I kin lick the stuffin out of you!"

NOTHING LIKE BRASS.—In a Paris café the other day a gentleman gave the waiter a five franc piece, and told him to take for his glass of bock and bring him the change. In this change he remarked a suspicious looking coin; so, holding it up to the man, he explained that it was not good. "Oh, that's of no consequence," said the waiter, putting it in his pocket; "it does not matter. Thank you, I am much obliged" So abashed was the gentleman, that he did not dare venture to reclaim it.

AN OLD TOPER, in the last stages of dropsy, was told by his physician that nothing would save him but being "tapped." His son (a witty little shaver), objected to this operation, saying "Papa, Papa, don't submit to it, for you know there was never anything tapped in our house that lasted more than a week."

RURAL CREDITY OF THOUGHT.—Having recently gone on a visit to some friends in the country during the heated term, a lady had the following delightful experience of the crudity of thought and deficiency of tact in rural life: The lock of her dressing case got out of order, and it was sent to the village blacksmith to be opened. It chanced that during a saunter through the village with her hostess they passed the blacksmith's shop, when that lady stopped and asked the blacksmith if he had got Miss Blank's dressing-case opened? "Yes, ma'am," said the ingenuous villager; "but I'm sorry to say that in doing it I broke one of the bottles of brandy."—Tableau!

AN old bachelor probably wrote the following:

"Twixt women and wine
Man's lot is to smart;
'Tis wine makes his head ache,
And woman his heart."

TAKEN BY STORM.—Tom Moore is the author of the following gushing little epigram, which has been credited to a dozen others:

"They say thine eyes, like sunny skies,
The chief attraction form;
I see no sunshine in those eyes—
They take me all by storm."

SURE to produce short crops—The hair dresser's shears.

CENSURE of a man's self is generally oblique praise; it is in order to show how much he can spare.—Dr. Johnson.

SOUNDS AND SIGNS.—The click and clack of the croquet ball is heard again in the land in connection with: "You did not!" "I say I did!" "Oh, you horrid chest!" "Oh, for shame!" "Ma! ma!"

OVERCHARGE.—Culprit arrested for trying to rob a cabmen. Magistrate to complainant: 'Proceed to make your charge." Prisoner: "Your Worship, these cabmen always overcharge. Don't believe a word he says.'

THE LATEST FASHION.—"Tight, very" said a wag, when a young lady he knew passed him in the street.—"What do you mean?" asked his astonished companion.—"Only the dress, my boy."—The lady was attired in the latest fashion

MORE DEVOTION.—A man committed suicide by drowning, lately, in six inches of water. He couldn't have done it alone; but his wife, with that self sacrificing devotion and helpfulness so characteristic of the sex, sat on his head

A SHOCKING SELL.—A gentleman challenged a renowned pedestrian and runner to a race of a considerable distance with him, simply stipulating that the champion of the "footcourse" should carry ten pounds weight of any article his challenger might choose to select. In all the pride of well-tested powers, the champion cried "Done" to the bargain, when, lo and behold! his opponent selected—not only for the effectual impediment, but the most grotesque adornment—a live tailor—ten pounds' weight of full blown bladders! It is needless to add that the man with speed of foot lost his wager to the man with deeds of wit.

HIS MOTTO.—A short-hair lady in classic Kalamazoo can set one hundred and thirty sheets in eight hours. "Not slow, but sheer," is his motto.

THINK OF THIS SERIOUSLY.—No life can be well ended that has not been well spent, and what life has been well spent that has had no purpose, that has accomplished no object—that has realized no hopes?

YIELDING.—The true woman is always ready to sacrifice herself to others. From earliest childhood the difference between the sexes is plainly marked; and in the nursery—as in the schoolroom and the home—there is always one who is ready to give up, and one who is always to be given up to. The former develops into the mother—the womanly woman par excellence; the latter is never more than a toy, a thing to be caressed and waited on, decked with jewels, and clothed in purple and fine linen, but never asked to work, to think, to suffer, or to sacrifice. These are the things, which she requires from others, not gives of her own grace—in which she is the exact opposite of her sister, the womanly woman, who finds her greatest happiness in making the happiness of others, and her best joy in sacrifice, self-denial and duty.

The Official and only Paper Circulated in this Theatre.

"LED ASTRAY."

During the run of "Led Astray" the management have received a large number of letters from their patrons commending the play, its sentiment and its acting. The subjoined is from a distinguished member of the New York Bar, and as it seems to meet most forcibly some objections which have been urged against the play, we re-produce it:

"To the Management of the Union Square Theatre:

GENTLEMEN—It was with some misgiving that I took my wife to see "Led Astray," because I thought where there was so much smoke there must be some fire, but I feel compelled to write you that a more beautiful play, and one more free from anything unfit for a lady to see or hear, it has never in twenty years theatre-going been my good fortune to witness.

I cannot conceive any reason why so healthful and so beautiful a play should be so grossly misrepresented, and I desire to add to the testimony which you must have received from many, my expression of entire satisfaction in which last evening was passed at the Union Square Theatre. I never spent so pleasant an evening, and I mean that my mother and sisters shall see it, for in it there is nothing but what appeals to the best sentiments of the human heart—forgiveness—and no one can witness it without feeling a wish to become better and stronger."

Very truly yours,

THE THEATRES.

WALLACK'S.

The thirteenth week of the comedy series at this theatre has been marked by the production of Sir Bulwer Lytton's favorite comedy of "Money." Mr. Lester Wallack's personation of Alfred Evelyn has always been one of his favorite characterizations, and the public have never failed to recognize its many merits.

Additional interest has been given to this revival by the reappearance of Mr. John Brougham in the character of Benjamin Stout, M. P., who was greeted at the first performance by a reception so cordial as to have been almost embarrassing. It was at least a gratifying evidence that New York audiences do not forget old favorites, and showed Mr. Brougham how glad every one was to welcome him back to the scene of former successes.

The rest of the cast of "Money" is in able hands, and comprises the names of Messrs. Floyd, Beckett, Polk, Carroll, and Misses Jeffreys-Lewis, Goldthwaite and Madame Ponisi. The restoration of the club-room scene gives the management an opportunity to make the usual display of good taste and superb stage setting to which the patrons of this theatre are accustomed.

BOOTH'S.

"The new play "La Femme de Feu," has been a marked and decided success, due mainly to the artistic and spirited rendering of the part of the heroine, "Diane Berard," by Mrs. J. B. Booth. The play itself is a wonderfully interesting development of the power of love over a wild, passionate nature, undisciplined by moral principle. Mrs. Booth has made a thoroughly careful study of the mental attributes of the character, and succeeds in presenting most forcibly to the audience those phases of the inner workings of the mind and soul of the heroine at which the author has barely hinted. In the scene with her husband where she accuses him of being her accomplice in the murder of her first husband, Mrs. Booth rises to the full requirements of the situation, and raised her audience to an enthusiasm which resulted in a double call before the curtain.

Let us add that Mrs. Booth's costumes are marvels of taste, elegance and richness, and that the setting of the play is equal to the well-earned reputation of this theatre in that regard.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.

The announcement at this theatre for the ensuing week gives promise of a "Dramatic Millenium" which is to be arrived at by the Lion of Sentiment lying down with the Lamb of Comedy and Burlesque. The sentiment is represented we suppose by Mr. Ned Buntline's life-like picture of "Life on the Plains" and the comedy and burlesque by a variety entertainment comprising some of the very best performers in that diverse and comprehensive style of amusement.

NIBLO'S GARDEN.

The Vokes Family will appear all this week in their great specialty of "Fun in a Fog," the piece in which they won so much success at the Union Square Theatre.

It has never lost its popularity, for as well as being entertaining and amusing, it possesses the great charm of being truthful without a taint of vulgarity, and exhibits all the members of this talented family in their several best specialties. "Fun in a Fog" will be preceded each evening by a favorite comedietta.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A season of seven nights and two matinees of English opera, with our favorite prima donna, Clara Louise Kellogg, supported by an excellent company, commenced at the Academy on Wednesday evening, January 21st.

Lucia was the initial performance, and was followed by Martha, Maritana, and the Bohemian Girl; with such accomplished artistes as Miss Kellogg, Mme. Van Zandt, Mrs. Zelda Seguin, and Mr. Theodore Habelman, we have no doubt that the short season will prove immensly attractive.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

The present week will be marked by the production of Mr. Augustin Daly's first dramatic work of the present season, which will be given after long and costly preparation. Miss Ada Dyas will make her reappearance in the role of the heroine in the newplay, which is entitled "Folline."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

"Humpty Dumpty" continues to attract the usual large audiences which have always flocked to see him since his first appearance in New York six years ago. Novelties are said to be in preparation to be produced when "Humpty Dumpty" ceases to draw full houses. We suppose that period may be put off indefinitely.

Miss Jennie Lee, who will be favorably remembered by the audiences of this theatre, has become a great favorite in San Francisco. On the occasion of her benefit at Maguire's Opera House, which took place on the 19th inst., she drew the largest audience ever assembled in that theatre. A number of the company at the California Theatre volunteered for the occasion; amongst others we note the name of Mr. Barton Hill, who appeared in the third act of "London Assurance."

Miss Lee was the recipient of a number of handsome presents, and was fairly covered with bouquets. The occasion seems to have been a gala one and the fair beneficiare appears to have firmly established herself in the affections of the San Francisco theatre goers.

ART FOR THE STAGE.

SCENIC PAINTING AND PAINTERS.

BY JOHN BANVARD.

The scenic artist—he who paints scenery for theatrical representation—has generally been considered low among the students of "High Art." Really, his talents should be estimated among the highest of the art school, from the fact that it actually requires greater skill to paint a good stage scene than it does to paint a good oil picture. Hence, while there are hundreds of talented artists in oil to be found, there are but few, very few, really good scenic painters. This assertion may create surprise, but let the reader just call to his remembrance the names of the artists in this line—artists of reputation—with whose works he is acquainted, or whose fame is known to him, and he will be surprised how few there are.

Of course, as in all professions, there are quacks in this, who, from the scarcity of artists of real merit, find ready employment at minor establishments; but scenic artists of such a reputation in this country as the late Stanfield possessed relatively in England, are very rare. We can enumerate very nearly all, and with a dozen names.

That it requires greater skill to paint a stage scene than a ca[n]vas we have stated, lies in this: the artist works for certain effects to eyes placed on an av[e]rage feet from his canvas, while only a foot from it; or[,] must have his eyes at a distance, while his can[v]as from him. The artist has no such disadvantage to effect he intends to produce applies his brush, [a]s inspection."

Another disadvantage to overcome is the drying. Distemper pictures undergo an entire cess of drying. There is comparatively nothing of this in oil painting. Then the relative rapidity with which distemper colors dry prevents the artist from working up, or, as it is sometimes termed, "playing" upon his work. An artist in oil can play upon his canvas as much as he pleases, by reason of the slowness of his oils in drying. If his work does not suit him, he can wipe it out and make another trial.

The scenery painter cannot do this; what he lays on in color has generally to remain; there is no wiping out for him, and what he does must be done on the run, so to speak; must be done with an unerring skill that needs no retouching. Hence a scene painter requires and acquires a certain free hand that cannot be attained so readily in oil work.

Another disadvantage of the scenic artist lies in the changes and alterations effected in colors by night. Tints laid on by daylight assume a different tone when seen under the gaslight. For instance, a beautiful soft sky, in the manner of Claude, painted for the daylight effect of an ordinary gallery, would be entirely lost in tone and color, and would look pale and sickly by the light of a stage at night.

There are other minor disadvantages which need not be here specified. Hence, I argue, it requires a higher ordor of talent and skill, with longer experience, to become a first-class scene painter in oils.

To illustrate this assertion, we have never known an artist, whose only practice has been in oil painting, that could paint a respectable scene for the stage. We have known of numbers who have essayed, but all made signal failure, except one or two, who persevered—and, as it were, went through a course of practice. Their previous knowledge of drawing alone was of avail to them; but they did not attain any eminence in the new profession. The last of these we remember was Lee, of Cincinnati.

But, on the contrary, let the scene painter go at oil pictures, he succeeds almost immediately. The peculiar freedom and mode of manipulation he has acquired at scene work is of immense advantage to him. Hence it is some of the greatest artists who ever lived were at first scene painters in the theatre. Roberts, whose great work of the of Jerusalem," so well-known copies in this country, and on "Egypt and Syria" blic library, was originally a Stanfield, the great years a scenic artist He recently died, ired thousand dollars. De Coture, Paul and other French me, were scene painters on the Sistine the wonderful scenery. His ould call it at d enemy, the this. (Every- e of the found- adieny was a oldest in this ll remember aiu at the old Park, the "Trial of Queen Katharine." Mr. Evers has now abandoned scene painting, and devotes his attention to cabinet pictures.

Any person who has been abroad, after viewing the superb historical and correct scenery so accurately painted in Shakespeare's plays at Booth's, must acknowledge that American artists are equal, if not superior in many respects, to European. We have visited all the great theatres in the world, and we have never seen the Roman scenery exhibited at Booth's excelled.

We remember some time since seeing a very correct architectural piece, painted by Joseph Ayers, of an Egyptian edifice, the pronaos of the temple of Isis; and, as we had visited that ruin in old Egypt, we remember its fidelity to the original.

The exquisite paintings of Marston of the Union Square Theatre have gained for him a great reputation. The beautiful fairy scene of "The Wicked World" and his charming interior painted for "Led Astray" has never been equalled on the metropolitan stage.

Some of the drop curtains of New York exhibit a high order of talent. At the same time employed in painting a drop curtain was devoted by one of our best scenic artists—say Minard Lewis—to a cabinet picture, we are confident he would receive higher recognition.

[From the Spirit of the Times.]

A paragraph purportiug to give the figures paid by the Union Square Theatre to authors since the opening of that establishment as a comedy theatre has been floating through our exchanges, and contains so many misstatements that we have taken the trouble to verify the facts. It is very doubtful if any other management in the country has been equally liberal in this direction in the same space of time. Last season M. Sardou received for "Agnes" over $5,000; Mr. John Brougham, for "Aiherley Court," two weeks, $500; Mr. Hart Jackson, for "One Hundred Years Old," over $2,000; Mr. Daly was paid liberally for his version of "Frou-Frou," and with Mr. Jackson, received a handsome sum for their joint version of "Fernande." This season Mr. G. Fawcett Rowe received for "The Geneva Cross" nearly $2,000, and Mr. Gilbert, author of "The Wicked World," received through his agents nearly $700 for three weeks' performances of that comedy. Mr. Dion Boucicault has already received for "Led Astray" $5,000, and has every prospect of receiving as much more before the piece is withdrawn.

The "London" Restaurant, kept by that prince of good fellows, George Parkins, 155 Sixth Avenue, is one of the handsomest in the city. Here everything can be found to tempt the taste of the most exacting epicure, and at very moderate prices, considering the character and style of the house. Just the place for theatre parties.

Love at First Sight.

A pure and brilliant complexion is the most bewitching of womanly charms. It dazzles and fascinates the ruder sex beyond any other female attraction. This, however, will be no news to the ladies. They know well enough that hearts, upon which the most classical features would make no impression if unalliod to a fair skin, often surrender at discretion (or without discretion) to complexional beauty. They know too, that this charm can be acquired when nature has doaled it by using "Lahiii's Bloom of Youth," the most inestimable of toilet appliances, combining the elements of external loveliness with he most wholesome and agreeable properties. For sale all druggists.

The elegant and artistic dresses worn by most of our leading actresses are designed and made by Lord & Taylor, Broadway and Twentieth street.

Geo. F. Browne respectfully requests his old friends and patrons to consider, and if they are of the opinion that they had no fault to find heretofore, he requests their presence at his new place, Nos. 33 and 35 West 28th street, next door to Daly's new theatre.

Persons desirous of advertising in this programme should apply at the publication office, 14 Murray street, or to Mr. E. C. Chamberlin, door-keeper of this theatre.

Astounding Offers!—The interesting, the Beautiful the Artistic, the Large, and the truly-celebrated Oil Chromos, "The Old Oaken Bucket," "Be "Captive Child," "Home, Sweet Home," and "After the Storm," given as premiums to each $3 Yearly Subscriber to DEMOREST'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE, in relation, 1874, 1875, 1876 and 1877. Do not fail to get the "Old Oaken Bucket" for 1874.

THIS HAS BEEN AN UNUSUALLY MILD WINTER, AND A disastrous one to merchants, particularly manufacturers and dealers in Furs. One of our most enterprising firms, C. C. SHAYS, & Co., manufacturers, Broadway and Tenth street, imported during the months of September and October large quantities of elegant Seal and Russian sable skins, which they manufactured into SACQUES, MUFFS, BOAS, CAPES and GLOVES. They made preparations for a large business, and although they have done the largest fur business on Broadway, they have not, in consequence of the very mild weather and the panic combined, done what they expected, so that they have a very LARGE STOCK of Furs on hand still to be sold. This firm—and by the way they are recognized as the LEADING FASHIONABLE RESORT FOR RELIABLE AND ELEGANT FURS—have made a rule never to carry over any furs during the Summer. To insure sales they are offering the most decided bargains ever known in this city, as they are determined to sell off their entire stock, some $2,000 worth. Our readers, who have not purchased, will find this an excellent opportunity for buying a good set of furs or a seaskin sacque, muff or cap at an extremely low price. The goods are strictly first-class, and can be relied upon. A word to the wise, etc.

Some thoughtful person says: "It is unkind to ridicule those items in the papers about centenarians. It is no easy thing to become a centenarian. Several have failed."

An embryo poet, who is certainly a close observer of human nature, remarks: "Time marches on with the slow, measured tread of a man working by the day."

A certain man has a watch which he says has gained enough to pay for itself in six months.

Some young chap thinks it easy to enter an old man's house, because his gait is broken and his locks are few.

An English publisher who advertised 'Joaquin Miller, half-calf," is threatened with a libel.

"Matches maid," is the way a presumptuous young man addressed a lady of a very uncertain age.

"There!" said Jones, as he wrathfully pushed away the pie which his landlady had served him, "the stuff isn't fit for a pig to eat, and I ain't going to eat it."

A Cincinnati matron says that there is not a fashionable girl in that city but would rather stay away from church than be seen wearing a pair of single-button gloves.

Tipkins aroused his wife from a sound sleep the other night, saying he had seen a ghost in the shape of an ass. "O, let me sleep," was the reply of the irate dame, "and don't be frightened at your own shadow."

"A German peddler sold a man a liquid for the extermination of insects. "And how do you use it?" inquired the man, after he had bought it. "Ketch te insect un drop von little drop into his mouth," answered the peddler. "The deuce you do!" exclaimed the purchaser; "I could kill it in half the time by stamping on it." "Vell," calmly exclaimed the Germa , "dat is a good vay, too."

"The Israelites Crossing the Red Sea," is one of the paintings exhibited by a professor in Maine, who claims in his advertisement that they were "photographic direct from nature."

Every person who has ever met a commercial tourist, with his little satchel will appreciate the following: "The drummers came down like wolves on the fold, their toes were all frosted, their noses all cold. Their weather-pocked bugies soon shone through the town, they gobbled the money and sold it down, then took a few orders and fit out of here, with their heads full of busine and their skins full of beer."

A great many children get on the wrong track because the switch is misplaced.

A poem appeared in a Boston paper recently, "written by a servant who lived twenty years in a family."

Another old citizen of Illinois is prematurely no more. "In life's great game of poker," as the aged minister tearfully observed in his funeral discourse, "he has thrown down his hand, which, permit me to say, brethren, was equal to four aces and a queen, he has surrendered his chips, drained his glass to the dregs, and walked out." And, what is most remarkable about it is, the full force of the impropriety of keeping her rat-poison in the tea-pot did not seem to strike the old lady until about the time of the inquest.

"What makes you fell so uncomfortable when you have done wrong?" asked a teacher, who was lecturing his pupils on conscience, "My father's leather strap!" answered a little boy.

A lecture committee at Milford, Me. wrote to Boston inquiring what a certain lecturer would charge to read for them. The agent answered "Three hundred dollars and expenses. Answer, as the lecturer will sail for Europe at once, if you don't want her." The reply of the committee was brief but expressive: "Let her sail."

A St Louis critic says in reference to the approaching visit of a favorite musical artist: "She has returned, having won great trimphs in foreign lands to glean fresh barrels here." St. Louis is famed for its lager, but perhaps the fellow means laurels.

Carlyle says discourtesy originates in dulness alone.

According to Punch the substitute for coal is warm weather.

The sentinel who did n't sleep on his watch had left it at the pawnbrokers.

An Illinois editor mildly remarks: "If you can't give us wood, remember us in your prayers. It is something to know, as we sit and shiver, that we are not forgotten if the stove is cold."

Some people don't know enough to quit when they have said a good thing and other don't know enough to say a good thing before they quit. If there are any people who are not embraced in one of these two classes we are not acquainted with them.

A bachelor, at a banquet in Newcastle, England, gave the following toast: "The woman and coal of Durham county—O, how decolate would the fireside be without them!"

Sowing wild oats would be a very fine thing were it not for the crop one has to reap.

A BUNCH OF KEYS

OR, THE HOTEL.

A BUNCH OF KEYS

BY CHAS. H. HOYT.

It is a collection of incidents intended to touch no moral in particular, shr[illegible] to run their course like Charles H. Hoyt, excited, aided and abetted by Willie Edouin. The piece is called a comedy, because nobody in the company could be described almost everything put upon the stage at present, and the audience do not mind the change of eccentricity, having enough genuine humor for. The people who rush their lives illudes and reputation in presenting the piece, and the characters they are alleged to assume, may be seen by a careful study of the following table:

INDIVIDUALS IN ACT I.

TEDDY KEYS, a Wild Rosebud with the Accompanying Thorns ..... MARIETTA NASH
ROSE KEYS, her sister; also of the Rose variety, but full blown and ..... ADA STANHOPE father of the Prim-rose order.
MAY KEYS, also a sister of Teddy, the third and last of the Bunch of Keys ..... BLANCHE SEYMOUR
DOLLY DOBBS, a singular domestic—that is "she breaks a few Crockery" ..... SAM CROSBIE
MATILDA JENKINS, searching for her lost one ..... IDA McCOY
GILLY SPOONER, a rural manner, engaged to Rose ..... GEORGE LAURI
JONAS GRIMES, a Brakeman who is one of Nature's Noblemen—this is ..... EUGENE FIELD the author's ideal of a perfect man—watch him ..... CHAS. B. STEVENS
TOM HARDING, Mary Lou—and gets one ..... WM. SMITH
SAM FOSS, looking for a job—and gets one ..... ACT I.
LITTLETON SNAGGS, Esq., a legal gentleman, who knows as much of running a hotel as a good many in that business do ..W. C. CROSBIE

WHAT DOOLEY SAYS.

He Has the Right of the Cleveland-Hill Dispute.

GOT IT STRAIGHT FROM JOYCE.

Interesting Account of a National Episode—He Establishes the Standing of Mr. MacVeagh.

"Are you going to vote?" asked Mr. McKenna.

"Am I gawn to vote?" rejoined Mr. Dooley. "Am I gawn to vote? Jawn, d'ye take me f'r a Chineyman. Am I gawn to vote! D'ye hear th' omadhon talk? Ye must think I'm Prisidint iv th' United States. Do I look like Big Steve?"

"Isn't Cleveland going to vote?" asked Mr. McKenna.

"No, sir; not if they'd sind afther him in carredge. An' I don't blame him. William Ayce was in here yesterdah an' he tol' me out it. He's a personal frin' iv th' bin Guy's. 'Tis 'Grove' an' 'Bill' with in two lads, an' manys th' can they've ased f'm th' White House to- ther whin th' missus was out silin' with th' kids. Willum says is because they thrun th' Main Guy up in lair. Ye see 'twas this here way. Cleve- nd, him and Hill had th' gloves on nst or twice, d'ye mind, at th' prim'ries ! Steve give it to him he-ard, took in th' hole diligation, an' all he lift f'r Hill to do as to set in the gallery. Well, sir, whin d come to passin' th' tahruff bill, d'ye nd, Jawn, says th' Main Guy: 'I'ts a od thing. Push it along,' he sa-ays Hill, he says: 'Push it along,' he says. Th' tell wijou,' says Hill, he says. 'Yo've ad me up again th' bricks long enough,' s says. 'I'm twinty-wan mesilf,' he says. n' with that he goes an' puts th' boots into t' tahriff bill, f'r to get square with th' ain Guy, ye see, f'r givin' it to him at th' im'ries. Well, Cleveland he hasn't wan prrud to say on' he tol' Willum Joyce, says, 'Wan a little while, I'll get a mapevine on that there Hill,' he says, 'an teak his back with his feet,' he says. An', re enough, here's Hill runnin' f'r a good ing an' th' main guy sets back an' niver ts an eye. 'Will ye vote f'r me!' says ill. 'Nare a vote,' says th' Main Guy; 'I on't know ye.' So he sets up there, be ivins, like a Chineyman, an' poor Hill es be lammin' round buyin' dhrinks f'r is-ads an' no wan to help him. Willum yce tells me ther-re ain't av'n a picture Hill in wan iv the White House windows. 'But ye can bet ye'er life, Jawn, I'll not be me vote. I'm navether a Chineyman, Injun or th' Prisidint. I'm goin' to vote f MacVeagh because she's wan iv us."

"Bill Lor'mer told me he was Dutch," id Mr. McKenna.

"'Tis a dam lie. I knowed plinty iv Mac- eagh's bejant. There was three in me own county. Wan was a blacksmith an' he other two was farmers. Hogan MacVeagh, ose prisidint iv th' Young Man's Sodality until he sailed in wan day an' shaked th' sicerity f'r sayin' St. Patrick were a gamer man nor Dub'l O'Connell. There was wan iv thim a great frind iv mine that away whin he was a la-ad f'r America. D'ye mind askin' this here MacVeagh what's his first name?"

"I know," said Mr. McKenna. "It's Franklin."

"Franklin? I niver knowed no MacVeagh be that name. Th' wan that went away they called Cornelius. Is he a short, thin man?"

"He is."

"Speaks with a Wixf'rd accint, like?"

"I don't know about that, but he speaks mighty queer."

"'Tis th' same man. 'Tis th' same man. A thin man with a Wixford accint! I know him well he hivins, I'm with him stronger than iver. Connaught, ye jool, 'tis ye that tur rns out th' wans that makes thin knuckle down."

So if you drop into Mr. Dooley's little liquor shop any night before election like enough he'll ask you, as he passes out your drink what you think if the chances of his townsy, the Hon. Councilman MacVeagh.

MRS. HOGAN'S NAMES

How They Fell Upon the Happy Hogan Family.

CHRISTENING IN ARCHEY ROAD.

Mr. Hogan's Futile Attempts to Perpetuate His Family History at the Baptismal Font.

Mr. Dooley yawned. "You look tired," said Mr. McKenna.

"I am that," said Mr. Dooley. "I was at Hogan's christenin' las' night an' 'twas 2 o'clock before Mrs. Duffy come down th' road singin': 'Iv a-hal th' towns in I-erland, Kil-a-kinny f'r me-e-e-e.'"

"Have Hogan another?"

"He have; in tinth. An' 'twas near to breakin' up th' family. Ye know th' time we seen Hogan comin' out iv th' second story window on his shir-risleeves. That was whin he said they was no such a saint in th' catalogue as Aloysius. He wanted f'r to na'ame th' kid before this wan Michael. 'She was named Aloysius an' th' family calls it Toodles,' I belave. Be hivins, Hogan have growed gray haired an' bald thryin' f'r to inthrodjooce Michael or Bridget in th' family. Michael was his father's name an' Bridget was his mother's, an' good names they ar-re; none better. Th' first wan was a boy an' after Mrs. Hogan had th' polis in 'twas called Sarsfield. Th' second was a girl an' 'twas called Lucy, d'ye mind? Lucy! Yes, by dad, Lucy Hogan. Thin they was Michael an'

His Experience in Crossing the Broad Atlantic.

ROSCOMMON MAN'S REVENGE.

And the Man from Tipperary with His Little Baby—Tragedy Mixed with the Comedy.

"Poor lads, poor lads," said Mr. Dooley, putting aside his newspaper and rubbing his glasses. "'Tis a ha-ard lot thim's, thim that go down in th' say in ships, as Shakespeare says. Ye nivver see a storm on th' ocean? Ye coorse ye didn't. How will ye, ye that was bor-rn away fr'm home? But I have, Jawn; may th' saints save me fr'm another.

"I come over in th' bowels iv a big, crazy balloon iv a propeller-lik' wan iv thim that ye see hooked up to Dimpsey's dock, loaded with lumber an' slabs an' Swedes. We watched th' little of island fadin' away behind us, with th' sun shrikin' th' white bowsprus iv queenstown an' lightin' up th' chimbleys iv Martin Horan's liquor shtore. Not wan iv us but had lift near all we loved behin', an' many a chanst that we'd iver see soon th' shtruhout out iv th' pot above the ol' peat fire again. Yis, by dad, there was wan—is lad fr'm th' County Rosscommon. Divvie th' tear he shed. But whin we had pa-arted fr'm land he turns to me an' says: 'Well, we're on our way,' he says. 'We are that,' says I. 'No chanst fr thim to turn round an go back,' says he. 'Divvie th' fut,' says I. 'Thin,' he says, ralsin' his voice, 'to 'ell with th' Prince iv Wales,' he says. 'To 'ell with him,' he says.

"An that was th' last we see iv sky or sun fr six days. That night come up th' divvie's own storm. Th' waves tore and wallaped th' ol' boat an' th' wind howled an' ye cud hear th' machin'ry snortin' beyant. Murther, but I was sick. Was time (m' ship'd be sittin' on its tail; anoth'r it'd be standin' on its nea'); thin rowlin' over row-like on the side, an' ivry time it lurched me stomnick lurched with it, an' I was sore an' rint an' racked till if death'd come it'd found me willin'. An' th' Rosscommon man, glory be, but he was disthressed. He set on th' flure with his hands on his belt an' his face as white as stone, an' rocked to an' fro. 'Ahoo,' he says; 'ahoo, but me insides has torn loose,' he says, 'an' are tumblin' around,' he says. 'Say a pather an' avy,' says I, 'was that mad with th' big besthoon fr'm Ballytherlin' on th' flure. 'Say a pather an' avy,' I says, 'I'y'e're near to death's dure, avick.' 'Am I,' says he, ralsin' up. 'Thin,' he says, 'to 'ell with the whole rile family,' he says. Oh, he was a rilli!

"Through th' storm there was a baldy cryin'. 'Twas a little wan no more than a year ol', an' 'twas owned be a Tipp'rary man, who come fr'm near Clonmel; a quite weak, scarcey-lookin' little divvie that lost his wife an' thin see th' last iv walk off with th' divv, and thin see him come back again with th' process servers. An' as he was comin' over with th' baldy, an' bein' mother an' father to it. He'd rock it in th' hour on his knees an' talk dem nonsinse to it an' sing it songs. 'A-ah, 'twas there I met a maiden, down in th' tanyard side,' an' 'The Wicklow Mountaineer,' an' 'Th' Rambler fr'm Clare' an' 'O'Donnell Aboo'—roonin' thim in th' little baldy's ear an' sayin' no attintion to th' poorin' thunder above his head. Day an' night, day an' night, poor soul. An' th' baldy cryin' out its heart an' not settin', there with his eyes as red as his hair an' makin' no kick. Poor soul.

"But wan day th' ship settled down steady an' our raghs' stummicks with it, an' th' Rosscommon man shakes his elf an' says: 'To 'ell with th' Prince iv Wales an' th' Duk iv Edinboro, an' goes out an' rears all th' steerage full wed, fr th' storm had done its worst, an' had gone on t' persicute those that come after, an' was th' divvie go with it. Th' waves was rowlin' like an peasefil, an' thinks I: 'I will see a shot fr that little Tipp'rary man,' thinks I, 'fr th' baldy have shmoked quite.' He had been settin' on a stool, but he come over to me. 'I'm sick,' says I. It was. 'Yis,' says he, 'tis over.' 'Twas only while it lasted, says I. 'Ye may say so, says he. 'Well, please Gawd,' says I, 'that I will nivver see worse on this wa-ather.' 'I'm some an' alse fr others,' says he. 'Is

DOOLEY AT THE OPERA

What He Heard and What He Saw of "Falstaff."

MR. DUGGAN WAS MYSTIFIED.

Sig. Verdi's Work Resolves Itself Into a Controversy Over the Relative Merits of Candidates.

"Jawn," said Mr. Dooley, "'tis a gr-reat thing to be a polisman. Me friend Doheny, what used to be at Deerin' sthreet, have got on th' crossin's an' they've planted him down be th' Aajoonorum. He was up here las' week an' says he, he says: 'Run in an' look at th' op'ra,' says he. 'Run in an' take a flash at it,' he says. "Tis gr-reat,' he says. So I takes Duggan an' we goes down togither.

"Well, Doheny does be great paper with thim. He was standin' be th' dure with white gloves over his meat-hooks, an' whin we come up he give th' office to th' la-ad on th' gate an' says th' la-ad: 'Sure thing,' ho says. 'Sure thing,' an' in we goes. They was a great lot iv gazoorlos there, some iv thim settin' in th' seats an' some in bur-rd cages up above an' more standin'. Thim was tho la-ads that Doheny rushed in. Ye niver see such a lot iv thim—Cassidy, O'Regan, Hogan, Mulcahy, Shay, Mullaney, Mulvihill an' th' eight O'Neills, all shtandin' be Doheny without cridintials. Sure, it looked like a meetin' iv th' Wolf Tones. It did that.

"Th' op'ra was on whin we wint in an' they was whalin' away in Eyetalian. Duggan listened an' says he: 'What's th' man sayin',' he says. 'I dinnaw,' I says. 'He's talkin' Chinese,' says I. 'They're goin' to shtud him to th' laundhry,' says I. 'Look,' says. 'They're puttin' him in th' clothes-basket,' I says. 'If they do,' says he, 'he'll niver come back,' he says. 'Or else he'll have another name,' he says. 'Let's buy a scoor cu-ard,' says he. So he bought wan an' was r-readin' it an' lookin' over th' top iv it at th' women in th' boxes an' wondhrin' why some wan didn't tell thim their dhresses was slippin' down, whin over comes Cassidy an' says he: 'What's th' news in th' sixth?' 'Nawthin',' says Duggan. 'Will O'Broyn win?' says Cassidy. 'They can't beat him,' says Duggan. 'I dinnaw,' says Cassidy. 'Come over here an' I'll tell ye,' says Duggan. Dinny Shay an' Hogan an' Mullaney jined us an' we wint an' sot on th' steps. 'Can Winier beat Swift?' says Shay. 'I'd like to know,' says Hogan. 'I don't know who to vote for,' he says, an' Mike is in th' wather dorlco,' he says. "Tis a cinch Hinky'll win out in th' first,' says Mullaney. 'He have a sthrong man again him,' says Hogan. 'Gleason have wan or two lodgin'-houses.' 'Three,' says Shay, 'but Hinkey knows all th' lodgers,' he says. 'T'was a mean thing th' main guy done with Callaghan,' says Hogan. 'What's that?' says Shay. 'Turn him off th' bridge,' says Hogan, 'because he come fr'm Kerry,' says he. 'I don't believe wan wurrud iv it,' says Mullaney. 'They're more Kerry min on bridges thin anny other county,' he says. 'What has bet Hopkins,' he says, 'is his frindship f'r th' May-o min,' he says. 'Th' May-o min is gr-reat fr carryin' prim'ries, afther they're over,' he says. 'But did anny wan iver hear iv thim doin' anny good whin th' votes was bein' cast?' 'I know wan that sa,' says Cassidy, as black as ye'er boot. 'His name was Cassidy,' he says, 'an' he done some good,' he says, 'be prayyintin' a man be th' name iv Mullaney,' he says, 'f'r bein a dilligate.' 'Ye had th' polis widjes,' says Mullaney. 'Ye was supported be th' soldiliy,' says Cassidy.

"Let's change th' subject,' says Duggan. 'What show has Dorsey got in th' twinty-ninth. None at all,' says wan iv th' O'Neills who'd come over. 'He have th' Civic Featheration agin him.' 'Th' 'ell with th' Civic Featheration,' says Mulcahey. 'They don't vote,' he says. 'What'll kill Dorsey,' he says, is his bein' an Apee-e.' 'He's no Apee-e,' says Mike O'Neill. 'I wint to th' brothers' schoof with him,' he says. 'Whin-iver a man comes up tha can't be downed anny other way he's called an Apee-e,' he says. 'He's no more an Apee-e than ye are,' he says. 'I've meas to call me hat, but, says Hinkey, 'Come out an' have a drhink, I

"Well, Jawn, we had wan iv th' livelicst political arguminta yo iver see without so much as a blow bein' sthruck. Evenly matched, d'ye mind, with a chair f'r iv'ry man. An' th' ba-artinder was a frind iv mine. I knowed him whin he was with Schwartzmeister. A good la-ad, a good la-ad.

"But what about the opera?" asked Mr. McKenna.

"Th' op'ra was gr-reat," said Mr. Dooley. "But I think Mulcahey was right. Dorsey can't win."

"Th' Lord save us fr'm harm," said Mr. Dooley. "Th' Lord save us fr'm harm. Have ye seen what they're goin' to do downtown? There goin' to get up a new Bible,'

"What's that? What's that?" Mr. McKenna demanded in great excitement.

"'Tis thruc I'm tellin' ye. They're goin' to get up a new Bible f'r women. A woman's Bible, d'ye mind, with annything in th' of Bible that's considered be th' female bicycle club to be a knock f'r women cut out."

"What good would that do them?" asked Mr. McKenna puzzled.

"What good'd that do thim? Why all th' good in th' wurruld. Donahue's heerd of it iv coorse an' he's wurruked up over it. He says they'll start out in th' beginnin' an' prove an alibi f'r Eve. That's goin' back a long way, but Donahue says they lay it all to th' beginnin' an' his daughter Molly she says that all th' throuble comic because Adam wint around fr'm pillar to post talkin' to polismen an' raypoorters an' tellin' thim that she put him up to it. 'An' I'll admit,' Donahue says to me, 'I'll admit that they have got th' worst iv it in th' Bible,' he says. 'Sure,' says I, 'th' Bible is thruc.' I says. 'Ye'll not deny that, man?' I says. 'Glory be,' says he. 'Th' Lord save us, no,' he says. 'What would ye make iv me?' he says. 'A Jew man?' he says. 'Thin,' says I, 'it's thruc. Well, thin,' I says, 'what's to be done about it?' I says. 'Th' statues that keeps women fr'm comin' into their rights,' I says. 'An' ye wouldn't find a Bible in th' legislachoor if ye'd stand thim on their heads,' I says. 'Ye might find masked cards, but ye'd find no Bible,' I says.

"'"'Tis thruc," he says. "Ye have that right,' he says. 'An' I told Molly so,' he says. 'I told her if she wanted annything done she'd best go an' see Billy O'Broyn,' I said, for, says I, he's all right at Springfield, an', I says, if ye go into this thing, I says, Father Kelly'll get down on ye, I says. 'But,' says he, 'she wint on fr'm to say that it was th' Inflooence iv th' Bible. It seems that whin her brother Darcey asked her to go out to th' ball of the Young Man's Sodality, an' she refused, he ups an' quotes th' Bible to her. "Oh, woman, in our hours iv ease, uncertain, cye an' sun," she got along with in th' house." An' she says that iverywhere women meet th' same roast, an' she's tired iv it. So her an' th' rist iv thim is goin' to rayform it. They are that. They're goin' to lave out annything that rayflicts on th' six. They'll attimpt to show that they was a combination again Eve iv th' snake an' her husband, an' fr'm that come all th' throuble: Iverybody afther that thought it was his jooty to roast, an' th' raysult is ye may search through fr'm ind to ind an' ye won't see wan word about woman in suffrage. Iv coorse I know nawthin' about it, f'r whin I was a la-ad an' done mo readin', th' Caddychism was good enough f'r me. We had a Bible, though. It fell on me wanst an' was like to break me neck. But we didn't read it. Still,' he says, 'I've no doubt there may be somo thruth in what they say, an' if there is,' he says, 'though I'd not be th' first to say it's wurruld, it ought to be rayformed,' he says. 'But iver since it come up I've been dodgin' th' Good Man,' he says, 'but I don't vote, so to me jooty till 'tis sittled wan way or th' other,' he says.

"That's where Donahue stands, an' I'm with him. I'd as lave as not believe Adam was to blame, though he's dead, poor soul, may he rest, per omnia, an' I'm th' last to put in a wurrud again th' dead. I want ivry wan to have a fair show, an' if fixin' th' Bible'll help thim to vote, thin I say fix it, may th' Lord forgive me. On'y I'll tell thim this that I've lived in Bridgeport f'r forty years backed up be me Bible an' second papers signed be Judge Kercheval an' a pull at th' polis station an' I've niver had me vote counted that th' wanst an' that was whin I was captain iv me precint an' a power in th' wa-ard. That's right, Jawn.'

"Are they going to have the new woman in that I hear tell of," Mr. McKenna asked.

"Jawn," said Mr. Dooley severely, 'this ain't goin' to be an atimate. It's a Bible I've been tellin' ye about."

MR. DOOLEY'S VIEWS.

The Philosopher Has Changed His Political Creed.

BUT NOT AS FAST AS MALONEY.

Remarkable Story of the Effect of the Returns Upon the Man Who Swings the Bridge.

"Jawn," said Mr. Dooley, "didn't we give it to him?"

"Give it to who?" ask'd Mr. McKenna.

"To th' dimocrats," said Mr. Dooley.

"Oh-oh," said Mr. McKenna. "You're a sensible man yourself."

"No," said Mr. Dooley. "Not on y'er life. No, in wan hun'thred thousand years! Am a dimocrat? I sh'll say not, Jawn, me buck. I'm th' hottest kind iv a raypoobli-can, me-self, Maloney. I suppose they ain't two such raypoobli-cans annywhere. How can a man be ann'y thing else? Who was it th' saved th' union, Jawn, who was it? Who are th' frinds iv th' Irish? Who protects th' poor workin'man so that h'll have to go on wurrkin'? We do, Jawn. We raypoobli-cans, by dad.

"There ain't a dimocrat f'r'm wan ind iv th' road to th' other. I just was over makin' a call on me hero and he'd took down th' pictures iv Jackson an' Cleveland an' put up wan iv Grant an' Lincoln. William McKinley have come out f'r McKinley f'r Prisidint an' th' polityman on th' beat told me las' night that in less'n two months time f'r a certainty. The dimocrats had roond th' counthried with their free trade an' their foreign policy an' their Ji-hunny-what, an' 'twas a poor man an honest man got a crack at a job. Th' prisidint with a policy-shop or wo to it. Th' polisman agreed with him that Cleveland have raised th' divvle with th' whole nation, an', by gar, he's right, too. The p'int, Jawn. He have a boy in the s'cond office.

"Second, Maloney, th' la-ad with th' grane eye! He have a bridge over be Goose Island way, but he was down here thirteen days, three weeks before illection he was again Wintur. 'He's no good,' he says. He's a Bohemian,' he says. 'An' whin they come to vote they'll be manes f'r mayor,' he says. 'I'll go back to me ol' thrade iv chuv-lin' mud,' he says. 'Besides,' says he, 'if this here Wintur wint in,' he says, 'ye couldn't stand on'st La Salle sthreet an' hand him a peach or a window pole, he'd be that stuck up,' he says.

"Some wan must've spoke to him, f'r whin he come in th' nex' time he says: 'They've no time to talk in,' he says, 'that there Dutchman is starving,' he says. 'I thought he was a Dutchman,' says I. 'Naw, naw,' says he, 'he's a Bohemian man,' he says. 'An' th' two wans are with him to th' butther ind,' he says. 'D'ye know,' he says, 'I believe he'll give ivry little bit iv'ded duck a run f'r his money,' he says. 'Thim Germans stands to-gether,' he says. 'They're th' most clannish race on earth,' he says. 'I'm sawn over to Wist Tonees to find out what th' la-ads sink iv it. Sunday night he come in an' give a sword f'r Wesler to ivry man in th' ward,' he says. 'He'll sweep th' town like a whirlwind,' he says. 'They can't beat him.' Who?' says I. 'Who?' he says. 'Who? Elder, iv course. 'Is he a nice man?' says I. 'Wan iv th' best man on earth,' he says. 'A scowt, too,' he says. 'An liberal.'

"He was in here th' nex' day an' I had Hinnissy's kid runnin' f'r'm th' station with th' noose. Maloney was talkin' to th' crowd an' they'r shrinks. 'Ye'd be surprised,' says he, 'to know what a splindid nice fellow this here Wintur is,' says he. 'Ye'd nivir take him f'r a Dutchman,' he says. 'He have no more accent than manny.' Th' kid come in an' says he. 'Th' last say th' precints show Swift have a majority as big as what the raypoobli-cans got last fall.' 'That's bad,' says I. 'Not at all,' says Maloney. 'Thim's th' downtown wa-ards,' he says. 'Wait till ye hear from th' Germans,' he says. 'Th' next hoodlum said Swift was gainin' an' had th' thousan' majority. 'Nivir mind,' says Maloney. 'Th' Germans'll wipe that out,' he says. 'The we hears f'rom twinty hoodlums f'r'm Glory be,' says Maloney. 'Th' Germans is slow comin' in,' he says. 'Maybe,' says I, 'they forgot to vote,' says I. 'Maybe they're havin' a schootzenfist,' I says, 'an' ar-re out killin' clay pigeons instid iv a-tindin' to business,' I says. Just thin th' loot come in. 'Well,' says he, "tis quite a Watherloo,' says he. 'I'm who?' says I. 'Oh,' he says, 'Swift's got it be forty thousand.'

"Maloney wiped his face an' took off his hat an' swabbed it inside. Thin says he: 'D'ye raynimber me meetin' ye downtown a week ago in Dorn-je's place, loo,' he says. 'Yis,' says th' loot. 'D'ye mind what I said thin,' he says. 'I don't call it just now,' says th' loot. 'Well, I just come f'r'm a meetin' iv th' Swift Ma-archin' Club an' I nivir seen so much enthusyasm an' I says to ye, I says: "Loot," I says, "Swift'll beat him asy." I says. I knew he would f'r'm th' beginnin'. Ye take an' put up a good, broad, liberal man like George H., a man that has frinds an' knows how to be a good fellow, an' f-run him again a Bohemian nazabo, who gives ivry man th' marble heart an' 'd turn down his own brother, an' anny fool cud tell who'd win. Thin I be some pleanst wid Schwartzmeister said when he heerd th' f'r'm man with Swift over there, but if this here Wint-r wint in ye couldn't stand acrost LaSalle sthreet an' hand him a peach on th' ind iv a window-pole,' he says.

"'W'll he lose his job? Not much, Jawn. That la-adill be swingin' bridges an' throwin' away th' crust iv his pie whin you an' me, Jawn, re-ath ha-ard-ood. He will, that. me, Jawn, re-ath ha-ard-ood. He will, that. Phwat do I care? Machs nix aus, as Schwartzmeister said when he heerd th' iliup'ror iv Germany was dead. Me he nix aus, Jawn, an' that bein' thranslated manes: 'I'm at th' ell.'"

MISS MOLLY'S PIANO.

Causes Much Comment Up in the Archey Road.

MR. DOOLEY TELLS ALL ABOUT IT

The Falling-Out with Mrs. Donahue Over Wagner and Recent Inebriety of Donahue, Pere.

"Ol' man Donahue bought Molly a piannah las' week," Mr. Dooley said in the course of his conversation with Mr. McKenna. "She'd been takin' lessons f'r'm a Dutchman down th' sthreet an' they say she can play as asy with her hands crossed as she can with wan finger. She's been whalin' away iver since an' Donahue is dhrinkin' again.

"Ye see, th' other night some iv th' ol' la-ads wint over f'r to see whether they could smash his table in a frindly game iv forty-fives. I dinnaw what possissed Donahue. He niver asked his frinds into th' parlor before. They used to set in th' dinin'-room, an' whin Mrs. Donahue couched at eliven o'clock they'd toddle out th' side dure with their hats in their hands. But this here night, whither 'twas that Donahue had taken on a tub or two too much or not, he asked them all in to th' front room, where Mrs. Donahue was settin' with Molly. I've brought me frinds,' he says, 'f'r to hear Molly take a fall out iv th' mustoxe,' he says. 'Let me have ye'er hat, Mike,' he says. 'Ye'll not feel it whin ye go out,' says he.

"At anny other time Mrs. Donahue'd 'v give him th' ma-arble heart. But they wasn't a man in th' pa-arty that had a piannah to his name, an' she knew she'd be throuble whin they wint home an' tol' about it. 'Tis a me-lodjious instthrument,' says she. 'I eal sit here be th' hour an' listen to Bootoven and Chochooski,' she says. 'What did thim write?' says Cassidy. 'Chunes,' says Donahue. 'Chunes, Molly he says, 'fetch 'er a wallop to make th' gintlemin feel good,' he says. 'What'll it be la-ads?' 'D'ye know th' Rumbler f'r'm Clare?' says Slavin. 'No,' says Molly. 'It goes like this,' says Slavin. 'A-ah, din yadden, yooden a-yadden, arrah yadden ay-a.' 'I dinnaw it,' says th' girl. 'Tis a low chune, annyhow,' says Mrs. Donahue. 'Misther Slavin ividintly thinks he's at th' policeman's p'nnic,' she says. 'I'll have naw come-all-ye's in this house,' she says. 'Molly give us a few ba-ars iv Wagner.' 'What Wagner's that?' says Flanagan. 'Naw wan ye know,' says Donahue. 'He's a German musielan.' 'Thim Germans is hot people f'r music,' says Cassidy. 'I knowed wan that cud play th' "Wacht am Rhine" on a pair iv cymbals,' he said. 'Whisth,' says Donahue. 'Give th' girl a chanst.'

"Slavin tol' me about it. He says he nivver heerd th' like in his born days. He says she fet hed th' pianny two or three wallops that made Cassidy jump out iv his chair, an' Cassidy has cha-arge iv th' steam whistle at th' quarry at that. She wint at it as though she had a greejee again it. First 'twas wan hand, thin th' other, thin both hands, knickles down, an' it looked, says Slavin, as though she was goin' to leap into th' middle iv it with both feet, whin Donahue jumped up. 'Hol' on,' he says. 'That's not a rinted pianny, ye daft girl,' he says. 'Why, papjah,' says Molly, 'what d'ye manee?' she says. 'That's Wagner,' she says. 'Tis th' music iv th' future,' she says. 'I'ls,' says Donahue, 'but I don't want me ol' earth. I can wait f'r it,' he says, 'with th' kind permission iv Mrs. Donahue,' he says. 'Play us th' "Wicklow Mountaineer," he says, 'an' thrcat th' musheen kindly,' he says. 'She'll play naw "Wicklow Mountaineer,"' says Mrs. Donahue. 'If ye want to be hear-r,' she says, 'that kind iv chune ye can go down to Fiucane's Hall,' she says, 'an' call in Crowley, th' blind player,' she says. 'Molly,' she says, 'give us wan iv thim Choochooski things,' she says.

"With that Donahue rose up. 'Come on,' says he. 'This is naw place f'r us,' he says. Slavin, with th' politeness iv a man whose gettin' aven, turns at th' dure. 'I'm sorry I can't requalh,' he says. 'I think th' wurrud an' all iv his jo-okes, Chioochoose,' he says. Me brother-in-law is play his chunes, he says. 'He brother Mike, that run th' grip car-ar,' he says. 'But he's wan thing missin f'r'm all his playin'.' says An' [illegible]

CHEVALIER

One of the most important engagements announced for the coming season here is that of the famous English music hall singer, Albert Chevalier. Before his appearance in New York last spring Chevalier had refused several very flattering offers to visit America, saying that when he did come it would be with his own organization and that he would play a route of only the largest cities, and in the legitimate theatres, and not in the music halls. My Dal has several lengthy interviews with him in London on the occasion of his New York engagement, and after nearly three years of correspondence the comedian agreed to accept the magnificent salary of $2,000 per week, but at the conclusion of his engagement at Koster & Bial's, he quickly decided to adhere to his first resolution, and will return to the music halls, so an arrangement was entered into between him and Manager Charles Frohman, by which he has been properly and artistically surrounded, and which will enable him to be seen in the best theatres of America by that same responsive and refined element which gave him his greatest encouragement and cooperation in the West End drawing-rooms of London. For it must be remembered that among the earliest patrons of Mr. Chevalier coster songs, he numbered the nobility of England and the best representatives of the artistic and ecclesiastical world there. America is to be congratulated that he comes just now in the very prime of his life and with his honors ripe and rosy about him.

NEXT ATTRACTION

Beginning Dec. 21, '96. First Time Here.

Frank Daniels Comic Opera Co.

In the Record Breaking Comic Opera Success,

"The Wizard of the Nile"

A complete change of attraction will be offered at this theatre with the coming week, and its announcement will be a source of gratification to all music lovers.

Frank Daniels begins a week's engagement in Harry B. Smith and Victor Herbert's divetting comic opera, "The Wizard of the Nile," which, while new here, met with such splendid success in many places last season.

Harry B. Smith, the librettist, who has given us "Robin Hood," and most of our comic opera successes, struck a particular happy vein for his story of "The Wizard of." As is generally known, Mr. Daniels assumes the character of Kibosh, a tramp magician, who visits Egypt way back in the days of the Ptolemies, and attempts to woo and win the Princess Cleopatra, thereby leaving Mare Antony out in the cold, so to speak. The atmosphere of the opera afforded scenic artist and costumer a glorious chance to revel in all sorts of unique color schemes with the result that the opera is staged in a way for the attendant to remember. "The Wizard of the Nile" was presented at Vienna recently and scored an immediate and emphatic hit, and this is the first instance of a successful production of an American opera within the German Empire. The English presentation of the opera occurs this winter in London, with Arthur Roberts in Mr. Daniels' part, at the Prince of Wales theatre. The same complete organization as aided in its success last season comes to Cleveland in support of the star, including Edna Thornton, the new prima donna, Louise Royce, Walter Allen, Greta Risley, Louis Cassavant, Leonard Walker, and an efficient chorus of young voices. Suburban theatre-goers should remember that Mr. Daniels gives Matinees on Saturday and on Friday (Christmas day.)

The sale of seats for Mr. Daniels' engagement opens on Thursday morning, Dec. 17.

A BUNCH OF KEYS.

OR THE HOTEL.

UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF GUS BOTHNER.

Is a collection of incidents to teach no moral in particular stirred together by Charles Hoyt, incited, aided and abetted by Willie Edouin. The piece is called a comedy because comedy is the word used to describe almost every thing put upon the stage at present, and as Mr. Hoyt desires to avoid the charge of eccentricity, having enough to answer for. The people who risk their lives, limbs and reputation in presenting the incidents the characters they allege to assume, may be learned by a careful study of the following table:

THE SEASON

New Trocadero Vaudevilles

(Direct from Chicago Auditorium).

—HEADED BY—

SANDOW,

The World's Unrivalled Athlete,

Introducing for the first time his performance on the sensational Rebounding Platform in conjunction with his Marvelous New Superhuman Feats.

THE 5 JORDANS

And a Congress of the World's Famous Athletes and Artists,

Presenting a refined Vaudeville and Athletic Entertainment, patronized by the best class of theatre goers in America, and recognized by press and public as a performance without a peer in number, quality and variety of acts and special individual features never before seen in America. Conceived, organized, promoted and managed by MR. F. ZIEGFELD, JR.

PROGRAM.

Presenting European Vaudeville.

1. Overture—Orchestra.
2. AUGUST DEWELL,
   Gymnastic Potpourie.
3. THE LUCIFERS.

Grotesques from the Alhambra, London, in their new act.

William Lucifer, Champion Combined High Kicker and Jumper of the World. Mr. Lucifer's physical development achieved under Sandow's method of development.

4. N. E. KAUFMANN,

The Champion Trick Bicyclist of the World. Prepared to defend his title and willing to meet all comers.

5. MONS. OGUST,

The eminent French Clown from Folies Begere, Paris, presenting his Marvelous Imitations.

6. BROTHERS PANTZERS,
   From Palace Theatre, London.
7. AMANN,

Europe's Greatest Impersonator, introducing life-like reproductions of world-famous men, including America's greatest statesmen and actors. The management desires to call attention to the remarkable work of this truly great artist. Having devoted a lifetime to the study of character impersonations, he is able to produce most life-like representations of the world's most famous men. The inspired look of the poet, the thoughtful mien of the statesman, and the determined countenance of the victorious warrior, are given with such startling fidelity, that it is difficult to realize that it is all but the face of one man. Special attention is called to Mr. Amann's impersonation of SVENGALI, without the aid of any artifice, excepting wig and beard.

8. THE 5 JORDANS,

Misses Mamie, Rosey and Nellie and Lewis and August Performing the most astonishing, daring and graceful aerial act ever witnessed. The audience is respectfully informed that the strong safety net, 12 feet wide, securely held in place, entirely precludes the possibility of any mishap befalling the performers in the Greatest Aerial Act ever offered to the public. Mr. Ziegfeld requests the indulgence of the audience for the short delay necessary in placing the net.

Intermission of Eight Minutes.

PART TWO.

9. SANDOW

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ATHLETE.

Mr. Ziegfeld offers $10,000 to any athlete duplicating Mr. Sandow's performance. The greatest physical lesson of the age. Mr. Sandow's exhibitions have done more to encourage the physical development of young America than can be realized, and Manager Ziegfeld has induced Mr. Sandow to appear at matinees in order to give the school children an opportunity to witness his performances.

Physically perfect. Acknowledged by anatomists to be the strongest man in the world. History does not record among the great gladiators of ancient Rome a man with such muscular development as Sandow.

His 400 wonderfully developed muscles are exhibited in the following manner:

Muscular repose (all the muscles relaxed)

Muscular Tension (all the muscles firm as steel)

Abdominal when tense, producing the wonderful checkerboard arrangement of fibres, the existence of which modern anatomists deny, being plainly visible at a distance of 300 feet.

The Biceps (muscles of the upper arm), the Triceps (muscles of the back of the arm), the Deltoid (muscles of the shoulder), the Trapezino (muscles which raise the shoulders).

The muscles of the back, showing plainly all three layers.

The action and uses of the different muscles.

The chest expansion; Sandow's chest measurement is 47 inches; expanded it is 61 inches, an expansion of 14 inches. The greatest expansion ever known at the Olympic games in Rome was 6 in.

Sandow will exhibit his extraordinary command over his entire muscular system by making his muscles dance.

NOTE.

Manager F. Ziegfeld, Jr., is certainly to be complimented upon the success of his endeavors to elevate vaudeville in America. The term vaudeville has too long been associated with low-grade performances which ladies and persons of refinement do not care to attend. Manager Ziegfeld has succeeded in putting before the American public an aggregation of legitimate vaudeville talent worthy the patronage of the best theatres in the country. It is absolutely refined and unobjectionable from beginning to end. Any child may see it without harm; ladies enjoy it equally with their escorts. Sandow and the Trocadero Vaudevilles constitute an enterprise for which only words of praise may be spoken and wishes for deserved success expressed by all who desire the best and highest in whatever form of entertainment is provided for the public. During the remainder of the engagement in this city this attraction should pack the big theater as it was last evening, and at the matinee for ladies and children to-morrow afternoon there should be rows upon rows of little faces whose eyes turn in increasing wonder to the stage as each new act rolls on in the splendid panorama of the entertainment.—Herald, March 8, 1895.

The pianos used in the Lyceum and Cleveland Theatres, are from the Hallet & Davis Piano Co., 359-361 Superior Street.

MESSRS. BENJ. CURTAZ & SON :

Gentlemen—It affords me great pleasure to tender my sincerest appreciation for the magnificent Steck piano you so kindly sent me at my request, for use during my engagement in your city.

The Steck piano surely combines all the essential qualities of a really perfect piano, immense power with exquisite sweetness.

I do not hesitate to recommend them very strongly to professional and amateur singers, for they aid the human voice to a wonderful degree.

Wishing you the success the Steck so richly deserves.

I am, believe me, very truly yours,

The KNABE PIANOS, which I did not know before have been chosen for my present concert tour in the U.S. by my Impressario and accepted by me on the recommendation of my friend Bechstein, acquainted with their merits. Had I known these Pianos as now I do I would have chosen them by myself, as their sound and touch are more sympathetic to my ears and hands than all others of the country.

The Priestley fabrics are so widely known that it is now, perhaps, scarcely necessary to repeat the caution to see that the name B. Priestley & Co. is found stamped on the under side of the selvedge in gilt letters; yet it is wise to be careful. Many fabrics are called Henriettas which have little in common with the Priestley fabrics except the name. Some kinds of the imitation Henriettas, such as are fraying and crocking, reveal themselves at once to a careful shopper, but others, like creasing and growing rusty, are only discoverable after the material has been made up. It is wise, therefore, to purchase only the Priestley black fabrics, since these have the manufacturers' guarantee.

The Sarasate-D'Albert Concert combination, after a very successful engagement in San Francisco, where they met with an enthusiastic welcome and continued and increasing interest, are on their way to Mexico. They will give six or eight concerts in that city, beginning Easter Sunday, and will, no doubt, win golden laurels from Mexican audiences.

"Now, if you were a tree," he said, glancing at her bejewelled hands, "I could tell your age." "Nonsense, how could you?" she asked. "By simply counting the rings," he concluded with a smile of a trickster.

A barber who became a Wall Street broker still continues to "shave" when he gets a chance.

A tailor doesn't like to be referred to as "Mr. So-and-So." It probably seems a needless remark.

When a deep sleep falls on a man he doesn't mind it half so much as he does when a few square yards of loose plaster, ing comes down or a chimney toppels over on his head.

A crazy negro in a Milwaukee jail labors under the impression that he is a telephone. This probably came about because his friends kept saying "Hello!" to him on the street.

SHORT, BUT STILL LONG.—Mrs. Celia Cohen—"I've bitten off the end of my tongue, and I won't know what to do."

Mr. Henry Cohen—"By gosh, then there'll be no end at all to your tongue. It will be like a little brook—ripple, ripple all day long."

Portrait of a Statesman.—A South German paper furnishes its readers with the following horrid example of bad punctuation: ". . . After him walked Lord Salisbury on his head, a white hat on his feet, large but well-brushed boots on his forehead, a dark cloud in his hand, the inevitable walking stick in his eyes, a threatening glance in gloomy silence."

THE CHOPIN CYCLUS.

Vladimir De Pachmann, has been engaged by Messrs Chickering & Sons to give a brief series of concerts in New York, Boston, and a few of the principal cities in the United States. The distinguished Russian Pianist, in the opinion of the foremost critics of England, France, Germany and Russia, is absolutely unrivaled as an exponent of Chopin's compositions. The popularity of Chopin's music, its worth as an educational factor, and the undisputed rank of Mr. De Pachmann as a Chopin interpreter and expounder, is a sufficient guarantee that the De Pachmann recitals and concerts will find immediate favor with the musical public. The Boston Cyclus will include three recitals and one concert with orchestra.

Last appearance before his Western tour of Vladimir De Pachmann, Friday evening, April 22, at 8. Only evening Chopin Programme. Saturday afternoon, April 26, at 3, with Mme. De Pachmann, only miscellaneous Recital.

Blooker's Dutch Cocoa

Instantaneous—With Boiling Water or Milk.

The Favorite of the "400."

"Abroad" everybody knows BLOOKER'S dutch COCOA and everybody believes what its manufacturers, in Amsterdam (Holland), claim for it. Our great effort at present is to convince the American public that cocoa is good to drink; good to drink more of, and less of tea, coffee and wines; also, and of the greatest importance, that most cocoas are more or less adulterated, and that BLOOKER'S dutch COCOA is one absolutely pure, very soluble, nutritious cocoa, containing no indigestible fats, easily digested and of delicious flavor. Purer than water. Cheaper than milk. Try it once and you will never use other.

Sold at all leading grocers and druggists. 50

LINDA DI CHAMOUNIX.

ARGUMENT.

Antonio Loustolot, a farmer residing in the valley of Chamounix, has an only daughter, Linda, between whom and a young man, a compatriot stranger, known only as a talented painter, passing by the name of Charles, a mutual attachment has been formed. Antonio and his aged wife are lamenting the probability of being obliged to surrender the farm which they have for a long series of years occupied under the Marchioness de Sirval.

The arrival of the Marquis of Bo sfleury, the bro her of the Marchioness, loads them with offers of friendship, and assures them of his determination to obtain the gratification of their wishes from his sister, their landlady. Boisfleury, however, is an old rouc, who is only endeavoring thus to ingratiate himself with the parents with a view to the ultimate ruin of their daughter. Of this the Perfect of the vil age is well aware; and, in order to rem ve Linda from the importunities of the Marquis, he advises her parents to allow her to accompany a party of villagers then about to depart to Paris, promising at the same time to domicile her with a brother. Thither, therefore, Linda is sent under the protection of Pierotto, a worthy villager, one of the migrating party.

On the way, by some casualty, Linda is separated from her protector, and, on arriving in Paris, she learns that the Prefect's brother had been some time deceased. Her lover, Charles, has, however, followed her, and he now discovers his true position by informing her that he is Viscount Sirval, the son of the M rchioness of that name, and the nephew to the Marquis whose advances to Linda have proved so repulsive. Renewal and the promise of marriage, Linda, disappointed in her expected protector, is induced to all w her lover to provide her with a handsome suite of ro oms and the requisite supplies While in the meanwhile questionable position, she is not only discovered by her lost friend Pierotto, but, her father, having been obliged to abandon his farm, has wended his way to Paris, and waits on her, as a rich stranger, to solicit her bounty. On finding his daughter living in a state of splendor incompatible, according to his notions, with her purity, he pronounces on her the malediction.

The Marchioness, having been apprised of her son's attachment, is highly incensed, and declares that she will exercise her power by having Linda incarcerated for life unless he at once marries the lady select ed for him by his haughty mother. The preliminaries are allowed so far to proceed as to lead Linda to the belief that she is deserted, almost at the instant when her lover had been renewing his vows with all the lover's energy, and she goes mad. In this state she is taken back to her native valley. At the last hour the Marchioness, however, relents, and consents to the union of her son with the beautiful peasant. The lady's reason returns, and thus all ends happily.

"The Foremost Cocoa of Europe.
The Coming One of America."
VAN HOUTEN'S
COCOA,
"BEST & GOES FARTHEST,"
are household words all over Europe. This first and, ever since its invention, best of all cocoas will, now that the manufacturers are drawing the attention of the American public to it, soon be appreciated here as well as elsewhere all over the world. All that the manufacturers request is simply one trial, or still better, a comparative test with whatever cocoa may be in use and then VAN HOUTEN'S Cocoa itself will convince everyone of its great superiority in strength, flavor and cheapness. It is because of this superiority that the English high class paper, Health, says: "Once tried; always used."
It is well known that "The cup that cheers but not inebriates" does not afford a particle of nourishment.
Eminent Doctors and Analysts of Europe concede that Van Houten's Cocoa both stimulates and nourishes and without leaving any injurious effect upon the nervous system.
It is a perfect beverage; cheap, cheering and sustaining.

"MUCH BETTER THAN TEA OR COFFEE FOR THE NERVES."
The King of Holland is highly pleased with VAN HOUTEN'S Cocoa and has granted the manufacturers (unsolicited) the right of styling their works the ROYAL COCOA FACTORY,
by deed of August 12, 1889.

The KNABE PIANOS, which I did not know before, have been chosen for my present concert tour in the U.S. by my Impresario and accepted by me on the recommendation of my friend Bechstein, acquainted with their merits. Had I known these Pianos as now I do I would have chosen them by myself, as their sound and touch are more sympathetic to my ears and hands than all others of the country.

NEW YORK, 6th April, 1882.

DR. HANS VON BULOW.

TO MESSRS. WILLIAM KNABE & CO.

One of the most desirable materials for a black gown, for summer wear, is Priestley's Crystallette. It is particularly adapted for traveling, shedding dust perfectly, and the slightly wiry nature of the goods making it delightfully cool and agreeable. This cloth has a pure silk warp and a pure mohair filling, and possesses all the merits of the Priestley fabrics.

The Sarasate-D'Albert Concert combination, after a very successful engagement in San Francisco, where they met with an enthusiastic welcome and continued and increasing interest, are on their way to Mexico. They will give six or eight concerts in that city, beginning Easter Sunday, and will, no doubt, win golden laurels from Mexican audiences.

MUSICAL NOTES FROM ABROAD.

[From the American Musician.]

ITALY.

ROME.—Lalo's "Re d'Ys" was brought out in Italy for the first time at Argentina Theatre; though the score was entrusted to excellent artists, and the opera was mounted superbly, through the generosity of Sonzogno, proprietor of the music, the "Re d'Ys" did not excite any enthusiasm; on the contrary, was received very coldly; the music was judged inferior to what had been expected. The singers, Mmes. Theodorine and Calvé, Sigira Garulli, Seguin and Wulmaun, did full justice to their respective parts, and were rewarded with frequent applause; the execution and mise en scene were highly satisfactory, but as a whole the "Re d'Ys" was not a success.

Rossini's "Otello" is to be revived this summer, with the tenor Stagno in the title rôle, which was once the "Cheval de Cataille" of the famous singer Tamberlick.

During the season of spring racing in May next, Gastaldon's new opera, "Mala Pasqua," will be brought out at the Costanzi Theatre. Gastaldon is known to fame as the author of the vulgar, but immensely popular song, "Musica proibita," which has as great a success as Robandi's "Stella Confidente."

The Pennsylvania Limited, performing a daily service between New York and Chicago, needed but one feature to complete the perfection of its appointment. The men had their porter and barber, and now the ladies have their maid and hair-dresser. The introduction of the maids is as novel as it is a unique feature. They will have an eye to the children, and have a care for invalid ladies who may travel without a male escort. The convenience and comfort of having an attendant of one's own sex will be cordially appreciated by timid women and those who are inexperienced in travel. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Pullman Palace Car Company deserve great credit for their persistent efforts to enhance the comfort and pleasure of their patrons.

The Mexican Central Railway Company have issued a book descriptive of Mexico. This, together with map folders and other printed matter, may be had free on application to any of its agents.

CALIFORNIA AND MEXICO.—The "Sunset Route" of the Southern Pacific Company is the popular line for winter tourists. R. Shortest broad gauge route from the east to all points in old Mexico. Consult an agent of the "Sunset Route" before purchasing your tickets to any points in Texas, Mexico, Arizona or California. Regular visitors to California are aware that the "Sunset Route" is the best, quickest and most comfortable during the winter months to all Southern California points.

The West Shore R. R is one of the most popular lines for business and pleasure travel which run out of New York. First-class accommodations, courteous treatment and fast time are its prominent features.

INSTRUCTION TO WAITERS.—Landlord (aside to new waiter)—Mind you pay every attention to that stout gentleman yonder with the bloated face and wildly flashing eyes. He is a coarse, ill-mannered brute, and if he does not get exactly what he likes he is apt to throw the plate at your head. But as for that other gentleman, with the bald head and the close-cropped whiskers, sitting by himself at the side table, you can treat him without ceremony. Broken scraps of meat, the empyings of wine and beer glasses—anything is good enough for him. He is a nice, amiable, well-bred gentleman, who will never give you a cross word.—Gartenlaube.

SPAIN AND PORTUGAL.

LISBON.—A story reaches us from the Portuguese capital, which has all the appearance of being a canard, notwithstanding the fact of its having been published in several respectable European journals; it is to the effect that Rossini's opera, "I Barbiere di Seviglia," was performed at the San Carlos Theatre on the last night of the Carnival season—all of the rôles, excepting that of Figaro, being filled by female members of the regular operatic troupe in appropriate costumes, while the choruses were rendered by female choirsters in masculine dress. Mme. Tetrazzini was the Almaviva, and Milles. Bulicioff, Matteuzzi, Cisterna and Giudice, the Don Basilio, Don Bartolo, Fiorello and Ufficiale respectively. It is added that the representation was immensely successful. Mme. Tetrazzini making a special hit as the love-sick Count whose various costumes she wore with grace and chic.

'There's no telling" would be a good motto for a sewing society, if the members could only justify it.

Husband—And what leads you to think that Mr. Springday and our daughter are finally engaged to be married? Wife—Well, he doesn't come so often as he used to, and when he calls they most always have a quarrel and say mean things to each other.

MESSRS. CHICKERING & SONS:—It is very agreeable to me to add my name to the concert of praises of which your pianos are the object. To be just, I must declare them perfect, and Perfectissime (superlatively perfect).

There is no quality which is foreign to them. Your instruments possess in the supreme degree nobility and power of tone, elasticity and security of touch, harmony, brilliancy, solidity, charms and prestige; and thus offer an harmonious ensemble of perfection, to the exclusion of all defects.

Pianists of least pretensions will find means of drawing from them agreeable effects; and in face of such products—which truly do honor to the art of the construction of instruments—the rôle of the critic is as simple as that of the public; the one has but to applaud them conscientiously and with entire satisfaction, and the other but to procure them in the same manner.

In congratulating you sincerely upon the great and decisive success obtained at the Exposition at Paris, I am pleased to anticipate the happy continuation of the same in all places where your pianos will be heard; and I beg that you accept, gentlemen, the expression of my most distinguished sentiments of esteem and consideration.

INDIA.

BOMBAY.—The Mohometans of Bombay and Poona are forbidden to attend theatrical performances under penalty of a fine of five rupees—for the first offense, and ten for the second; on the strict infraction the transgressor will be excommunicated from the Tamat, and at his death his body will be denied religious interment. Over 100,000 faithful adherents of the code of Islam have accepted the new law, which was passed owing to the recent performance of a drama in which one of the interlocutors represented the sacred person of the Prophet.

THE HAGUE.—Minnie Hauk opened a season of opera at the Royal Theatre on the 22d ult., appearing in the title rôle of "Mignon"; the season ended she goes to Frankfort and Leipzig in both of which cities she will sing for the first time in "Les Dragons de Villars."

GERMANY.

HAMBURG.—A critic of a prominent journal was refused entrance to a theatre by order of the manager, who thought that the "pen-pusher" had treated his troupe with undue severity; as the journalist had bought an admission ticket at the box office he sued the manager; the court decided that nobody could be prevented from entering a theatre for which he had purchased a ticket.

The composer, Kaiser, has just completed a new work entitled "Rodenstein," which will be produced at the Kroll Theatre next season; it will probably be brought out at Prague.

The first theatre to produce Reyer's "Salammbo" will be the Berlin Royal Opera House, the directors having recently signed the necessary contract with the proprietors of the new score.

WEIMAR.—Rizet's "Pêcheurs de Perles" is announced for immediate production at the Court Theatre.

WIESBADEN.—A lyrico-epic poem, "Nornegast," set to music by Zerlett, was recently heard for the first time; it was so well received that he contemplates arranging it in melodramatic form.
